#ACHTUNG, #Comrades! Especially #OLD Comrades. #Public #information you might nonetheless not be aware of. How the #SunshineList #Commissars (I use the term ironically but fondly, dear comrades) of #Toronto #Community #Housing - #TCHC - intend to harvest and store forever the #personalinformation of their #elderly #tenants. If any guest, neighbor, or distant relative has once just once griped about you, it will be there - forever! If the police once called on you, or you on them, it will be there forever. Any images of anything at all, captured by their cameras or 3rd party (private police force) surveillance, will be there forever. Anything at all, will be there. Forever. Indeed, comrades, we could almost take this for #policestate #surveillance - within a police state - if we didn't know that the TCHC was always #benign and #honest and #competent and #truthful and never ever #corrupt or #mendacious or #abusive or #selfinterested or #biased or indeed #racist. #SlavaUkraini! At least they fight for their freedoms.

Well, it would appear that SOME of her dreams have indeed been realized. This book, with its #hackneyed #ragstoriches plot and its #selfregarding "#SocialWarrior Princess" protagonist is not something I would ever want to read or would seriously recommend. The protagonist is clearly a stand-in for the author, who wishes us to know that she herself has been an #activist lawyer navigating the "systemic conditions" - ie. "hurdles" of #society. It is arguable that self-regarding authors like and including Ms Patel are a kind of hurdle themselves, when their "social awareness" stops with themselves. Since Ms Patel always mentions her campaigning legal background, I think it's fair to clarify that she is in fact a privileged sunshine-listed lawyer working for the City of Toronto and occasionally for Toronto's crisis-prone Community Housing - as a #screener. In short it is arguable that Ms Patel is herself one of the hurdles she claims to navigate. Such absence of insight is fatal for the kind of book she claims to have written. Don't bother! Moreover, I think it's a very interesting question whether any #wonk working for the #CityOfToronto - given its #Dystopian #character - could be a #goodwriter. Meaning #honest. I for one don't think it's even possible. A good writer doesn't necessarily have to be honest, and indeed some great ones have also been great cons - Louis Ferdinand #Celine, is that you? - but a great writer must at least know that he's a crook, when he is one. Of course that self-knowledge would make him less a crook, more a #torturedsoul. Well, now half #instagram will rush out and buy this book from #spite. Back to the #streetsoftoronto. I hate this city. #SuchBigDreams #HoratioAlger #Bollywood

#TCHC "Moving us into the state of a patient in a #nursinghome." Another reason why #Toronto alias TorontoGRAD is a #Dystopia? #Nodemocracy #CityofToronto - they appoint #committees and #bully them and finally #silence them altogether, when they make #criticisms they don't want to hear. Who are THEY? With but a few exceptions, they are #sunshinelist #elitists - ripping us off for over $100 thou each per year - #wonks and #technocrats - #liberals and #leftists. They are the NEW #commissars. They are #militant, #totalitarian, and #antidemocratic. In a word, #FASCIST. Recently a significant portion of them have started to be - or rather claim to be - #WOKE as well. They don't give a damn about you - least of all the #elderly - and most of them are so #EFFING #STUPID they don't even know it....

this mean "aging in place" or WAREHOUSING? That at least was the concern of the (late!) Senior Tenants Advisory Committee.

WRITTEN DEPUTATIONS

Good morning, Chair and Members of this Committee

During these trying times of Covid, many things have occurred. Tenants First and Management are moving forward with their agendas. Unfortunately, it is supposed to be about us but planning is happening without us. The Seniors are the losers.

We have had our dignity taken away. We feel that your agenda is moving us into a state of a patient in a nursing home. Agencies are a wonderful source of programs, but only if the agency is willing to work collaboratively with the tenant leaders.

Most programs by the agencies are not what we want or need. Digital learning or art classes vs. Medical and food services-- is a joke. Community leaders would like to be shown that you believe in us and that we are respected.

We are knowledgeable volunteers. In most senior buildings interaction is the missing point. It is possible for distance to be obtained, when you open a community room for someone to take a book or newspaper to read and be outside of their unit. This stops isolation and depression. Allow two tenants to play chess or cards. Every little thing that an agency does not seem to realize is the important part of programming for seniors.

Agencies give programs that not all seniors want and in many cases cause the state of exclusiveness, rather than the policy of inclusiveness. No consideration is given to what we want.

Tenants First appears to have an agenda of One size fits all. This is so wrong, each building is like a little village with different demographics, different needs and wants, different cultural or social values. Yes I agree certain things should be one size fits all i.e. buildings that are clean, well maintained, in good repair, security being available, co-operative staff. A little compassion goes a long way.. You have forgotten that many of us are proud, independent souls with some life left in us. The dismissive attitudes are concerning.

Many Community leaders are being left to feel that all the work that they have accomplished in their buildings while working collaboratively with staff is a forgotten past.

The chaos of transition is playing a marked impact on your Senior tenants. Change is hard for many. Please remember we should not be pushed aside. There has to be a human element when you are making plans for us, start including us.

Please do not say that you communicate. I beg to differ with you. Every building needs translated material in the top two or three languages and many of us are not computer literate. We like to read and digest the message sent to us by you, in our own time. When we speak up about the things that irk us, do not toss it into the garbage can, we are sending a message of frustration and are asking for honest, responsible help.

Thank you for allowing me to give this deputation.

Stay safe.

Item 2D - Q3 2021 Tenants First Update

Good morning Mr. Chairman, Mr. Sharma, Ms. Penny and Committee Members, Thank you for this opportunity to address the Committee.

My name is Bill Lohman. I am a senior in one the 83 building that will become the Toronto Senior Housing Corporation. I am a member of the Senior Tenants Advisory Committee(STAC) for the Integrated Service Model and I am a long standing member of Seniors Voice.

Let me begin by saying, "I believe the ISM is a great idea that will be a huge benefit to Living in place communities, once it is fully implemented. I have seen much positive effort, on many fronts.
My concern is about what is actually being implemented and how.

This Q3-Tenants First Update claims that, "Robust, collaborative and ongoing communication with tenants and staff is a cornerstone of this project and a successful transition will not be possible without it."
"TCHC is committed doing everything possible to ensure this transition is successful and that TSHC is set up to operate the 83 seniors-designated buildings."

Tenants First, TCH and SHU, all claim in their reports that "tenants will have direct involvement in implementing a system that best meets the needs of seniors. TCHC is working with tenants to develop a new tenant engagement model. The new model will give tenants a say on issues that affect their community and allow tenants to have input on local decision-making." Really?? or is it an erroneous cut + paste from the youth/family engagement refresh because what is promised in these reports is not occurring in the 83 senior communities.
I have included the list of senior's unanswered questions, requested by the TSHC Board. These questions need answers.
Although they are being presented to you through the eyes of senior tenant leaders, these concerns belong to the voices of 14,000 senior tenants who have been siloed and silenced, by a deliberate "For them but not with them" agenda.

These lists are just a representative sampling of the continuing disdainful manner which senior tenant's questions are being treated and the systemic lack of accountability of TCHC and city staff to provide the same level of inclusion, fairness, and regard for SHU tenants as they have/do for the youth and families.

The attached file of unanswered questions stand in stark comparison to the disingenuous reporting that only speaks to advance a unitary agenda and fails to address the absence of any measurable tenant input to the city staff's ISM model, let alone acknowledge the current plight of silenced, isolated senior communities, while allowing for the unscrupulous application of the ISM agenda to abet the self-serving interests of other stakeholders.
It is choosing to be dismissive of the client's rights and 'needs', in order to make an easy quid-pro-quo deal to satisfy the 'wants' of outside agencies by robbing seniors of their common spaces for agency exclusivity.

TCHC staff are not living up to their Service Commitments or the very principles of engagement they expect from tenants:

Respect, Collaboration, Honesty, Integrity, Accountability

The silencing treatment of seniors in the 83 buildings is discriminatory.
And the appropriation of common space access by arrogating the right of tenant leases for agency benefit, without consultation and due process, is fraudulent and actionable!
This committee has accountability for the behavior and actions of staff and their treatment of a vulnerable senior population.
Start correcting the problem.
Stop excluding senior tenants. Their voice is needed on transition committees.

Respectfully submitted,

Bill Lohman

#committees and #bully them and finally #silence them altogether, when they make #criticisms they don't want to hear. Who are #THEY? With but a few exceptions, they are #sunshinelist #elitists - #ripping us off for over $100 thou each per year - #wonks and #technocrats - #liberals and #leftists. They are the NEW #commissars. They are #militant, #totalitarian, and #antidemocratic. Recently a significant portion of them have started to be - or rather claim to be - #WOKE as well. They don't give a damn about you - least of all the #elderly - and most of them are so #EFFING #STUPID they don't even know it.... #SLAVAUKRAINI.... Dear Members,

Thank you for requesting our lists. These questions need answers. Although they are being presented to you through the eyes of senior tenant leaders, these concerns belong to the voices of 14,000 senior tenants who have been siloed and silenced by a "For them but not with them" agenda.

It is important to point out that these lists are just a representative sampling of the continuing disdainful manner which senior tenant's questions are being treated and the systemic lack of accountability of TCHC and city staff to provide the same level of inclusion, fairness, and regard for SHU tenants as they have/do for the youth and families.

While it is frustrating that we can't unload all of our unanswered questions from past years, just to rid them from our brains and be done with it, the hope is that these unanswered lists, prepared for the TSHC Board, will open eyes wide to the dismissive disdain that seniors continue to be subjected to by city and housing staff.

We know, the approach that we are taking right now, is the only positive path forward. As we have suggested and requested, that including the voice of senior tenants is the only positive pathway to a mutually agreeable resolution. We need your insight, integrity, and insistence to stop the steal of our dignity, our voice and our self-worth, as seniors in Toronto.

We stand ready to provide answers to your questions.
Regards,

Bill Lohman

I am attaching a copy of the letter to City Ombudsman that includes TSHC/TCHC management's dismissive reply to it.

Concerns Regarding Seniors

STAC was created as a Senior Tenants Advisory Committee with a mandate of advising staff on the needs of senior tenants. Instead,the committee was never an advisory committee but a brainstorming session for staff's agenda. We were a convenient source that was falsely represented. Staff used the tenant members as pawns stating emphatically that we approved their agenda, minutes and deferred item list.

On many occasions the members raised the question why minutes were not accurate and that there were inserts of information that had never been discussed, reviewed or seen by the members. The parking lot list (deferred items) was never presented to the members till recently and then items listed were not accurate. Some of the items listed were never brought forward to the committee and marked closed without approval by vote by the members of the committee. Numerous items were never included in the list.

The minutes should be marked invalid, as there was never approval of them. You will not find any records of a vote with yeas, nays or abstentions. Committee members raised many concerns that would impact on the senior communities (83 buildings). No responses, review or discussions occurred.

An email was set up at the beginning of the committee in order that there would be communication between the tenant members and staff. This email was called members of STAC and on numerous occasions it was requested that the name be changed to Staff of STAC, since communication only went one way tenants to staff but we were not privy to the material submitted and it was never discussed by staff. Similar was the newsletter which was called Seniors Speak, but turned out to be only subjects that Staff wanted addressed as information. The material suggested for the paper was helpful hints or stories of success in the 83 buildings. This was not a tenant paper but staff directed topics, most of no use to the tenants.

The list is lengthy as staff refused to acknowledge concerns that impact on the senior tenants.
1. Impact of Streets to Home or CAMH persons being moved into senior buildings without being in transitional housing first to learn life skills. This was addressed in deputations to TCHC, The Executive Committee and City Council Seniors were put in danger,(being pushed ,assaulted, spit on and terrorized causing them to become vulnerable, clean well maintained and repaired buildings became bug infested and damaged.

2. Agencies takeover. Using community rooms as their own and locking doors when they left. Programs offered not in the liking of tenants. Agencies claimed that they surveyed the tenants on programming. This is a conflict as no tenants saw the surveys, and the surveys were written, collected and reviewed by the agency involved. Many communities were offered programs that were not in keeping with programs that had been successful and were removed as engagement
3. Hubs were announced and tenants were told that they would be close to buildings not in them. The first HUB was created and staff were allowing the agency plus the catchment area to use the community room. The tenants were horrified and fought hard against this move as it posed a safety issue, and loss of space to the tenants. These tenants went to their local City Councilor and in short order were harassed by staff. Due to their hard work The HUBS are on Hold at this time. Many suggestions of placing HUBS were made by tenants to place them in adjoining spaces i.e. the old OU offices or at the Agency Community Centre.
4. An engagement committee known as TERS was formed with the Manager and Staff of the Refresh and two advocates. Numerous brainstorming sessions occurred. Nine meetings and no approval of the Refresh model which was geared to youth and family buildings was passed as approved by the two tenant advocates. This was untruthful, as the two advocates did submit to the TERS Committee, STAFF of STAC and the General Manager a Senior Refresh model which was never addressed or acknowledged.
5. Concerns that OCHE was being taken away from the Seniors living in the 83 buildings. OCHE was created to protect senior tenants and to help them avoid eviction for rent arrears. Seniors are now in the position of this valuable service till June 2022, while family buildings will benefit. Tenant Services have stated that the new Senior Unit will have to get their own form of OCHE. Seniors have been ignored in their arguments for the need of OCHE after the deadline 2022.
6. On numerous occasions the committee has asked for the impact of the ISM success and failures in the S.E quadrant. This information has never been shared with the advisory committee.
7. Members have reached out to others living in the S.E. and many other tenants who were contacted either did not know about the ISM or have stated that things are worse for them now than ever before.
8. Strict regulations and restrictions have been put on tenants in all common areas, but agencies are allowed to proceed with none of the same restrictions. Tenants' community rooms and/or spaces are being taken away from the tenants contrary to their lease.
9. Old data from surveys(more than five years old) is being used as a basis for programming, not taken into consideration that the same tenants have aged, have more disabilities due to aging, changing demographics in buildings, and a new mixture of younger vs older senior tenants, is not being acknowledged.

10. Many sections of tenants leases are being breached.

11. No tenant input to things that impact them. An example of a new contract has recently been given to Coin-o-Matic instead of Sparkle washers and dryers in senior buildings. The machines by the new vendors are front loaders which make it difficult for senior tenants to use. Seniors can not bend or reach to get laundry. Top loaders are the preferred machines for this age group. Also machines instead of coins were advertised to download on credit cards or interact cards. Many tenants feel unsafe as they have been told by Police Services not to do this as the card could be compromised. Tenants prefer to have the option of putting cash onto a card similar to Presto. Tenants were never notified or asked how this new contract would impact them. (As per the stakeholders agreement)

12. Programs created by Community Leaders and Tenant Reps met with opposition and barriers put in place for tenant events.

13. Safety concerns brought forward for example Oxygen in Use Stickers and identification. Staff adamantly stated no such legislation till tenant advocates produced copies of The Fire Marshall and Toronto Fire Services ACTS No further discussions. Advocates forwarded the concern to R-Path under accessibility to obtain assistance.

14. Seniors Voice, a Senior advocacy group for the last eight years, held special meetings with interested members of STAC to address numerous subjects, not being discussed, that impact on senior tenants. Transparency of the special meetings was provided to Staff through submitted minutes of each meeting with requests to discuss the topics members addressed in the minutes.
No response, no discussion and the items never addressed by management.

The attached lists of unanswered questions stand in stark comparison to management's disingenuous reporting that speaks only to advance their unitary agenda and time-line that fails to address the lack of any measurable tenant input to the city staff's ISM model, let alone acknowledge the current plight of silenced, isolated senior communities, allowing for unscrupulous application of the ISM agenda to abet the self-serving interests of stakeholders.
This is unacceptable, disdainful treatment of a vulnerable senior population. It is choosing to be dismissive of the client's rights and 'needs', in order to make an easy deal to satisfy the 'wants' of outside agencies by robbing seniors of their common spaces for agency exclusivity
Thank you for your time and consideration,

List of Unanswered Questions for the TSHC Board

Thank you for this opportunity to be heard on this matter to air senior tenant concerns about the high-handed manner and imperious approach being lorded over senior tenants and the STAC members appointed by the city to represent them and their interests.

07-03-2019 CUPE79 Tenants First – A New Seniors Housing Corporation
There has been a lack of accountability at Toronto Community Housing and this will not be solved by the creation of a new corporate entity. Staff advise that by creating a separate corporate entity, the City will mitigate risk. We do not agree. While the City may avoid accountability by creating a new corporation, the risk will be passed on to the seniors that our members work with every day.

Tenants First/ SSLTC

Tenants First used the 'Take 5 survey' to establish the priorities expressed by TCH tenants. That same survey was cited to declare the priorities of seniors. The Take 5 survey was city-wide and open to all TCHC tenants, from 9 to 90. Plus it was done in 2015, years before the separation of the seniors entity was made public. (one size fits all priorities?)

The Tenant-Matters(9.1) sections of both shareholder documents were directed by the same set of individuals. One would expect that the section 9.1- Tenant Matters of the Shareholder directions for TCHC tenants would be the same for tenants of the new TSHC. Certain parts are worded differently that alter the intent and scope of accountabilities. What does that say about attitude and the approach toward seniors? Aren't all tenants supposed to be treated the same? Why is one statement obligatory and supportive while the other is perfunctory and austere?

9.1 Tenant-Centered Operations

- shall, in consultation with Tenants and other parties as required, maintain and apply:
TSHC- (a) An eviction prevention policy which aims to balance efforts to ensure the payment of rent while facilitating the tenancies of households experiencing financial difficulties in paying rent;
TCHC- (a) eviction prevention policies which: (i) are (designed to keep individuals and families in their home and help them avoid entering into homelessness; (ii) aim to balance efforts to ensure the payment of rent while facilitating the tenancies of households experiencing financial difficulties in paying rent; and (iii)

For seniors it is: ensuring the payment of rent consistent with the eviction prevention mandate.

For families it is: helping tenants avoid homelessness and comply with TCH's statutory obligation to ensure that Tenants have reasonable enjoyment of their rental unit and the residential complex.

What happened to the statutory obligation to keep seniors in their home to help them avoid homelessness?
Why has it been removed from the Seniors Shareholder's Direction, just like the transfer of OCHE, which was created specifically mandated to help mitigate senior tenant homelessness, following a review of Al Gosling's death?

> TSHC- (e) Measures to ensure that Tenants have reasonable enjoyment of their rental unit and the residential complex in which their rental unit is located in a manner consistent with its eviction prevention mandate(?)
> TCHC- (e) Measures to ensure that Tenants have reasonable enjoyment of their rental unit and the residential complex, comply with TCH's statutory obligation to ensure that Tenants have reasonable enjoyment of their rental unit and the residential complex;

Please explain why Seniors reasonable enjoyment is being equated to and qualified by "a manner consistent with an 'eviction prevention mandate", which is arbitrarily subjective and abnegates stipulated accountability, versus, the statutory obligation to ensure that tenants in family buildings have reasonable enjoyment?
If there is a statutory obligation to ensure tenant's reasonable enjoyment, please explain why seniors are no longer deserving of or entitled to the same obligatory considerations they had as TCHC tenants?

Notwithstanding COVID-19, the seniors population has been in a state of limbo about their future since the Senior councils were disbanded by you, shunned and derided by the engagement Refresh, two years ago. How do you explain this lack of communication with seniors communities?
When Tenants First announced the urgent need to install new Tenant Directors through an interim process that necessitated by-passing the established democratic process of tenants choosing their representatives, claiming some unspecified time constraints. The almost one year delay, by you, to replace tenant directors by election belies the given rationale. And now you plan to eliminate the ability of tenants to elect who speaks for them, permanently?
The question seeking to know who has responsibility for providing recreation for seniors communities, did not get a reply. I did not see the word 'recreation' written in any of Tenants First, TCH, or ISM documents related to seniors. Can you explain why recreation for seniors is not being addressed, yet, it is a stated front-page and given priority consideration for youth and families?

How can you acknowledge the unique needs of TCH youth with engagement pilots, funding, professional support systems, grants, input&access, plus a separate youth council that includes a 25%+ voice on all Refresh oversight decision-making, while at the same time, disband senior councils, un-fund senior engagement, and reject repeated requests to accommodate the engagement needs of elderly senior tenants? I am reminding you that OCHE was a program created for Seniors.
Therefore, please tell me and my fellow Seniors--Why seniors are losing OCHE? Because OCHE was created by TCHC, You say that it's theirs and will stay with the youth and families. Do you really think it is a Wise decision?
The Refresh was also created by TCHC but, this, you are imposing on Seniors.

01-25-2021 Thoughts for our ISM Q/A discussions

SSC 'deep dive' component of the 01-25 agenda
The SSC 'deep dive' questions remind me of a pilot project that generated an engagement profile for staff w/ guidelines and a positive engagement approach that could be useful for detailing how the SSC role engages with a community and defining their accountabilities and I want to run these ideas by you first for your insights and their appropriateness to the agenda. I'm not sure how deep you will want to dive into the SSC role, are they in-line with the model's vision and expectations of the position STAC mgmt.

04-15-2021 Questions HUB?
At the 'Hub" meeting, I asked for the list of agencies, broken down by region and their services, to help the SSCs identify available local engagement opportunities for senior communities. So again I ask, "Is there a list?" And "If not, why not?"
Where are the senior specific policies that address the psycho-social and recreational needs of seniors?
The word "Privacy" is a 'Slam-the-Door-Shut' communication stopper that is abused by staff to avoid responding to tenant inquiries. What is being done to address the staff misuse and abuse of this policy?

Why wasn't the Senior Tenants Advisory Committee(STAC) included or even alerted about this Hub agenda?
Please explain why it's OK for your Hubs to ignore the primacy of the four strategic pillars- the safety of tenants, especially buildings that are full of vulnerable seniors?
How are you going to assure there is equity in the buildings and equality of service amongst ISM communities?

How will you make sure tenants and communities receive equal access and treatment from agencies that ignore your principles and only cater to their group? Jaipreet, STAC

04-26-2021 You selected and asked us to advise

This ISM provides no method of engagement or communication for seniors and this accountability framework provides no avenue for redress of grievance for the concerns and issues of vulnerable seniors. In fact, as written, the role of seniors in this ISM is that of a customer only, not a participant and certainly not as a stakeholder in designing their 'Living in Place' future.

The announced transfer of OCHE and complete severance of the SHU from TCHC, means that all the SHU governance, policy and protocols, like the OCHE, will need to be done anew. Why aren't we talking about that?
The reality of past history of tenant/staff committee relationships begs the question raised at the first STAC meeting and repeatedly since, is still waiting for a direct and honest answer: So, again, is your plan to heed our thoughtful advice and implement STAC member suggestions to benefit senior communities in implementing the ISM time-line or is this exercise just a rubber stamp to justify the current, unwavering, linear approach of your project?
How about providing some transparency to this committee, or will you continue to follow Tenants First and SSLTC strategy that, 'Seniors don't need to know"?
SHU mgmt.

05-04-2021 Deputation to Tenant Service Committee

Tenants were notified 7 days before the council votes, and given no prior knowledge or input to the items content or voice on the long term implication of the actions that Tenants First has advanced. Why wasn't the Senior Tenants Advisory Committee(STAC) included or even alerted about these critical issues?

Do you not see a double standard between the privileges and approach used by Tenants First to inspire and empower TCHC youth compared to their blatant disregard for senior concerns and the siloed wall of silence around seniors communities?

Seniors have been isolated, dejected, uninformed, unaware and voiceless while empowered youth coordinate with staff on a model that has youth interests deciding how seniors will be engaged in the activities to be provided to senior communities?

The complete silence of the Tenant Services Committee to provide honest answers to seniors questions amounts to a tacit complicity in a scheme to deprives seniors of their 'right to know' and be involved in deciding their future engagement, with the same level of staff support and the same degree of professional assistance that was/is provided to youth and family buildings.
Do you honestly feel seniors have been treated with the same level of respect and consideration by City and TCHC staff as the youth and family buildings?
Doesn't this amount to discrimination against senior tenants and their best interests? This is Ageism!   Tenants First, TSC, SHU

05-10-2021   Tenants First and TCH staff sold Seniors
Why was the original promise of 16 senior hubs, reduced to 5 and then only 4, that, unbenounced to tenants, are open to the catchment area(¼ of the city's senior population)?

Who approved appropriation of the common spaces guaranteed in tenant leases through a 'backroom' deal to give outside agencies exclusive access to common spaces in the buildings, and take total control of the community engagement programming to benefit the agency and their outside clients?
Senior tenants raised concerns about their engagement experiences with agencies; the encroachment on tenant's right to use of space, commandeering and controlling community space and programs, and a long documented history of disrespectful agency behavior and treatment of non-client tenants. Why are decisions being made to abnegate the voice of tenants in deciding their own community engagement?
Where is the concern for seniors needs and wellness that is being overshadowed and undermined to accommodate the interests of agencies and the goals of city staff?
Why is there NO consideration for senior tenant's interests by those who are mandated and tasked to represent them?
Opening Hubs to the outside community disregards and nullifies the very security and privacy that 'locked-entry' building protection is suppose to provide elderly tenants. How does this lack of empathy and due-consideration for senior tenant safety provide any sense of respect or dignity to senior tenants?
Don't you think it's time to let us help you help us?
Shouldn't seniors be informed and actively participate in the process of change in their buildings?
Why have senior tenants been siloed and excluded from any meaningful participation in the development of the ISM?
Where is the collaboration with tenants in the Integrated Service Model?
Collaboration, even any substantive communication with senior communities has been absent for years. Almost everything presented is 'about seniors but not with' seniors. Why? TCH/SHU mgmt

05-28-2021 Ombudsman Toronto - William Lohman
What is the strategy behind not informing or including seniors in the discussions and development of the Integrated Service Model(ISM) with the same due regard provided the youth and family engagement model, by Tenants First and TCHC?
It would appear that seniors leaders of each community are expected to be the thread that sews and binds the Integrated Service Model(ISM) and nonexistent Engagement Refresh together; tasked with maintaining an open communication channel that serves as the core link to senior communities for the drop-in management staff. Where is the full-time, extra staffing and added supports written about and promised?

Why is the City and TCH management plan for 'senior wellness hubs' exactly what every senior community said they do not want; interloping agencies and outsiders in their buildings controlling the common space and denying the access their tenant's leases give them access to?
This hub agenda is just one documented instance resulting from failed tactics that highlight the lack of respectful consideration, transparency and accountability from this ongoing strategy to silos seniors behind a wall of silence. Why are you keeping seniors from participating in the design of their own 'Living in Place' Futures, as promised?

06-30-2021 If you have a few minutes_ Ombudsman
I was informed that the 'Tenant Services' at TCHC, the tenant facing and engagement department, no longer exists. There was no answer to my question, "Then, why is there a Tenant Services Committee meeting, on July 5?".
Is it because the tenants in the seniors portfolio have been 'canceled' by TCH Refresh and siloed by the Seniors Housing management team, run by the city's project fixers, who openly stated to STAC members that our concerns about inclusion, the ISM's transition and problems occurring in our seniors communities were dismissed as concerns for someone else to fix and take care of? Because, that is what we have been hearing for the past three+ years, "Your concerns need to be addressed and taken care of by someone else. Sorry, there is nothing I can do."

TCH, Refresh, SHU

We have had no active engagement support, no active CSC, and no active engagement management since July 2019. Add to that, Seniors Housing management's condescending, dismissive and demeaning treatment of the senior tenant volunteers who were selected to be advisers to implementing the ISM into the 83 seniors buildings. It encapsulates the ongoing disdain for the opinion and ideas of seniors that are contrary to the Tenants First agenda . It shows an indifferent, 'one-size-fits-all' disregard for the dynamics and wellness of senior communities. This is contemptible!
Have you forgotten that low-income, vulnerable seniors are classified as an equity seeking group?
This Tenant Services Committee oversight has listened to numerous deputations that speak of poor communication, lack of staff accountability, lack of consideration for senior specific needs and the absence of senior input and inclusion in engagement Refresh policies. How can this body, sit by idly and say nothing to repeated calls of concern about bias treatment and ageism against Toronto Housing's senior tenants?

How would you like the entire catchment area being invited to hang around your front door?

The honest answer: It would be a harrowing imposition to your life and you would not tolerate it for one minute! The tenants of the 83 seniors buildings, that are slated to be open-house hubs, are facing this 'very real imposition and threat to their privacy, safety, well-being and the dignity in their lives, simply want to say, "Please don't destroy our senior communities". 08-2021 It could just be that it's rainy weather

Early on, during the first heat-wave, concerns were raised about the lack of adequate communication to alert seniors that cooling rooms were open and suggested signage locations were offered that would better inform senior tenants. Why wasn't that advice applied for the final 2 day heat-wave?

Some tenants saw the whiteboard sign announcing the cooling room and tried to gain entry, only to find their fobs couldn't open the door. Why was the room kept locked?

The security guard was seen sitting on benches out in front of the building and hanging out in the Recreation room, alone, playing with their smart phone. Why wasn't security posted at the door?

What was the purpose of having a security guard inside a locked room?

Do you have any idea the damaging message that this sends to already marginalized seniors communities?

Now that stage 2 permits small vaccinated groups to gather and meet, isn't it about time to unlock our recreation room and the craft room for seniors, after 15+ months of lock-down isolation?

When will we see a working intercom system at Saranac, so seniors can receive their evening pharmacy deliveries without getting dressed and walking to the main entrance to collect it, not to mention the other after-hour deliveries and visitors coming to the building?

What about delays to EMS' ability to gain quick entry to the building at night, when the front door isn't wedged open?
The entry phone to this building has been off the hook since early Spring with an apology sign that the system is being upgraded. That sign is now wrinkled, tattered, and smudged. We have heard nothing. When will this critical entry system be fixed and usable again? TCHC/SHU mgmt.

09-02-2021 safety concern Oxygen in use

09-12-2021 concern regarding the meeting Sept 13th
Right from the beginning we have objected to the minutes. Will you be stating that the STAC members approved everything as it's been done in prior minutes? Why is there a lack of answers and effort to keep the group informed and up to date on initiatives being implemented by staff? STAC

09-14-2021 TSC Deputation

What is stated and promised in these Tenants First reports do not relay what is occurring on the ground. They are filled with assertions that imply everything is just fine and going according to plan. Whose plan and benefiting whom, because for senior tenants, it is not clear?
The design and focus of the ISM is on addressing the 'living in place' needs of the community, only, not the needs of still active seniors. Why is there NO senior tenant representation on any transition working groups?

04-09-2021 Questions for Julio
How can you expect seniors to feel they're being included and heard?
Why is the onus for a community's engagement, as defined by Refresh Community Action Plans, placed squarely on the backs of the tenant leaders, Much time and effort has been spent generating accountabilities for tenant leaders, why are there no written accountabilities for staff?

Julio, Refresh Engagement mgr.

08-25-2021 Meeting follow-up reminder and Saranac weekly programs
You and I had a phone conversation on July 28. The purpose of the call was to discuss my indignation and concern about the past CSC for OUB North, his derogatory treatment of tenant reps and questionable PB misfeasance to their communities. Julio, Refresh Engagement mgr.

09-22-2021 Hi Julio
I understand there was a meeting last week, to inform interested seniors about the engagement TAF for seniors. Why weren't the STAC members, who met with you on several occasions to suggest changes to the Refresh model and alternative engagement approaches, included on your list of selected attendees?
Over the past two years, how many TAF requests for senior initiatives have come across your desk?
How many senior funding requests have you approved?
How does that compare with the TAF requests and reward granted for the youth and family buildings?
Would it show a program that could be a hallmark of the fairness and balance promoted in the Refresh? Julio, TCH Refresh mgr.

10-23-2021 have enough 'utmost'
'Communication is of the utmost importance'. At meetings, you say you agree with that, really?
When am I going to have enough 'utmost' to receive the courtesy of your reply?
Why weren't the STAC members, who met with you on several occasions to suggest changes to the Refresh model and alternative engagement approach, included on your list of selected attendees?
You are the person accountable for tenant engagement with the signing authority for all TAFs. Over the past two years, how many TAF requests for senior initiatives have come across your desk? How many senior funding requests have you approved? How does that compare with the TAF requests and reward granted for the youth and family buildings?
Does it show the hallmark program of integrity and inclusion promoted in the Refresh? What about this unresolved issue of mistrust and accountability?
Actions do speak louder than words! Where is your integrity?
Julio, Refresh Engagement mgr.

Words Worth Scrutiny:
The definitions of certain words need clarification:

Wellness – subjective well-being: physical health, psychological state, personal beliefs, social relationships, environment. (The ISM only addresses the physical components for aging in place and city strategic priorities.
The ISM accountability framework totally ignores the human community.

Accountability – It is interesting that the ISM is framed with accountabilities amongst all parties, with none to senior tenants. The Tenant Engagement Refresh is nothing but a governance structure for tenants.
-In the youth/family buildings: With CSC support, the focus is: on community building, empowerment and recreational activities.
-For seniors: It was designed to service the outside strategic goals and corporate expectations of the city, while responsibility for the community wellness piece, by default/download, is put on senior tenants leaders with accountability to the SSC.
Tenant Action Funds(TAF) serve as a tool that compels/impels the compliance of senior leaders to sustain the ISM for the SSC, in order to get their funding for tenant-led engagement initiatives.

Integrated – combining or coordinating separate elements so as to provide a harmonious, interrelated whole; organized or structured so that constituent units function cooperatively:

Review – is a formal assessment or examination of something with the possibility or intention of instituting change if necessary.
No way can then STAC be considered as an honest review of something Discrimination- is any practice or behavior that has a negative effect based on protected grounds. May arise as a result of differential treatment. If the effect on the individual/group is to deny or limit access to housing accommodation, goods, services, facilities, etc. that are available to others, is discrimination.

Silo Thinking

Silo Mentality in the workplace occurs when people specifically conclude that it is not their responsibility to coordinate their activities with peers or other groups. often results in creating some kind of mini organizations within a larger organization. This attitude is seen as reducing the organization's efficiency and, at worst, contributing to a damaged corporate culture.

Teams operate independently, without collaboration with other teams, no executive oversight, no alignment with business goals and standard operating procedure. Organizations have traditionally used the "silo" approach to risk management that looks at the individual performance of a business unit instead of a more holistic approach that looks at the long-term impact on risk (or in this case, senior tenant wellness.)

Psychologists define compartmentalization as a defense mechanism that we use to avoid the anxiety that arises from the clash of contradictory values or emotions. Compartmentalization can also narrow our thinking. People don't intentionally act differently in different settings or try to pigeonhole people. But the bad news is it happens all the same, most dysfunctional compartmentalization is unconscious.

2010 LeSage Report - Promoting Successful tenancies: Best Practices-

TCHC's role Research shows that respectful, trusting relationships do more to promote successful tenancies than any other factor. "It does means staff are respectful and trustworthy in all their dealings and uphold the principles in this protocol."- pg3

Privacy Confidentiality will inevitably be compromised when behavior or a crisis has affected an entire community. "It is appropriate to reveal publicly available information that affects witnesses and neighbors(community), such as: death, hospitalizations, steps by TCH or police to protect tenants, etc." - pg7

What has changed -

Tenants no longer get to elect their directors to the board; they are selected and not accountable to tenants.

Seniors lost their connection, the free exchange of ideas, and decision-making body when their OU councils were shut down and disbanded.

Seniors have no seat at their building ISM management round-table that will coordinate, deliver and oversee all building functions, including the integrated service delivery, and again, seniors are given no voice in their own community governance.

However, they do get to a say on the 3 Community Action Plan(CAP), provided they are in-line with strategic priorities, for which they will be accountable directly to the SSC.

The sad reality is that for many communities, that those priorities have been and will be decided for them by staff.

Isolate and disenfranchise seniors and zero senior tenant input on the ISM can turn into big problems of communication that hamper the cohesion of any meaningful and worthwhile tenant/staff enterprise. It sour relations, weakens trust in management leadership, and it deadens the motivation of seniors who might want to help you help us, but feel the TCHC staff culture is incapable of living up to their Service Commitments and the very principles of engagement they expect tenants to affirm/obey/adhere and live up to:
Respect, Collaboration, Honesty, Integrity, Accountability

The silencing treatment of seniors in the 83 buildings is discriminatory.

The appropriation of common space access, arrogating the right of tenant leases for agency benefit, without consultation and due process, is fraudulent and actionable! So, WHY?

Thank you for the opportunity to present this list of unanswered questions to TSHC Board members. It is my hope that this partial list shows the deliberate policy of dismissive disregard for the concerns of senior tenants, by city staff, and at every decision-making level, of TCHC/SHU management.

Possible changes to make from this point forward

1/ STAC

Q - When is STAC going to be formed? Started asking this in the fall of 2019. At least 6 times we were told "soon" by both City staff and TCHC staff, until a callout was finally done in fall of 2020 -a year and a half after mandated by City Council.

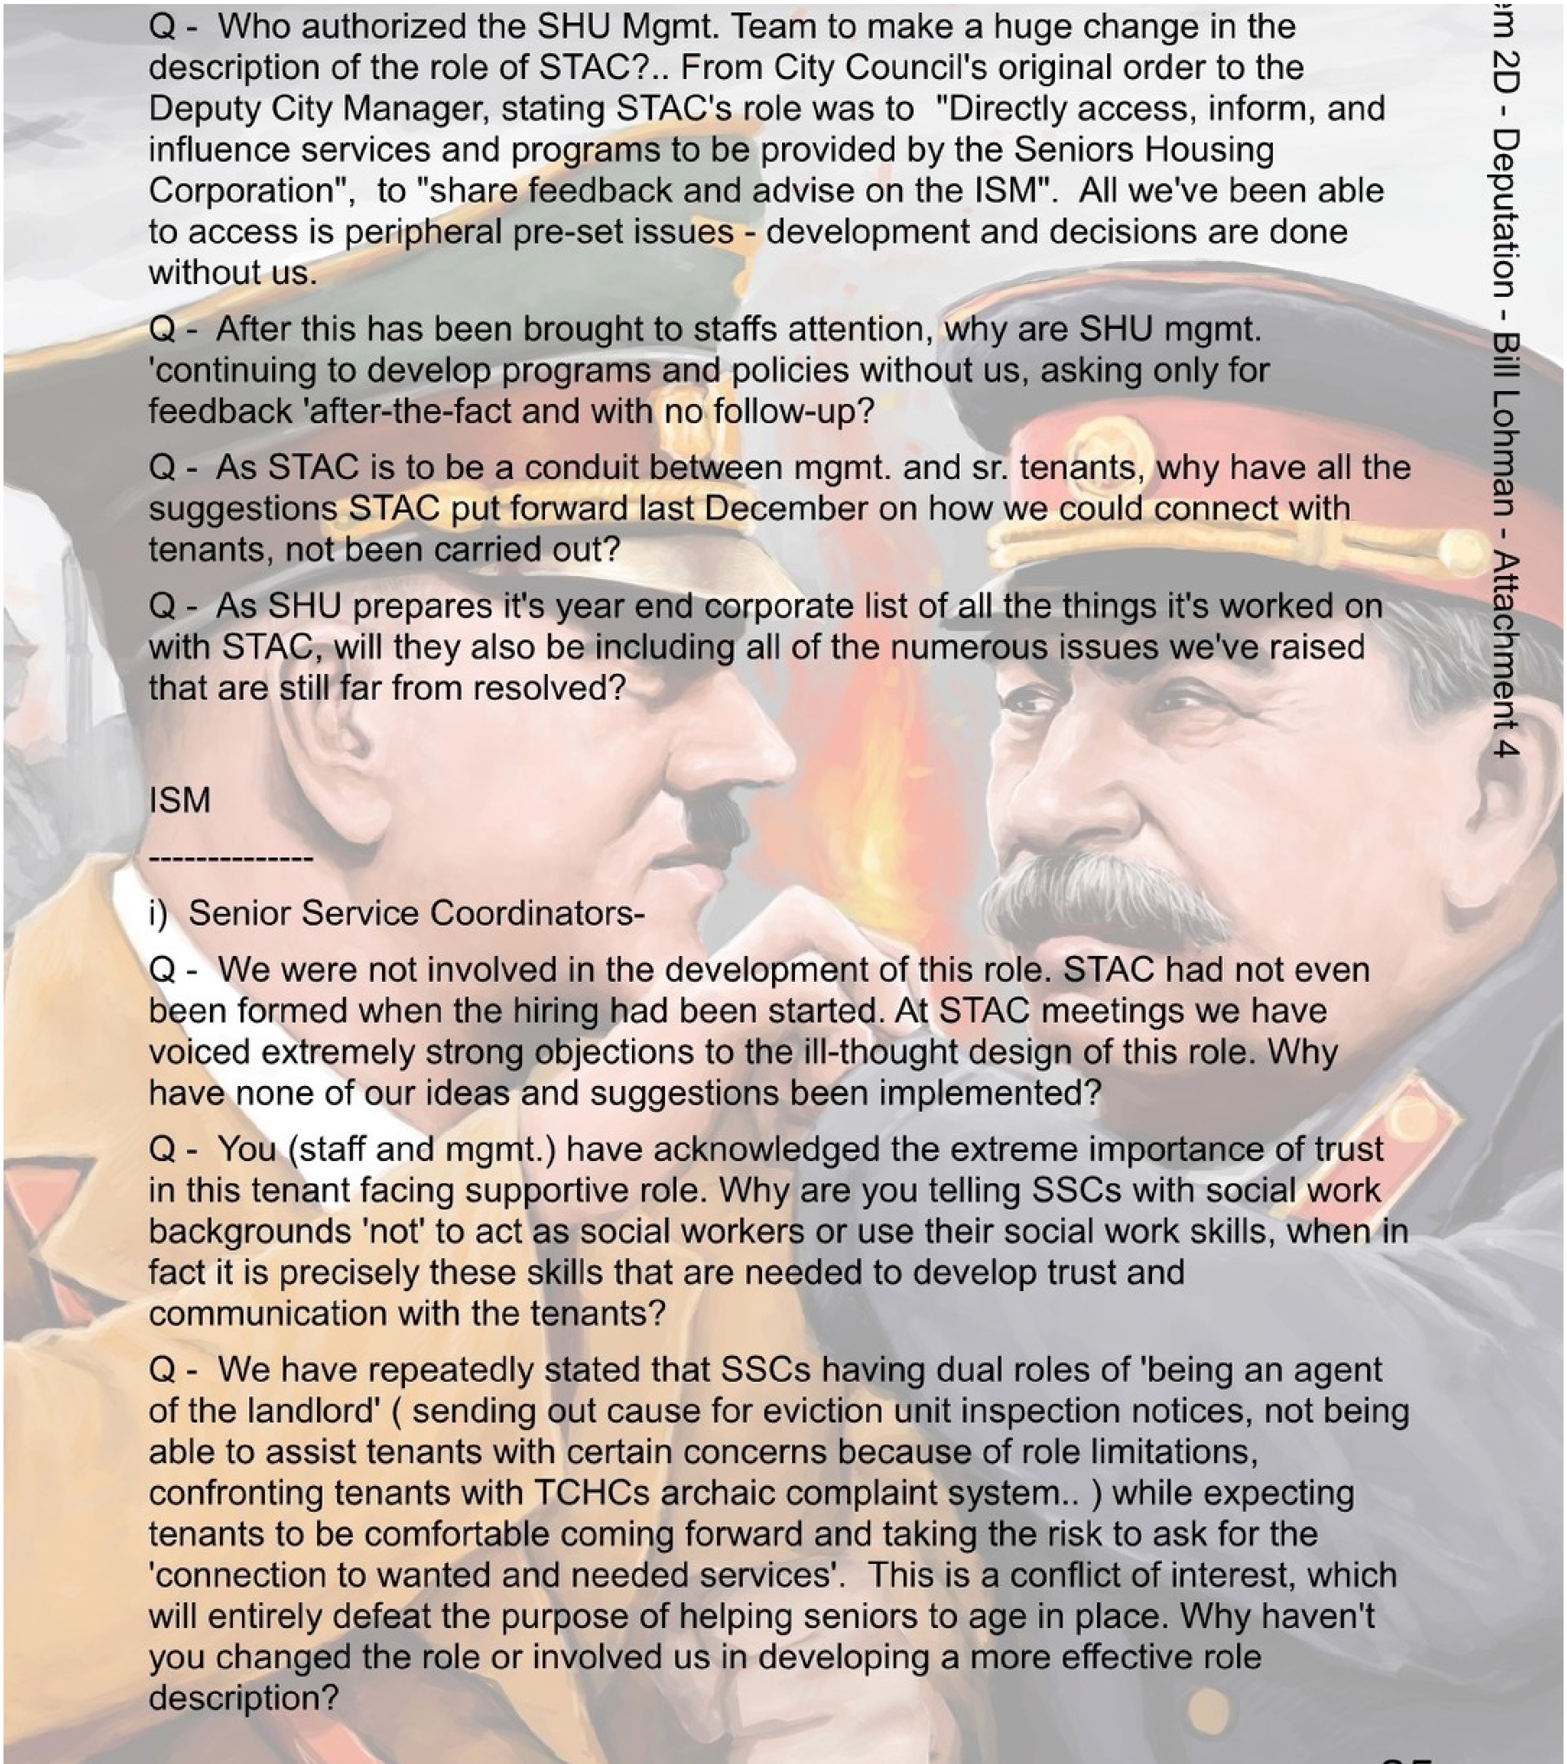

By this time a lot of the early foundational development around seniors housing had already been done, with no senior tenant input.

Q - Why was it decided by SHU staff prior to our 1st STAC meeting, that STAC would only operate for 1 year, when neither Tenants First nor the City Appointment Office had this limitation Set?

Q - When this was raised at out 1st STAC meeting staff agreed to change it to 'assess'. Now that we've reached the 1 year mark, why are they assessing it without us being involved in the discussion?

Q - Why have we been given pre-set agendas for each meeting instead of contributing items for the agendas?

Q - Why have almost all of the agenda topics been discussed and fully developed by SHU/TCHC/City of Toronto 'before' being brought to STAC?

Q - Who authorized the SHU Mgmt. Team to make a huge change in the description of the role of STAC?.. From City Council's original order to the Deputy City Manager, stating STAC's role was to "Directly access, inform, and influence services and programs to be provided by the Seniors Housing Corporation", to "share feedback and advise on the ISM". All we've been able to access is peripheral pre-set issues - development and decisions are done without us.

Q - After this has been brought to staffs attention, why are SHU mgmt. 'continuing to develop programs and policies without us, asking only for feedback 'after-the-fact and with no follow-up?

Q - As STAC is to be a conduit between mgmt. and sr. tenants, why have all the suggestions STAC put forward last December on how we could connect with tenants, not been carried out?

Q - As SHU prepares it's year end corporate list of all the things it's worked on with STAC, will they also be including all of the numerous issues we've raised that are still far from resolved?

i) Senior Service Coordinators-

Q - We were not involved in the development of this role. STAC had not even been formed when the hiring had been started. At STAC meetings we have voiced extremely strong objections to the ill-thought design of this role. Why have none of our ideas and suggestions been implemented?

Q - You (staff and mgmt.) have acknowledged the extreme importance of trust in this tenant facing supportive role. Why are you telling SSCs with social work backgrounds 'not' to act as social workers or use their social work skills, when in fact it is precisely these skills that are needed to develop trust and communication with the tenants?

Q - We have repeatedly stated that SSCs having dual roles of 'being an agent of the landlord' (sending out cause for eviction unit inspection notices, not being able to assist tenants with certain concerns because of role limitations, confronting tenants with TCHCs archaic complaint system..) while expecting tenants to be comfortable coming forward and taking the risk to ask for the 'connection to wanted and needed services'. This is a conflict of interest, which will entirely defeat the purpose of helping seniors to age in place. Why haven't you changed the role or involved us in developing a more effective role description?

Q - There are tenants with multiple (complex) needs, some of which actually involve the landlord. How can SSCs ethically represent the best interests of the tenant while being expected to represent the landlord?

Q - At the time the 1st SSCs were being hired, TCHC imposed DRASTIC cuts to all building staff (supers and maintenance) in all of the small and mid-sized buildings. Tenants are outraged and disheartened, and the related issues are countless. (in 1 bldg.,2 lists sent to area mgr. working on 3rd).

How can you possibly claim, that adding new part-time SSCs is an 'enhanced' staffing model, when in fact senior tenants have far fewer staff than before?

ii) MoH LHIN Care Coordinators (HCCs) -

Q - Since HCCs were supposed to be in place and assigned to bldgs. in the SE Region when ISM was implemented last December, why has not 1 tenant ever met them or ever heard of them?

Q - Why have none of them ever been to any of the buildings they're supposed to be coordinating the care for?

Q - Why did it take over 6 months for the SSCs to be given the names of the HCCs they're supposed to be working with?

Q - Why when I contacted them to introduce myself as a member of STAC, asking for a conversation about regional services for senior tenants, did they not reply?

iii) Regional Senior Service Providers (Agencies) -

Q - Each of the 4 seniors housing Regions has formed or is forming its own health care Table/Hub to discuss the needs of seniors in the Seniors Housing Corporation. Why, after repeatedly asking, are we being excluded from the discussions and planning at these health care Tables/Hubs?

Q - Why are we 'still' asking (from Sept.2020) what are the criteria being used (and why aren't we involved in setting it) to determine which health care agencies are going to be used, and which would be the most beneficial to the tenants?

Q - Why are senior tenants/STAC being asked for input on items of smaller relevance (do we prefer craft painting or pole walking) and not being able to discuss or provide input of greater relevance around agencies who provide services (eg: how much time and space will your service require? can your agency provide both nursing and addiction supports? how many case workers do you have on staff? what is the average wait time for service? can you connect us with educational presenters? Have your staff done any training in geriatrics? mental health issues? how will you resolve conflict? will you communicate with tenant leaders in whole bldg. services?) ?

Q - Why is SHU Mgmt., along with Access and Support Mgmt. currently involved in developing program plans with service providers, which take over the use of 'our' legally designated common areas, without asking senior tenants/STAC how much of their common area time and space they are willing to give up?

Q - In Q2 of 2019 TCHC dropped all formal opportunities for senior tenants to be part or communicate through the Ten. Eng. System. (Ten. Eng. Refresh revolves around the 16 hubs for the family buildings). Our CSCs were re-assigned and our Tenant Councils were disbanded. Why have neither Julio nor Jaipreet officially or respectfully acknowledged this, so that we can move forward, with or without them, to design and be part of a new seniors tenant engagement system?

Q - Why have Access and Support/SHU Mgmt. recently designed a new role, for which they are hiring 4 new staff, and erroneously calling it a 'Tenant Engagement' role? Where was STAC input?

Q - Since we've been 'told' the primary task of this role will be to streamline Use of Space Applications, for both tenants and outside agencies. Since we are not involved in any discussions around the outside agencies, how can that possibly be applicable to Tenant Engagement?

Q - We have voiced several strong objections to 'mgmt. designed' new Use of Space Policies. One of these objections is their assumption that it's OK to expect tenants to apply to use their own space. What is being done about our objections and why is this development still moving forward and still not including us?

Q - Has anyone in mgmt. even checked the R.T.A. or Lease Agreements before starting this?

Q - It's my understanding that outside agency contracts will not happen until the new Seniors Corporation takes over in June 2022, so why is mgmt. working behind the scenes, with no STAC involvement, arranging programs with these agencies?

Q - In the valid effort to coordinate service providers, is there a possibility here that 'streamlining' Use of Space Applications will turn into an agency/mgmt. priority, over the true priority of tenants needs and rights?

Q - Will the false title of Ten. Eng. for this new role a) Simply confuse Board Members, new mgmt. and tenants, as well as b) serve to further complicate the severance of the old Ten. Eng. System?

3/ HUBS

Q - In May 2021 a special STAC mtg. was held with SHU Mgmt. around major STAC concerns over the TCHC/City of Toronto designed Senior Hubs.... security, fears of full agency-takeover of space, loss of existing services, loss of tenant-run programs,transportation...Why, immediately after that, did SHU Mgmt. do a presentation to TCHCs Ten. Services Committee, with not even one mention of the concerns and issues STAC had brought forward!? And in fact, present a plan with a full agency-takeover.

Q - Yes, the Sr.Hub plan was put on hold, but does it not still speak to the question of integrity in presentations to the Board?

Q - Again, back to criteria in choosing service providing agencies, why was one agency already chosen months before then, with no tenant/STAC involvement on how decisions are being made?

Q - When Hubs were placed on hold we were told by mgmt. that it would be going to a consultant to review. Then we found out through other sources that there wasn't going to be a consultant. So when asked again, SHU Mgmt. said it was back in the hands of the City. In a follow up (Aug./Sept. this yr.)we were told the same thing. So I emailed Tenants First (Jenn St. Louis) to ask about progress. I was told that SHU was handling it. ??

Q - Why are we being excluded from the conversations and development of the Hubs?

4/ RECOMMENDATIONS-

This will not cover everything, but it's a suggested start.

- STAC be restored to it's original purpose and intention, as directed by City Council in July 2019.

- One or more STAC members have access to real time or recorded minutes of SHU Mgmt. Team formal meetings.

- One or more STAC members have access to real time or recorded minutes of the Joint Operations Table with SHU/Access and Support, SSLTC, Tenants First, Health Partnerships and City of Toronto.

- One STAC member/Tenant Leader per Region be given access to Regional Healthcare Provider Hubs/meetings.

- SHU/Mgr. of Access and Support to provide STAC with previously requested list of all current Senior Tenant Reps/ Leaders, so that information, as per our role, can be disseminated to/from tenants more efficiently.

- One or more STAC members/Tenant Leaders be privy to information and granted the opportunity to be heard, in matters being discussed/negotiated by TCHC/TSHC regarding Shared Services Agreements. This should be in real time so that contributions can be made prior to finalizations.

(I believe since you'll be hearing the bright side from upper mgmt. it would also be beneficial to all to hear how different policies, services and operations actually look in practice.)

Thank you for your time and service.

Issues Tenants face:

1) New laundry equipment: The fiasco switching from Sparkle to Coinamatic.
   a. Many have to mail in a request for a refund on the now defunct Sparkle cards, some with owed over $20. With the machine only accepting rounded-off dollars of $5, $10 and $20, and the washers and dryers not rounding off but being $1.75, we knew that it wouldn't be the tenants coming out ahead.
   b. The new machines are front load, seniors must bend over to load laundry. Oct 30: Super told a tenant the machines would be switched to top load, but tenants are needing to wash in the meantime, and many are struggling or simply can't do it. We could have had it right in the first place.
   c. The cost for machines at the Danforth side is $.25 more than the smaller Strathmore laundry room, causing crowding during COVID.
   d. New machines hold much less than the previous ones: tenant complained he could wash only 3 pr of pants. Another reports needing to spend twice as much to do the same amount of laundry.
   e. Most tenants are unable to make it to Danforth and Coxwell to the public coin laundry.
   f. In removing the Sparkle machines, tenants note that the new tiling had stopped at the edge of the Sparkle machine. When the machine was removed, there's a hole left in the floor, as the Coinamatic didn't install their machine over the hole.
   g. Putting money on the card assumes seniors have either credit or debit cards. Many knowing of ongoing fraud don't use either and use cash only. Most seniors do not use the internet or do online banking to keep an eye on potential fraudulent use of their information. Three weeks after installation, the machine will now accept cash, but again, rounded off in dollars when the washers and dryers end in $.75.
   h. A tenant learned that these machines apparently use less water! Senior tenants continue to struggle with staying clean and healthy within their modest budgets in the name of TCHC saving a few bob.

i. Update Nov 1: tenant reports doing two housecoats separately, didn't spin dry; she reports contacting Coinamatic (Cynthia) who told her that the machines were not designed to launder bedding (which seniors and their caregivers need to do on the premises).

Solution: with two tenant reps in our building and an active tenants' association/problem solvers, and, of course, STAC, it would have been very easy BEFORE ramming through a new system to review with seniors who use the machines to determine what would work and what wouldn't. Once again, we're totally ignored when we could be useful.

2) Remodeling, renovation, construction, repairs:

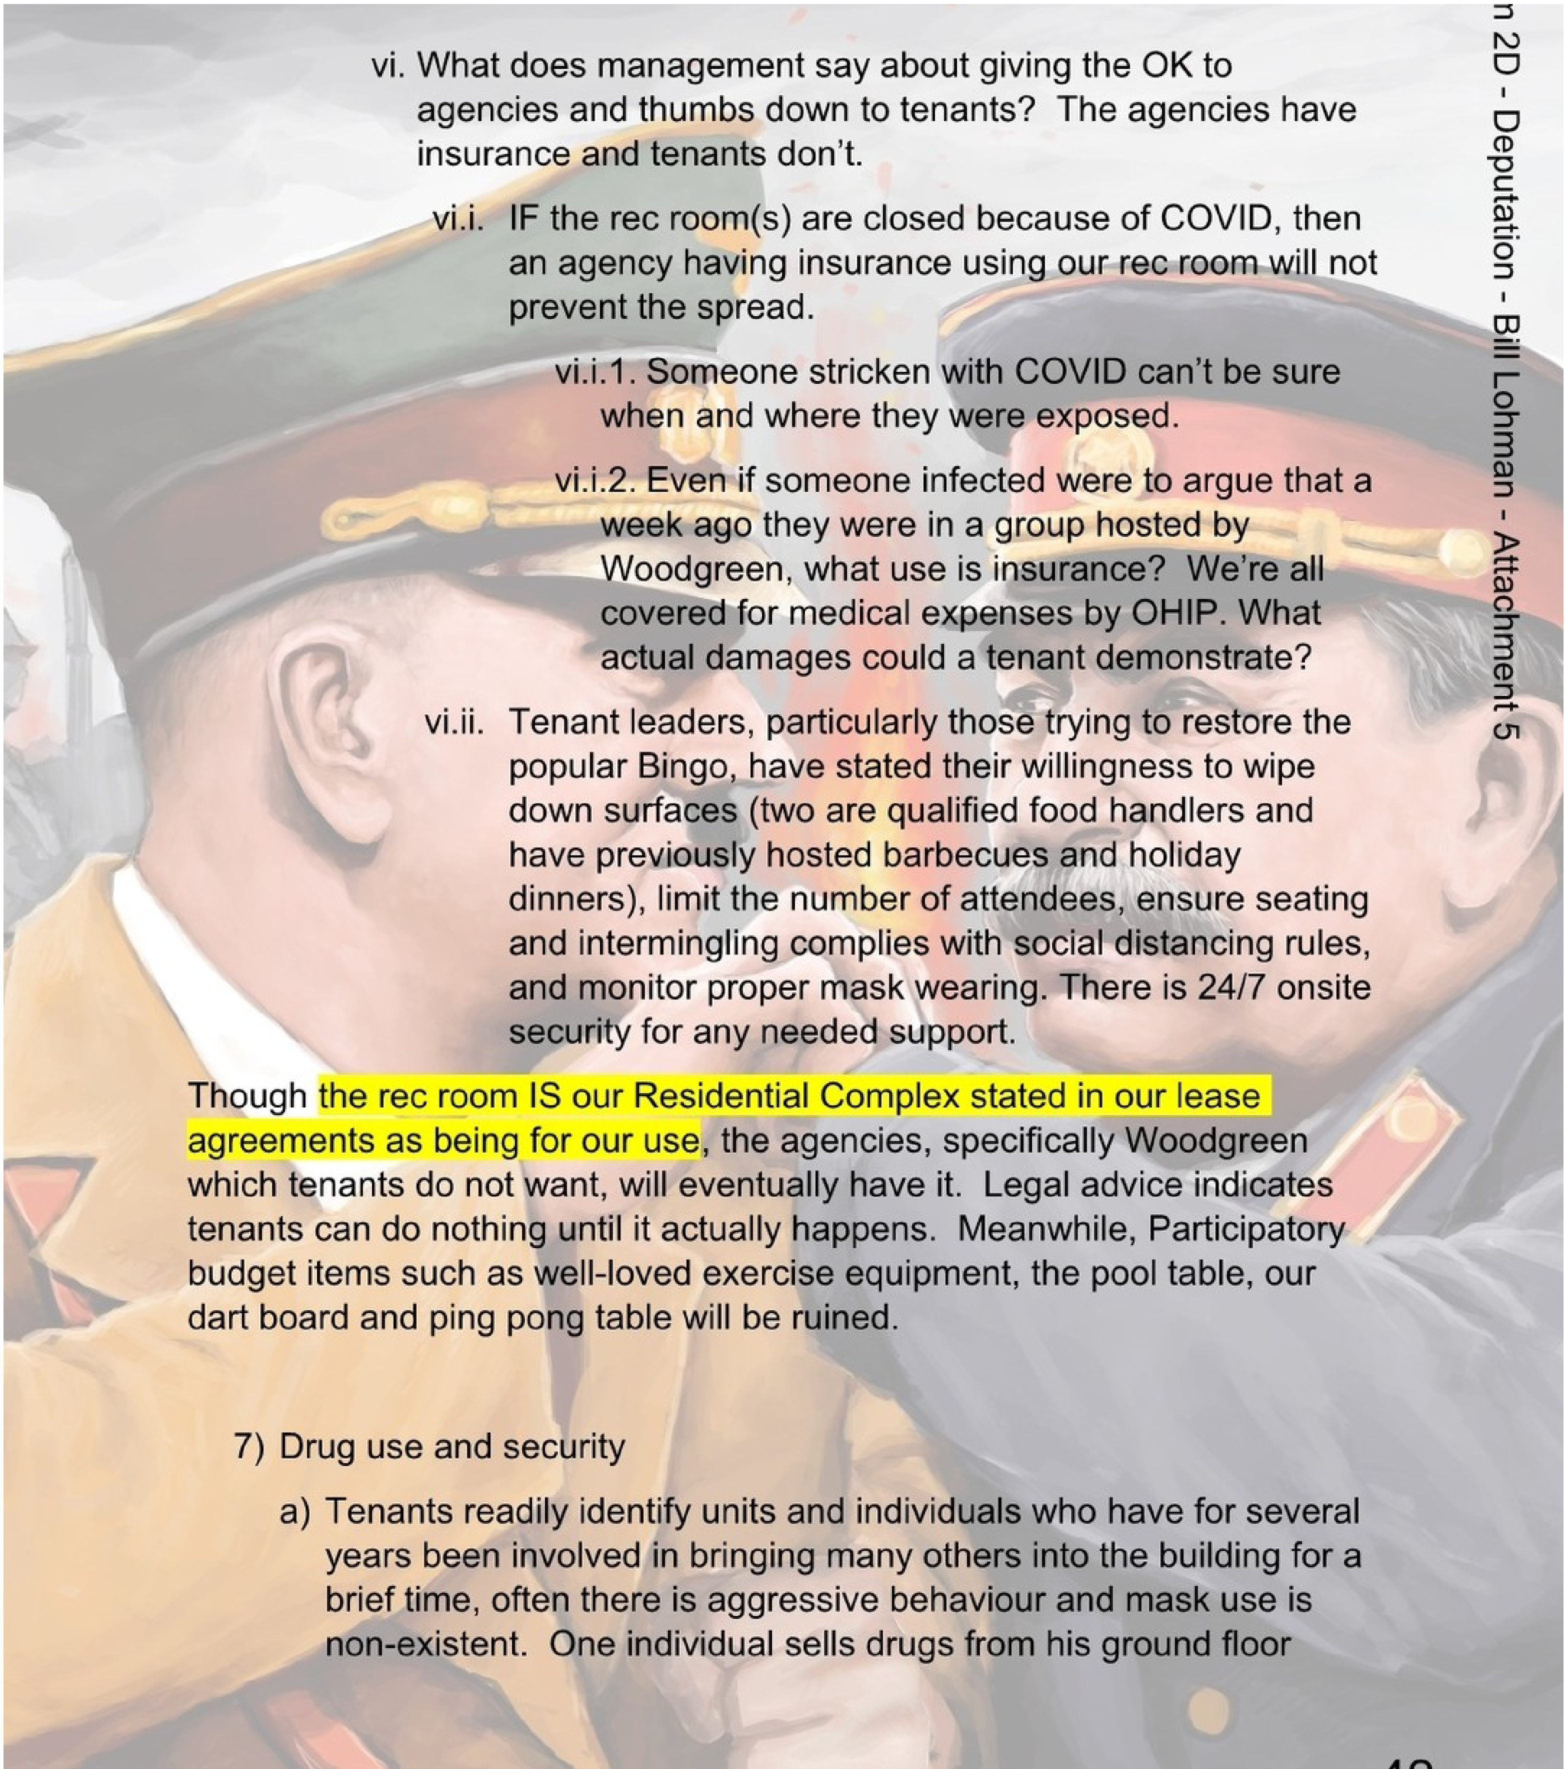

a. We have seen a 2021 report to TCHC given by our new SSC Tackese Kinglock (our first one Renee Sauer was in the position 8 months, then promoted away from us). See: https://www.torontohousing.ca/capital-initiatives/capital-repairs/Pages/CECP.aspx. She states vulnerable tenants should know how remodeling and construction will impact their lives, but we are not. We see posted notices about when these activities will begin (and possibly end, or not), but the normal state of affairs is this:

Mid-February 2020, minus 25C, a 14th floor tenant awakened to noise and dust; she is quite able, stepped out of her door, and saw the tiles outside her door being noisily removed, with dangerous equipment, dust, and contractors filling her hallway. She noted that if her amputee neighbour had needed to leave, he would not have been able get out at all and would be trapped in his unit. There was no notice or provision for egress given to tenants, nor notice of how this would impact lives.

On lower floors, tenants, some with asthma and COPD, complaining of the dirt, dust, mess and danger, report that #committees and #bully them and finally #silence them altogether, when they make #criticisms they don't want to hear. Who are #THEY? With but a few exceptions, they are #sunshinelist #elitists - #ripping us off for over $100 thou each per year - #wonks and #technocrats - #liberals and #leftists. They are the NEW #commissars. They are #militant, #totalitarian, and #antidemocratic. Recently a significant portion of them have started to be - or rather claim to be - #WOKE as well. They don't give a damn about you - least of all the #elderly - and most of them are so #EFFING #STUPID they don't even know it.... #SLAVAUKRAINI.... Most of these are on the left, but Fascist - like Stalin in the picture, making friends with Hitler. Get it? Hope so.

vi. What does management say about giving the OK to agencies and thumbs down to tenants? The agencies have insurance and tenants don't.

vi.i. IF the rec room(s) are closed because of COVID, then an agency having insurance using our rec room will not prevent the spread.

vi.i.1. Someone stricken with COVID can't be sure when and where they were exposed.

vi.i.2. Even if someone infected were to argue that a week ago they were in a group hosted by Woodgreen, what use is insurance? We're all covered for medical expenses by OHIP. What actual damages could a tenant demonstrate?

vi.ii. Tenant leaders, particularly those trying to restore the popular Bingo, have stated their willingness to wipe down surfaces (two are qualified food handlers and have previously hosted barbecues and holiday dinners), limit the number of attendees, ensure seating and intermingling complies with social distancing rules, and monitor proper mask wearing. There is 24/7 onsite security for any needed support.

Though the rec room IS our Residential Complex stated in our lease agreements as being for our use, the agencies, specifically Woodgreen which tenants do not want, will eventually have it. Legal advice indicates tenants can do nothing until it actually happens. Meanwhile, Participatory budget items such as well-loved exercise equipment, the pool table, our dart board and ping pong table will be ruined.

7) Drug use and security

a) Tenants readily identify units and individuals who have for several years been involved in bringing many others into the building for a brief time, often there is aggressive behaviour and mask use is non-existent. One individual sells drugs from his ground floor window, where numerous women have been reported climbing in from the outside. Despite one of his regulars smashing his unit window from the outside when he wouldn't open it to serve her, left broken for many months, as well as the window on an exterior door for a drug user to gain entrance, leaving a blood trail to that very unit, no action is taken. Meeting with the police, tenants are told it's never been proven that drugs are actually sold. The acetone smell could be a meth cook … or kitty litter, they say. Indeed, an undercover officer would have to do an actual drug buy, but they are obviously disinclined. Other tenants have a long stream of obstreperous visitors, with frequent late-night yelling and fights in the hallways and parking lot, doing damage to the building and preventing their neighbours from the quiet enjoyment of their premises.

When chaos erupts, tenants are told to report the incident to CSU, 416 921 2323. But if they manage to get an answer, they know from experience that officers, if they come at all, won't appear until several hours after the incident is over, thus discouraging tenants from phoning.

While we have 24/7 contracted security, and two daytime officers are particularly good, they have observed drug sales and are instructed not to confront.

Excuses we've heard include, well, this is Toronto, what do you expect? But ours is a seniors' building, and seniors have a right to safety as well as quiet enjoyment of their premises.

Our building experienced an overdose on the 3rd floor balcony (not a tenant) on May 21, 2021, with seven emergency vehicles appearing, and more recently, a 4th floor guest hurled himself off the 4th floor balcony to his death in the courtyard. Our 2 buildings are a community, and tenants are affected by deaths and hospitalizations. No communication was provided about these and other disturbing incidents.

Solution: If our building is ever to be a community for seniors to "age in place" with the supports they need, then invasion of outsiders can be curtailed with more aggressive action against drug activity. Further, tenants should be given the truth when someone dies, and counseling provided for those feeling vulnerable. Also, while people have a right to housing, some are not ready for independent living. Everyone would be better served if "transitional housing" (such as those used for ex-cons trying to re-enter society) used in many communities, recommended numerous times by Anita Dressler, were implemented initially, to ensure applicants for independent living can manage in the interest of everyone's safety.

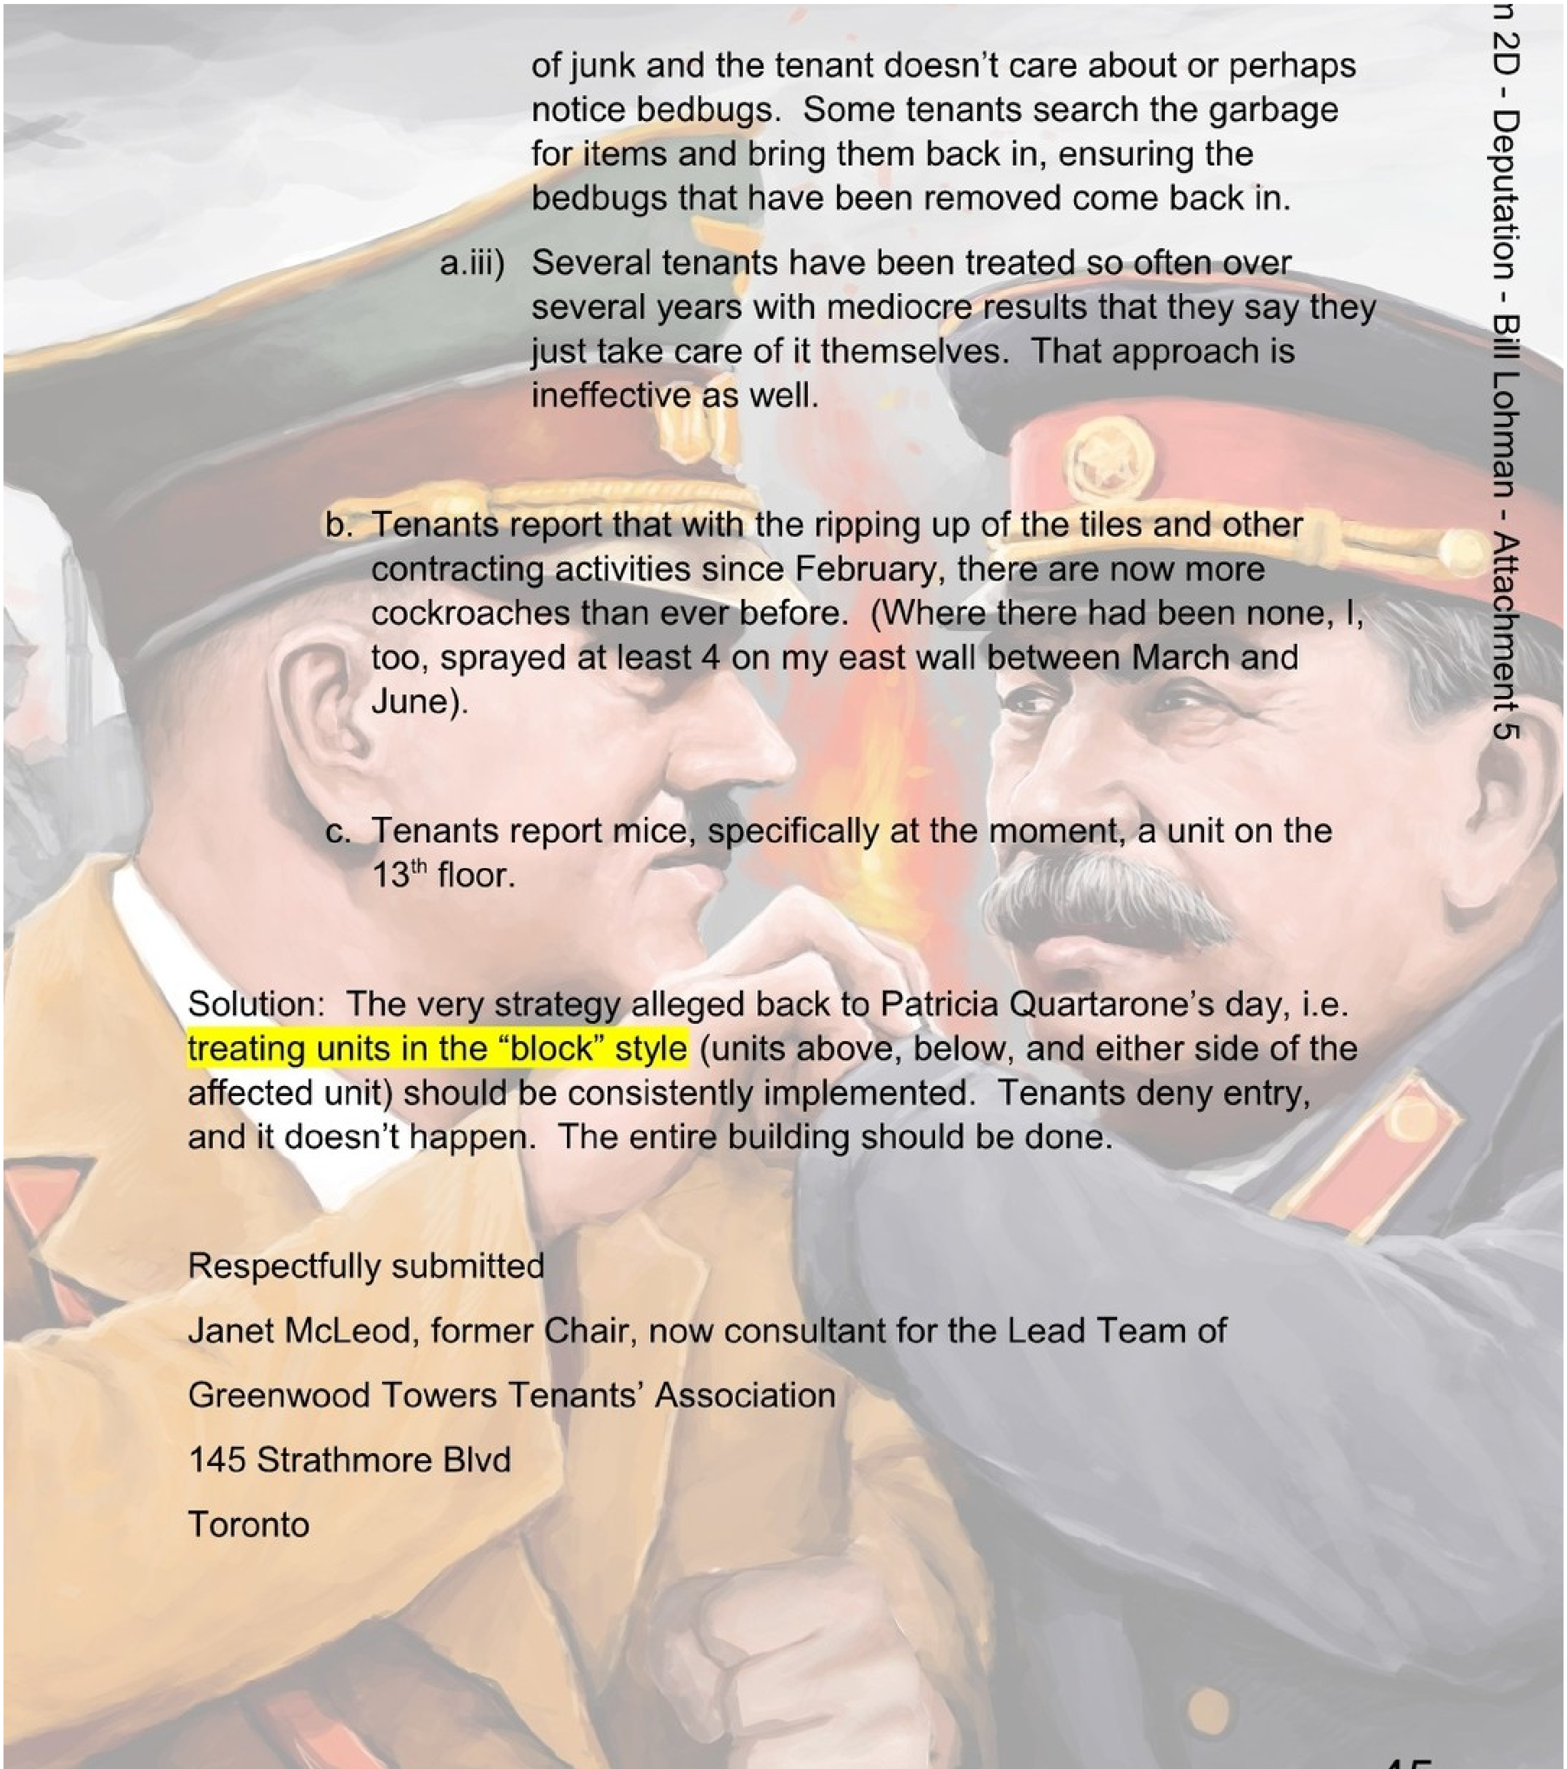

8) The never-ending battle with bedbugs and other critters:

a. Although the treatment team appears every Wednesday and always have a number of units to attend to, the problem in the past 8 years has never been solved, and with the current approach, never will be.

a.i) During 8 years' tenancy, I was treated more than 100 times, but stopped counting at 100. I knew with a hoarder, medically challenged neighbour on one side and a substance abuser on the other, it would never be over.

a.i.1. Because of fragile health, the hoarder repeatedly denied entry to the treatment team. Only when I persisted with the Super who found him a place in the rec room to stay (during COVID), did he endure about 3 treatments. This is not enough.

a.ii) We have documented units, and can provide those, where tenants allow no one to enter. What about the yearly unit inspection? If Housing can't gain access, they claim 95% success rate and seem to forget about it. When a neighbour complains that a nearby unit is never inspected, they are told the tenant doesn't need to admit them. This is not true. Neighbours are aware that these units are often full of junk and the tenant doesn't care about or perhaps notice bedbugs. Some tenants search the garbage for items and bring them back in, ensuring the bedbugs that have been removed come back in.

a.iii) Several tenants have been treated so often over several years with mediocre results that they say they just take care of it themselves. That approach is ineffective as well.

b. Tenants report that with the ripping up of the tiles and other contracting activities since February, there are now more cockroaches than ever before. (Where there had been none, I, too, sprayed at least 4 on my east wall between March and June).

c. Tenants report mice, specifically at the moment, a unit on the 13th floor.

Solution: The very strategy alleged back to Patricia Quartarone's day, i.e. treating units in the "block" style (units above, below, and either side of the affected unit) should be consistently implemented. Tenants deny entry, and it doesn't happen. The entire building should be done.

I was very discouraged after the painful 3 1/2 -hour-long STAC meeting last Thursday. Though I was pleased to be permitted 5 minutes at the 2 1/2 hour mark to review what happened about the implementation of a Hub in our building at 145 Strathmore to update those STAC members who had lent their support to our protesting tenants, it seems that the bulk of our time was spent offering approaches to operational problems that are TCHC's job and for which solutions are self-evident. Notably:

1) a tenant with memory problems not applying for benefits at age 65, falling behind on rent: Solution: isn't that why we are hiring SSC's?

2) a non-English speaking tenant, interpreter moved out, also falling behind on rent. Solution: If non-English speakers are accepted as tenants, interpretation services must be provided.

3) "Communications," specifically the form letter indicating possible rent increase: Solution: with all these Communications people overruling our submissions to the "Seniors Speak" newsletter, none of them noticed the authoritarian, threatening tone of the document?

As I mentioned at the meeting, lulled into complacency by believing the Greenwood Towers Hub would be located in the former OUL offices, attached to our building but a separate entrance, as Jaipreet Kohli and Joan White told us in May 2019 at Councillor Fletcher's building meeting, I failed to attend the separate March 5th Hub meeting, but fortunately managed to learn the topics covered from a STAC member who kept copious notes. The results of that meeting were amazing, thoughtful and excellent, yet never shared with the STAC group as a whole.

And though Grant Coffey said the results had been noted, on March 8 when Woodgreen and TCHC "surveyed" our tenants, none of the recommendations were implemented.

If we are an advisory committee, we should as a group be reviewing the findings and recommendations of this... and other... special meetings, just as a Board of Directors does. We should hear their report, ask questions, discuss further at a general meeting, come to a consensus, approve the report (or not), and make recommendations to whom we're supposed to be advising. Isn't that what an advisory committee does?

Here are some of the recommendations of that Hub special meeting: tenants should be involved in deciding which agency provides services, what activities they want, and should have a final say in the use of their building space. These conclusions were shared only with the attendees and, I think, Grant, but never with the Advisory Committee as a whole. It appears that lip service may have been paid with the questions our tenants answered in the survey of our building, such as "would you like more activities?" but the totality of the plan for Woodgreen to take over our rec room M -F from 9-5 was never mentioned, and tenants were horrified when they learned of it, as we have documented to and discussed with our City Councillor and TSC Committee member Paula Fletcher.

According to City Council, the Senior Tenants Advisory Committee (plus a committee on accessibility) was to be initiated in July 2019. But by the beginning of COVID in March 2020, it had not been, and with COVID, the City turned the job over to TCHC (not a judicious decision), more tenant nominees were called for (notices posted in some buildings but not all), and we didn't meet till December 2020. Meanwhile, the ISM was moving forward despite the lack of a Seniors Housing Board of Directors (still not officially meeting, as I understand) and certainly no recommendations from STAC. Clearly, a deal was made with Woodgreen, and by June/July 2021, we have given no meaningful advice as a committee.

I recommend we follow the usual protocol: when subcommittees meet, let's hear their reports, discuss findings, if we're not happy, send it back to the committee, and if we are, achieve consensus and make an official recommendation to the body we're advising.

Alas, I have seen a manipulative approach more than once with Housing, ongoing with the cosmetic enhancements at Greenwood Towers. Last fall, our tenants were allowed only to choose between two pre-selected colours for trim and tiles: dull grey or lacklustre brown. There was a big deal made of an election, we voted and chose grey. Then when tenants complained mid-February in bitter cold that hallways and their units were filled with dust and debris, making them choke yet unable to exit, our manager stated, "Tenants were involved in the decision." Yet tenants had no input on whether cosmetic changes were a priority (they aren't) nor when the mess would take place. Meanwhile, the trim and unit doors have been painted blue.

My concern is that important decisions about the ISM are already being made, STAC has had no influence... but when the ISM is rolled out and issues arise, it will be stated that STAC was involved every step of the way, when, in fact, we are not.

Various STAC members have requested additional meetings and the reinstatement of meetings that management has cancelled, to no avail. Concerned tenants have been meeting separately to discuss important issues; but if we were a truly collaborative body, we wouldn't need to.

The Ombudsman reporting to the Board of Directors last fall noted that "communication" was the crux of the multiplicity of complaints about Housing, and despite the development of a Solutions Committee, the lack of communication remains an issue at all levels.

A further concern is the changing faces. We know some tenants resigned, and we have seen Christine Sheppard since the beginning, with Wendy Dobson appearing more recently, but I understand these two will not be on the committee for much longer. Is this really an official committee making recommendations that anyone is listening to, or, as tenant advocates like Doris Power predicted before it was formed, are we just rubber stampers? And if that's what we are, why are we taking so much time to advise on nothing?

Hoping for meaningful and effective collaboration, I am

Janet McLeod

Subject: discriminatory actions toward seniors constitutes ageism

Ms. Susan Opler, Ombudsman
Office of the Ombudsman - City of Toronto
375 University Av. Suite 203
Toronto, Ontario M5G 2J5

Good afternoon Ms. Opler,

It is not an easy decision to bring this issue to the Ombudsman office as it represents an inability to achieve a common ground with the city; a failure to be heard and to have the voice of senior tenants included in the decision-making that will have direct and long-term consequences on the well-being and dignity of fourteen thousands(14,000) vulnerable seniors living in TCHC/Senior Housing Unit(SHU) and the 'quiet peaceful dignity' they were promised and expect.

I have been an active member of Seniors Voice, a tenant advocacy group, since it's first tenant meeting in 2016 where I participated in dozens of tenant meetings in senior communities across the city and I was on the Advisory Committee that created the Tenant/Staff Charter. Over the past 7 years, I have participated on medical advisory committees focused on the social determinants of health and social justice issues and I served on the Board of Toronto Inter-Generational Partnership, a non-profit organization whose mission and engagement model connects elderly tenants and students through it's programs at TCHC senior communities. I represented my communities at Operating Unit(OU) tenant councils in two different districts and attended many of the Tenants First and TCHC Refresh consultation/information sessions.

Currently, I am a member of the Senior Tenants Advisory Committee(STAC) for implementing the Integrated Service Model(ISM) into the 83 buildings of the Seniors Housing Unit(SHU).

I raise concerns about issues that affect elderly tenants to underscore and address the very real problem being faced by seniors and senior communities: The lack of transparency, Honest communication, and absence of respectful accountability about our futures, from TCHC and City staff.

During the recent virtual conference "Planning for Seniors Housing in Changing Cities: A Cross-National Exchange" that took place on May 11th and 12th, 2021 where the Integrated Service Model(ISM) was introduced and touted, I Listened to the City/TCHC management's presentation on the ISM for Toronto's seniors and found it both exciting and depressingly sad. It revealed how nearly complete the Integrated Service Model(ISM) is and just how much effort has been put into actualizing this model; and all without senior tenant's knowledge or input Strangely though, the viability of this Integrated Service Model(ISM) appears to be predicated on an implicit assumption that each community has a functioning leadership structure that is able/willing to marshal in the new Seniors management model which they know nothing about and have had 'NO' say in.

The critical integrating component that connects tenants to the Integrated Service Model(ISM) is not included in the Accountability Framework's implementation plan. Instead, as we've learned, staff recently decided to use the Tenant Service's Refresh modeled for youth and family engagement, that levies increased responsibilities on senior tenant committees and community leaders with the added accountability to both Refresh staff and Integrated Service (ISM) management; an unpaid, junior Community Services Coordinator(CSC) would be a fitting job description.

And it would appear that seniors leaders of each community are expected to be the thread that sews and binds the Integrated Service Model(ISM) and non-existent Engagement Refresh together while also tasked with maintaining an open communication channel to serve as the core link to senior communities for the drop-in management staff; not quite the full-time, extra staffing and added supports written about and promised.

Seniors have been provided no seat at the building's Integrated Service(ISM) and management round-table that will coordinate, deliver and oversee all building functions, including the integrated service delivery that again, gives seniors no voice in their own community governance, but they will get to choose the 3 Community Action Plan(CAP) priorities that they will be accountable for, to Refresh staff. The sad reality for many communities is that those priorities are decided for them by TCHC Refresh staff.

The city's Tenants First and TCHC staff deliberately put seniors into a Silo, while ignoring every concern that tenants have raised about engagement and their tenancy. Despite the many deputations raising alarms about seniors needs and voices being excluded, TCHC Refresh committee members said seniors weren't included because they get the Integrated Service Model(ISM).

Tenants First staff decided that 'seniors did not need to know' what was being planned for them. What is the strategy behind not informing or including seniors in the discussions and development of the Integrated Service Model(ISM) with the same due regard provided the youth and family engagement model, by Tenants First and TCHC?

I am attaching a brief, prepared by the tenant association leaders at Greenwood Towers that succinctly outlines the "Tale of Two Cities" reality that tenants face. It addresses senior residents reaction to the disingenuous behavior of City and TCH management and a self-serving 'Hub model' agenda that is contemptibly dismissive of the breach of security protocols established for the protection of senior tenants and to keep them safe.

It's like living with two sets of books, one written up and packaged nicely and in-line with the expected accountabilities for bosses while the other is the specious and obscurant reality for 83 'left-out' senior communities facing negative impacts like what's happening right now at Greenwood Towers, 145 Strathmore Blvd.

The City and TCH management plan for 'senior wellness hubs' is exactly what every senior community said they do not want; interloping agencies and outsiders in their buildings controlling the common space and denying the access their tenant's leases give them access to.

Obviously, seniors in that community were not informed clearly, if at all, about the massive intrusion, security problems and the invasion of privacy that vulnerable senior tenants would face from outside agencies bringing their clients into the building, including drug addicted transients and the criminal element of the neighborhood coming into the community's 'living space', after years of fighting to keep them out.

This is just one documented instance of the failing results from tactics employed by the City, Tenants First and TCHC that highlights the lack of respectful consideration, transparency and accountability being shown tenants in the 83 seniors buildings, since the beginning of Tenants First mission and exposes a deplorable and ongoing strategy to silos seniors behind a wall of silence to keep them from knowing and participating in the design of their own 'Living in Place'

#committees and #bully them and finally #silence them altogether, when they make #criticisms they don't want to hear. Who are #THEY? With but a few exceptions, they are #sunshinelist #elitists - #ripping us off for over $100 thou each per year - #wonks and #technocrats - #liberals and #leftists. They are the NEW #commissars. They are #militant, #totalitarian, and #antidemocratic. Recently a significant portion of them have started to be - or rather claim to be - #WOKE as well. They don't give a damn about you - least of all the #elderly - and most of them are so #EFFING #STUPID they don't even know it.... #SLAVAUKRAINI.... Most of these are on the left, but Fascist - like Stalin in the picture, making friends with Hitler. Get it? Hope so.

Futures, as promised by Tenants First and TCHC. Why?

This dismissive, deaf ear approach, notwithstanding the COVID-19 pandemic, used by Tenants First, TCHC and the Senior Services and Long Term Care(SSLTC) management to keep 14,000 Toronto Housing seniors in the dark while their future is being decided without them, has turned into big problems of communication that hamper the cohesion of any meaningful and worthwhile tenant/staff enterprise. It has soured already tenuous relations further, weakened trust in management leadership and accountability, and it deadens the motivation of seniors who might want to pitch in and help but feel the condescending and unaccountable TCHC staff culture is incapable of living up to their own Service Standard Commitments and the very principles of engagement that they expect tenants to affirm/obey/adhere and live up to:

Transparency, Respect, Collaboration, Honesty, Integrity, Accountability

The gravity of city employees discriminatory actions toward seniors constitutes ageism. The continuing lack of consideration and acknowledgment of this bias is one that can easily result in dismissive decisions that can pose harmful or dangerous consequences for those not being considered, as the staff's 'hub' agenda for the vulnerable seniors at Greenwood Towers clearly demonstrates.

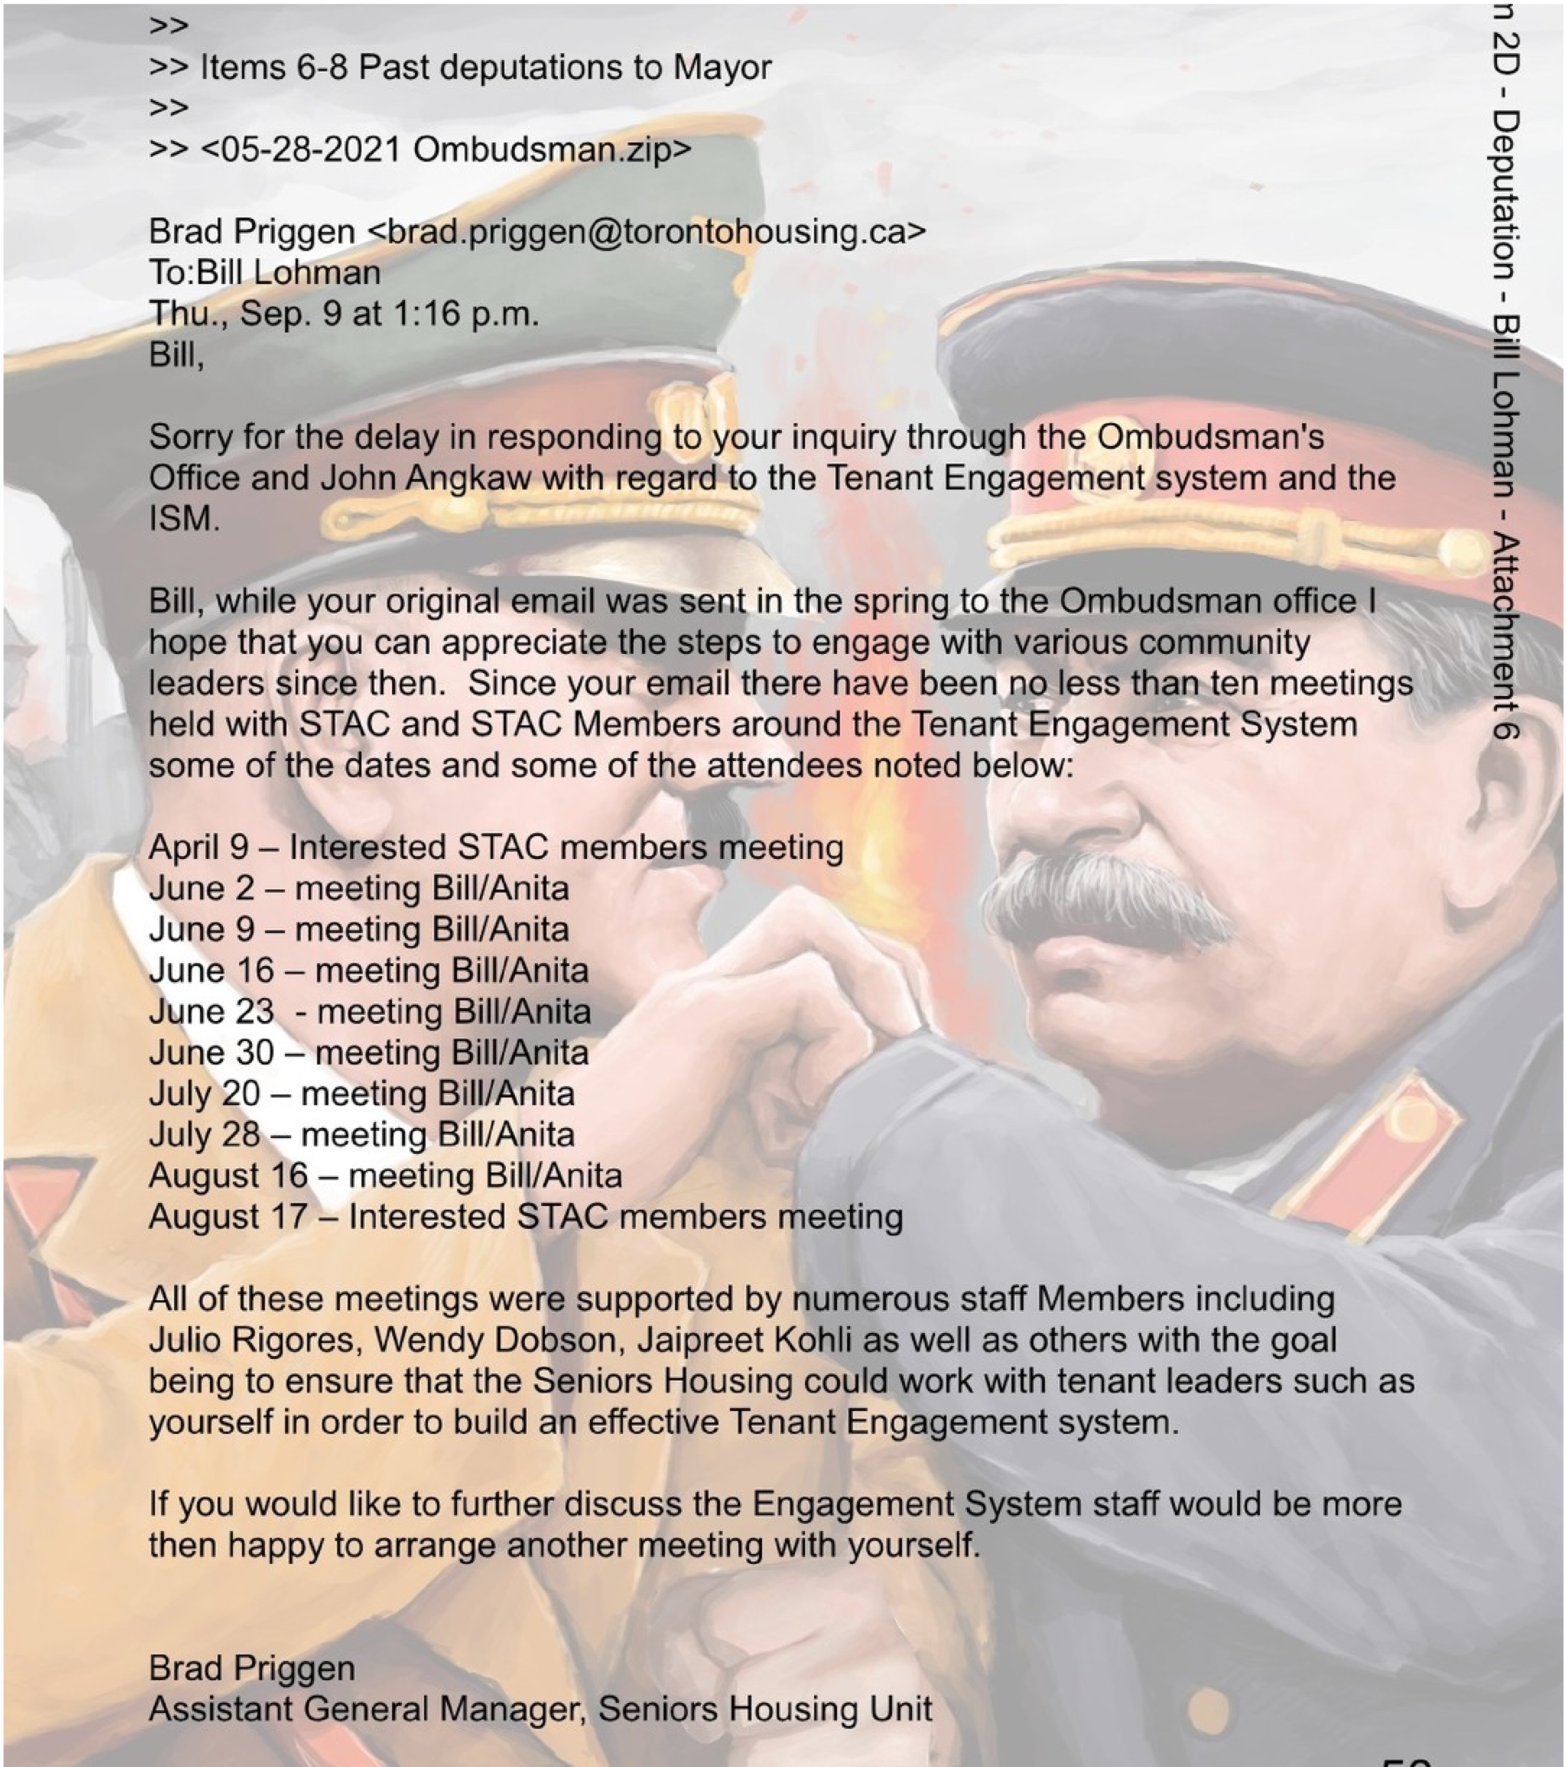

Every step possible has been made during this ongoing effort to bring awareness to the absence of transparency, accountability and lack of due regard afforded tenants in the seniors entity.. This is not good customer service. It is behavior that is unbecoming of any city employee, by it's own mandate and should not be permitted against a vulnerable and protected segment of Toronto's population.

I am bringing this to you with the hopeful expectation of your assistance.

Bill,

Sorry for the delay in responding to your inquiry through the Ombudsman's Office and John Angkaw with regard to the Tenant Engagement system and the ISM.

Bill, while your original email was sent in the spring to the Ombudsman office I hope that you can appreciate the steps to engage with various community leaders since then. Since your email there have been no less than ten meetings held with STAC and STAC Members around the Tenant Engagement System some of the dates and some of the attendees noted below:

April 9 – Interested STAC members meeting
June 2 – meeting Bill/Anita
June 9 – meeting Bill/Anita
June 16 – meeting Bill/Anita
June 23 - meeting Bill/Anita
June 30 – meeting Bill/Anita
July 20 – meeting Bill/Anita
July 28 – meeting Bill/Anita
August 16 – meeting Bill/Anita
August 17 – Interested STAC members meeting

All of these meetings were supported by numerous staff Members including Julio Rigores, Wendy Dobson, Jaipreet Kohli as well as others with the goal being to ensure that the Seniors Housing could work with tenant leaders such as yourself in order to build an effective Tenant Engagement system.

If you would like to further discuss the Engagement System staff would be more then happy to arrange another meeting with yourself.

Good afternoon,

Over the past five years, seniors have given dozens of deputations and attended scores of meetings with staff and the executive management to accommodate seniors needs that did zero to change the lack of inclusion or address the bias underpinnings of the Refresh.

What it clearly evident, now, is that there was no engagement model considered for seniors besides the youth-generated, (one-size-fits-all)version which was vigorously critiqued by seniors and found wanting at every stage. I still have a bankers box full of Refresh info-tation notes and questioning deputations. It is a sad fact that all the suggestions, voices of concern, and complaints by senior tenants about the Refresh model were dismissed, ignored and amounted to absolutely nothing.

The STAC suffers from the same lack of communication by management and unwillingness to address concerns not on a controlled script, that STAC members had to create a sub-committee for special meetings to discuss the pertinent and relevant issues related to senior tenant wellness. And in the spirit of transparency, the minutes of those meetings were shared with SHU management.

I do appreciate the recent steps taken to meet with STAC Members around the Tenant Engagement System following this letter to the Ombudsman's office last Spring, that TCHC was copied on. In fact, those Refresh meetings you cite would not have occurred were it not for assertive senior advocates. And as noted above, a meeting in and of itself means nothing, it is what it actually accomplished. Refresh management is continuing it's hell-bent drive to hold elections in senior communities to impose a governance structure and new service model without any explanation of how it will impact senior tenants. Also, It conflicts with the suggestions made by seniors at those meetings.

In the call I made to you(Brad), after seeing your reply to my letter to the Ombudsman, I said your response was totally unacceptable. That it failed to address any of the concerns raised in the letter and dismissive to the seriousness of the letter and it's scope. Sadly, it is to little, to late.
As I stated on the phone, these issues will only be dealt with through a meeting of TSHC management, TCHC management, Tenants First staff, Senior Services staff and senior advocates.

I am requesting an opportunity to work out these ongoing issue with you.
I look forward to a positive response for mutual understanding.
Regards,

Bill Lohman

Thank you for working with agencies, and various programs that treat and maintain mental health. Thank you for training residents in mental health first aid.

TCHC – TSC November 18th, 2021
Item 2F (Overview of CSU and attachments)

Walking through the objectives it shouldn't come as any great surprise that as a tenant we may see things differently. At least I do.

That first objective – To strengthen the relationship between the CSU and TPS – That should make it crystal clear that at no point in the future are the TCHC Special Constables not going to be beholden to Toronto Police Services. The Confronting Anti-Black Racism peeps can only hope for some type of equitable representation within the CSU ranks but even that will take years ... if not decades. Maybe the CABR folks could insist on body cameras for CSU officers. That way incidents can be viewed after the fact to determine if any racial bias - obvious or otherwise - is present when the Special Constable are performing their duties. To insist that the CSU cut ties to TPS would be like expecting me to get a lobotomy. They're to enmeshed to fully separate. Manage your expectations. Unless of course you want to sneak ahead to my argument declaring the CSU as redundant and reclusive.

The second objective – Reduce the level of crime and or anti-social behaviour [reported] in communities – (Yes I added reported) If their is a crime committed why are tenants calling the CSU? They take too long answering the phones. Never mind actually making it to the scene of the crime. They show up late for everything. As I've said before the Community Safety Unit is a misnomer. They aren't in the 'community'. They aren't involved in any relationship building activities that could be preventative 'safety' measures. They certainly don't have any special training above regular police duties that would define them as a 'unit'.

The third objective – Enhance law enforcement activities as required – Reinforces the first objective furthering the notion that the CSU can't act alone. When I used to work as a security guard I didn't have to wait for Toronto Police Services to do my hourly patrols. But our “Special Constables” are proud to announce when they have single or double digit joint patrol with Toronto Police Services.

The fourth objective – Improve tenant safety and security – Well if we can't get the Special Constables to do regular patrols or advocate for CCTV surveillance on every floor of every building then they're failing on that objective too. Honestly if they installed the CCTV cameras they could sit in their three million dollar club house and watch the monitors then dispatch when they see problems arising. Despite what this document might indicate the Special Constables aren't very self directed. They only attend to issues that are called into the main CSU line. If they just so happen to stumble across something. It's not their problem.

The fifth objective – Ensure officers are able to spend more time in communities. Do they need specially written invitations? I don't know how it is that Board members can take the time out of their busy schedules to attend Hub Openings across the portfolio and the Special Constables are nowhere to be seen. It's like they're social isolating from anything TCHC. Building their little club house in the West End on rented property. (How much are they paying that numbered corporation for rent? Or should I be asking how much we're paying? That probably comes out of TCHCs main budget. How many officers are working out of this club house at one time? How many subsidized housing units could that 3 million dollars have built?) Oh and there was a little boast about the CSU performing a security audit for two whole buildings. Wow. Don't strain yourselves. I've been waiting since my neighbour was killed a year and a half ago to provide a guided tour of my building. Christmas is coming ... again ...

If TCHC was confident that the CSU was performing at an adequate level there would have been more detailed questions about their performance than the single broad question about tenant safety and security on the Tenant Survey.

The final objective – Improve officer safety - That would be a great incentive for installing CCTV cameras on every floor of every building and requiring the Special Constables to wear body cams. Otherwise, they hardly have reason to get in their cruisers, let alone get out of them. From what I've heard they aren't much better than ambulance chasers. Using police scanners to determine where they might make an appearance.

I'd like to see the following sets of numbers

- wait times in seconds before a call gets answered (including hold times)
- wait times for officer to attend the scene
- number of times the CSU relied on the police scanner
- number of CCTV cameras installed within the buildings (currently focus seems to be on keeping the surrounding community safe with no regard for those of us living within)

- number of times TPS could have clearly benefited from having additional CCTV cameras

Now there does appear to be a light at the end of the tunnel. Maybe this is where the CABR peeps and myself could apply some pressure to dismantle the CSU altogether. “In 2022 the CSU will align the deployment of the Special Constables and Community Safety Advisors to support the new organizational Service Hub Model.” If this means that every community is going to have its own Community Safety Advisor working full time hours we don't need the Special Constables. Why would we need them? Especially when you consider that EVERY Toronto Police division has its own Neighbourhood Safety Unit with officers that are reachable directly by cell phone, text or email. Doesn't that make the Special Constables redundant and reclusive? Yeah ... Thought so.

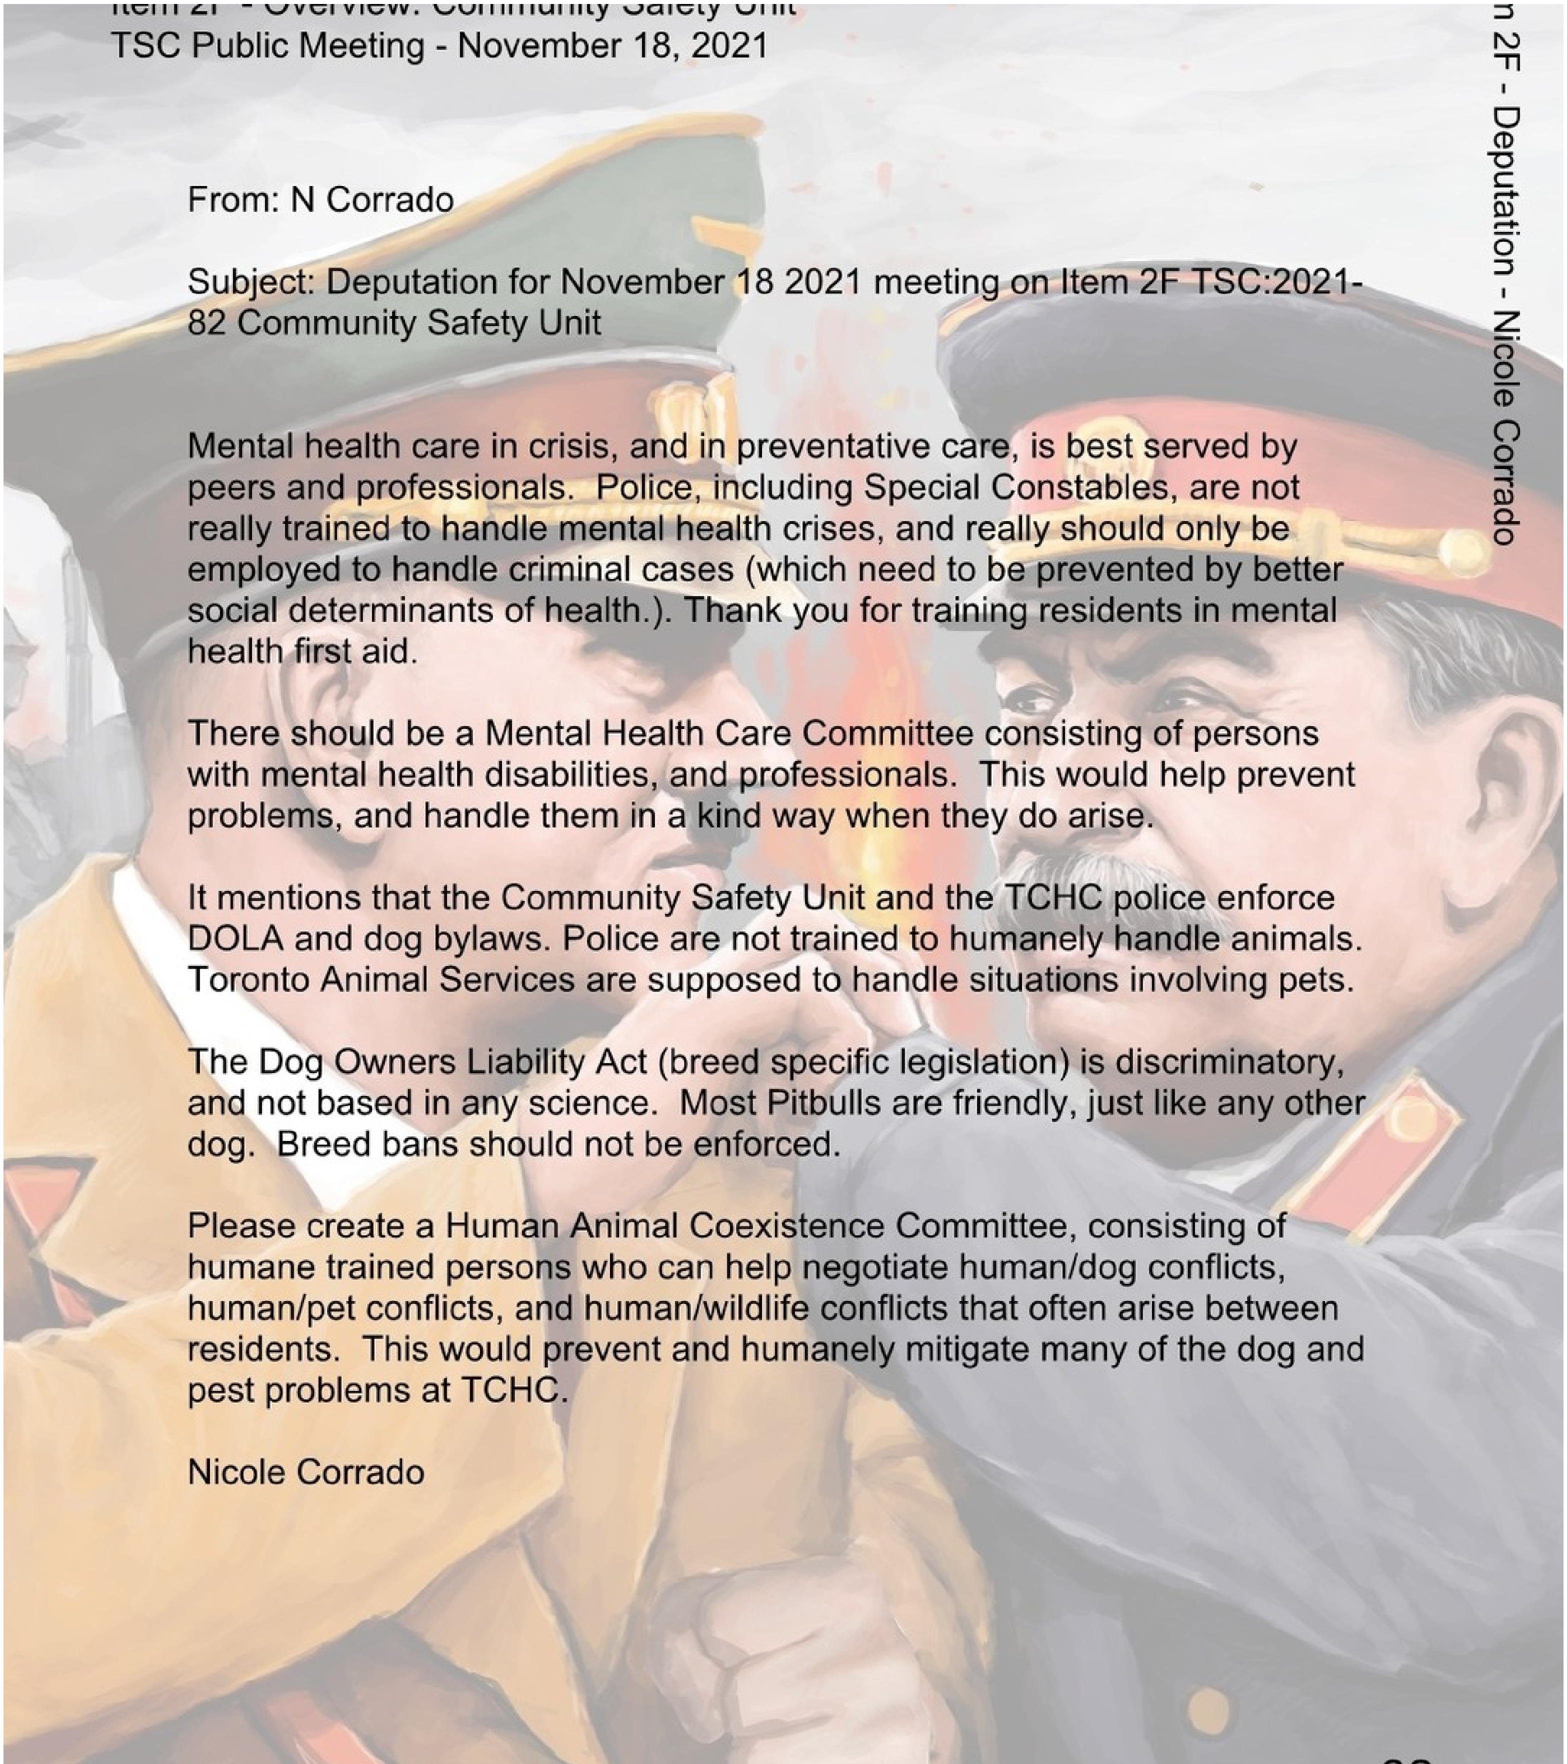

I've picked up on a few things missing from your slide show. Under responsibilities nowhere does it say that the Special Constables need to attend Tribunal hearings to confirm criminal or anti-social behaviour of tenants. Other than those tenants being evicted for arrears, it seems that TCHC doesn't care about those tenants that have exhibited confirmed criminal and anti-social behaviours. Including those repeat noise offenders that aren't listed. The one I know, turns up her music as advertising for when she's got a new supply of pharmaceuticals to sell. That's gonna go over real well when they build the new 25 story tower just across the street from her balcony. Just sayin'.

Mental health care in crisis, and in preventative care, is best served by peers and professionals. Police, including Special Constables, are not really trained to handle mental health crises, and really should only be employed to handle criminal cases (which need to be prevented by better social determinants of health.). Thank you for training residents in mental health first aid.

There should be a Mental Health Care Committee consisting of persons with mental health disabilities, and professionals. This would help prevent problems, and handle them in a kind way when they do arise.

It mentions that the Community Safety Unit and the TCHC police enforce DOLA and dog bylaws. Police are not trained to humanely handle animals. Toronto Animal Services are supposed to handle situations involving pets.

The Dog Owners Liability Act (breed specific legislation) is discriminatory, and not based in any science. Most Pitbulls are friendly, just like any other dog. Breed bans should not be enforced.

Please create a Human Animal Coexistence Committee, consisting of humane trained persons who can help negotiate human/dog conflicts, human/pet conflicts, and human/wildlife conflicts that often arise between residents. This would prevent and humanely mitigate many of the dog and pest problems at TCHC.

TCHC – TSC – November, 18th, 2021
Item 5 (Board & Committee Meeting Rules)

Once again pointing the finger at tenants when you have three fingers pointing back at yourselves. I can assure you that as often as deputants may drag out meetings TCHC Board, Committee, and staff members have done exactly the same.

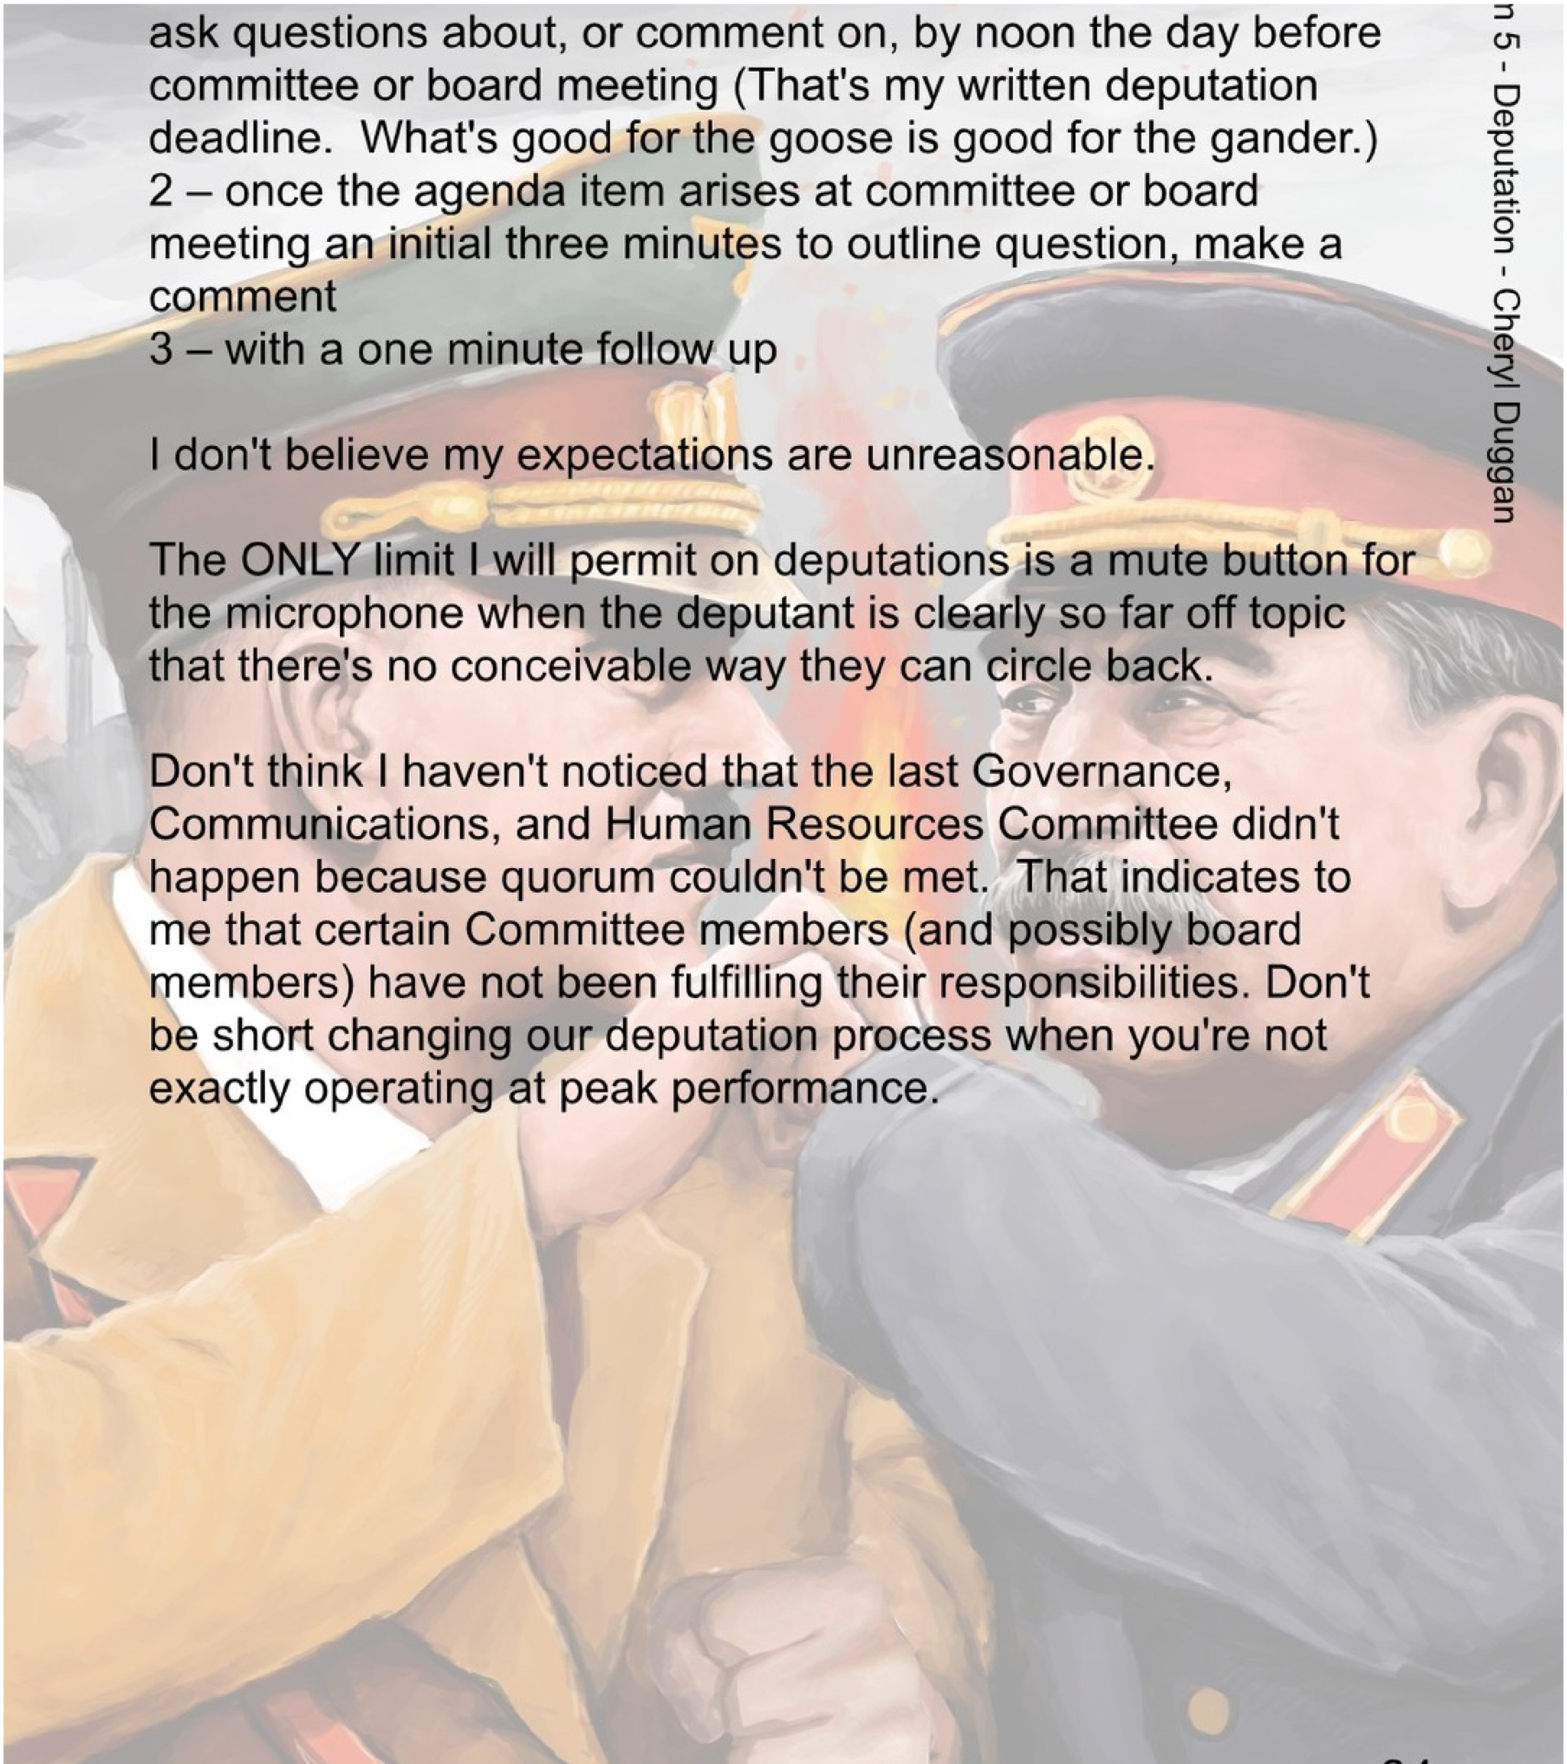

So while you're pointing your index finger at us these are the fingers pointing back at you.

Middle Finger – Stop allowing certain board members to hijack meetings. They have as much difficulty staying on topic as do some deputants. Committee and board members have even slipped into confidential discussions in the public session. (Oh, I can't wait to read the Board [self] Evaluation. LOL)

Ring Finger – All members of the committee or board meeting should have read all the material (due diligence). Therefore when presenting material to the committee or board the members of the executive or management team should be prepared with a brief summary with a couple highlights and a key area of concern. There is no need to read every report word for word. You're digging into our deputation time.

Pinkie – It would be interesting to know whether or not committee and board members could respect time limits similar to the three minute deputation time limit allotted to us.

Suggestion for if board or committee members have comments or questions on agenda items
1 – alert committee/board secretary which items they wish to ask questions about, or comment on, by noon the day before committee or board meeting (That's my written deputation deadline. What's good for the goose is good for the gander.)

2 – once the agenda item arises at committee or board meeting an initial three minutes to outline question, make a comment
3 – with a one minute follow up

I don't believe my expectations are unreasonable.

The ONLY limit I will permit on deputations is a mute button for the microphone when the deputant is clearly so far off topic that there's no conceivable way they can circle back.

Don't think I haven't noticed that the last Governance, Communications, and Human Resources Committee didn't happen because quorum couldn't be met. That indicates to me that certain Committee members (and possibly board members) have not been fulfilling their responsibilities. Don't be short changing our deputation process when you're not exactly operating at peak performance.

Subject: Deputation for November 18 2021 meeting on Item 6A TSC:2021-69 Pest Control

Please create a Human Animal Coexistence Committee to discuss and humanely resolve conflicts with humans, pets, and wildlife.

There is no law in Toronto that says lethal methods of rodent or wildlife removal are mandatory. Rodenticide and glue traps are illegal in Ontario.

It is obvious that poison, body grip traps, automatic mouse traps, and glue traps are not making Toronto Community Housing "pest free".

Rodenticide, even in locked boxes, goes right up the food chain as animals eat poisoned animals. Rodenticides also weaken animals, making them more prone to zoonotic diseases. Glue traps cause the animal injuries and loss of limbs. Snap traps/Victor traps often injure the animal and kill slowly, despite manufacturer claims of "quick kill". Lethal removal only leaves room for more animals to move in. It does not fix the holes in a building.

I have also heard allegations that birds, nesting birds, squirrels, and opossums may also be killed by TCHC.

Please add one way exit doors, live traps to release rodents outside in a heated artificial den (so they do not freeze in the winter), artificial dens and nests for baby birds and animals, ultrasonic sound repellents, and contraception for rodents as part of TCHC approved and recommended methods. Please remove all lethal rodent and other lethal wildlife control methods from TCHC list of approved and recommended methods.

Please move toward humane, non lethal alternatives. Here is a list of resources.

My name is Amanda Coombs and I am a Mental Health Counsellor with the CVWRP Pilot Community Violence, Wellbeing and Recovery Pilot. Many of my clients reside in Toronto Community Housing and their lives and mental health have been impacted negatively due to gun violence and acts of violence that they have experienced in their community. For example, I have two client's who reside in the Jane and Finch community that tried to resuscitate Sam Boakye's and have been living with PTSD and trauma since that incited. They have to walk pass the area where Sam passed away daily which triggers negative emotions and memories daily. One of these individuals also had their home and door number recorded in a rap video and notices suspicious individuals that do not reside in the community circling her home. Both of these individuals have been trying for years to get a crisis transfer and have been unsuccessful. I also have another client who is in witness protection and although she fears for her life she has chosen to remain in her current neighborhood because the options that were provided to her for a transfer had higher rates of violence in their community. They've been told that they were not impacted directly by violence in the community and therefore they do not qualify for a crisis transfer. This is just one of the many experiences with the individuals that I support.

The criteria for "Who is qualified" to obtain a crisis transfer needs to be restructured to accommodate the needs of those who are experiencing a poor quality of life due to violence in their community. The individual's safety also must be made a priority when transferring a resident from one community to another. It would also be beneficial to have units reserved in communities that have low incidents of violence and crime for residents that need to be moved immediately.

TCHC – TSC – November 18th, 2021
Item 6C (Crisis Priority Transfer)

Has any single tenant/family gone through this process more than once successfully? If so, what advice or supports are offered before they attempt second swing at the Crisis Priority Transfer process.

I'm pretty sure that if a person/people received a Crisis Priority Transfer because of a series of bad choices they made that doesn't stop them from making equally bad choices in a new neighbour'hood'.

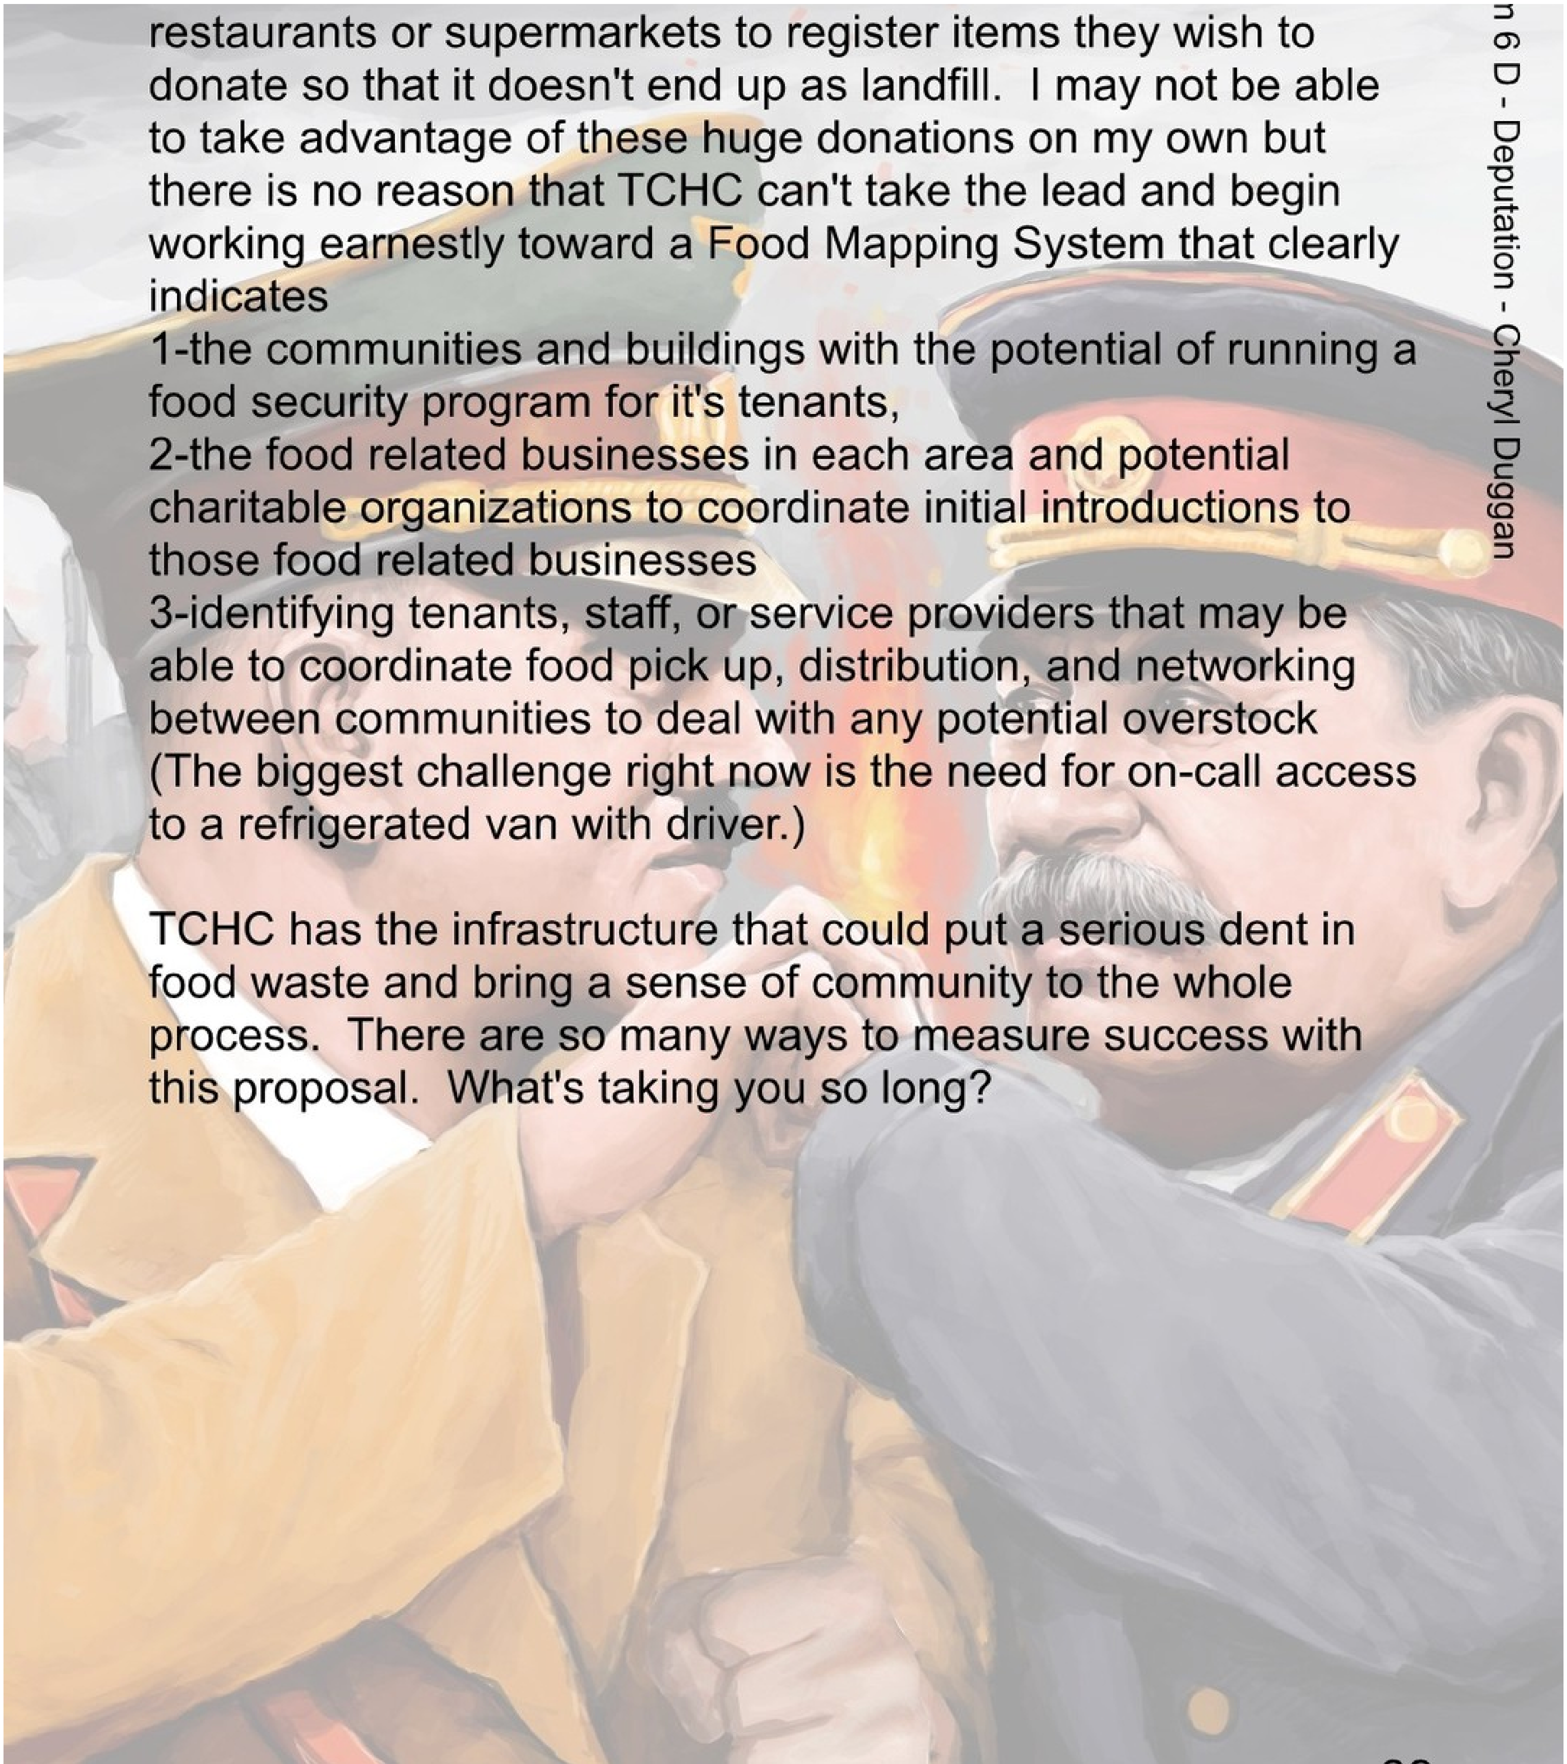

(I have reason to believe that an individual in my building was brought in under an emergency transfer. Yet the other night she was yelling for someone to call 911, her unit number, and stating she was being held hostage in her room. No charges were laid. It was a 'family' dispute and everyone was drinking a little too much according to a message left on my machine by TPS. I just can't help thinking that the main character in this whole scenario is gearing up to use that incident as a passport for yet another Crisis Priority Transfer.)

TCHC – TSC – November 18th, 2021
Item 6D (Community Impact Programs)

Youthworx needs to be scrapped in favour of a Community Youth Ambassador Program. The impact that Youthworx had on my community at our summer barbecue was negative. Yes. Negative. Not negligible. Negative . It took me two hours to clean up the mess they made in my rec-room. They seemed to violate every Covid protocol possible. There's no way they should have been supervised by someone who is likely an age co-hort and VERY pregnant. They were of no assistance. So much so, that I gave one of our community youth a hundred dollars for the effort he put in to assist while the event was in full swing. The Youthworx crew is just like Ontario Works. They don't. It doesn't. If there is an official way to ban YouthWorx from coming to my site please let me know.

If you design the Community Youth Ambassador Program properly the members will out-perform in their own neighbourhoods for honorariums. Then TCHC could plan special outings for cross-community socialization of the youth. Beach Day. Island Day. Game Day. Zoo Day. Museum Day. Gallery Day. High Park Day. CNTower Day. There's a lot of potential here for some positive media coverage.

Next up – Let's talk about my Food Mapping System. Yesterday I had to leave 250 pounds of prepared food on the table because I couldn't get a driver with a van in time. Previously, I have had to decline 200 pounds of bread and 1300 pounds of dairy cream. I'm partnering on my own with a charitable organization that has a system for allowing restaurants or supermarkets to register items they wish to donate so that it doesn't end up as landfill. I may not be able to take advantage of these huge donations on my own but there is no reason that TCHC can't take the lead and begin working earnestly toward a Food Mapping System that clearly indicates

1-the communities and buildings with the potential of running a food security program for it's tenants,

2-the food related businesses in each area and potential charitable organizations to coordinate initial introductions to those food related businesses

3-identifying tenants, staff, or service providers that may be able to coordinate food pick up, distribution, and networking between communities to deal with any potential overstock (The biggest challenge right now is the need for on-call access to a refrigerated van with driver.)

TCHC has the infrastructure that could put a serious dent in food waste and bring a sense of community to the whole process. There are so many ways to measure success with this proposal. What's taking you so long?

Item 6D Community Impact Programs

Reductionism is relevant as it may pertain to serving and working with prioritized people; community knowledge (of the issue), community knowledge (of efforts), community climate, community leadership and community resources.

Healthier communities mean healthier economies.

Research data supports certain types of violence and crime decrease as quality of life improve. Things like: cognitive function, health and wellness, happiness, quality of relationships. Domestic violence, gender-based violence and intimate partner violence is linked to financial insecurity amongst other factors like belonging and worthiness.

The impact outweigh the total cost which equates to more than any monetary value.

The existing and future disparities shouldn't threaten a child's innocence or future.

Jays Care Foundation is a wonderful example of supporting children and youth with programs to help foster community safety, health and wellness coupled with broaden network during key developmental years.

Partnerships, sponsorship, scholarship and collaborations need to positively expand beyond current confines into new territory so we can truly Build Back Better through purposeful work together.

Thank you,

Kathleen Doobay

Subject: Deputation for November 18 2021 meeting on Item 9 Tenant Survey

I noticed that there were complaints about birds, and bird netting was bought. Please ensure that bird control products are humane and do not harm the birds.

Please add one way exit doors, live traps to release rodents outside in a heated artificial den (so they do not freeze in the winter), nests for baby birds and animals, ultrasonic sound repellents, and contraception for rodents as part of TCHC approved and recommended methods. Please remove all lethal rodent and other lethal wildlife control methods from TCHC list of approved and recommended methods.

Sincerely,

Nicole Corrado

PS - James and other neighborhood people had their pictures taken by a local arts group and mounted on plaques under planters on #Jameson. The glue has started to dissolve, and the plaques with the portraits on them - James's among them - are falling into the street. To the distress of James and the other subjects. Independently I compiled several volumes of local images, including many street portraits - all taken with permission - and they don't fall into the street. Take a look at the link.

#Gallery #Seaforth #Lansdowne #Parkdale #Toronto - did better as a #VarietyStore - there's more #art in the #graffiti outside - and this #SovietEra #Jupiter12 #Rangefinder #VintageLens - finds it #allovertheplace - including but not limited to the #streetsoftoronto.... after all, that's what it was made for....

Yes, Muffy - there are #ALIENS - and they're real - real #CURMUDGEONS living in the #WadingPool on #MacGregor #Playground - wouldn't you be - living in a #spaceship and they - the #fatcat city councillors at the #CityOfToronto - #GordPerks and #KrystnWongTam - calling it an #encampment and wanting to bulldoze your #lovecraft #sixfeetunder - and you - the #Martians, I mean - into one of their #SalvationArmy #lovecamp #hellholes for #homeless #outer #spaceman - yeah, you'd feel #prettypissy - you'd go on about it - teleporting upanddown the #streetsoftoronto.... that forbidding #forbiddenplanet left over from the coldwar so long a#newone's started.... travel lightyears to Earth - your #specialmilitaryoperaton arrives and - #KABOOM - BUMMER.... he beat you to it.... #Jupiter12!

#fantasy of #hippie #urbanplanner on #dope - the hippie morphed into a #hipster and cloned itself thousands of time creating a reality more like #militarymaneuvres in a #combatzone - #Janeswalks - #boomer #voyeurs touring the #battlefield - from a #mentallysafe distance of course.... Stay in the #Annex Jane - #dontgooutatnight....

What a #horribleday in the #neighborhood #alley #QueenWest #WestLodge #Parkdale #Toronto - brought to you by #INTELCOM, the shipper from HELL - and my newold #Industar61 - with #lanthanum #glass - which "improves the alkali resistance of glass, and is used in making special optical glasses" - so there, RWP - despite my instructions, driver left boxed lens in the lobby here at crook central - the delivered message came up, and I freaked - went over to the neighbor's in the opposite building - Intelcom's wrong address of choice - and nearly got into a fight with the occupant - I admit I develop a certain animus for anyone I think comes between me and my precious gear - #GAS GAS anonymous GASanonymous - gotitbad.... interesting copy of the #Zeiss #tessar - very light (aluminum) but focuses correctly - after all these years.... inexpensive, but well-regarded in some quarters.... are you listening, #Leica men and women.... 1501 Queen Street West Toronto - an address that shall live in infamy.... supposed to be haunted, jinxed to be precise - by gangsters who stayed there during prohibition.... there's definitely something weird about it - now it's assisted housing, the weirdness will continue.... in Parkdale things just get worse.... And now - introducing a #new #subbasement #subgenre - the #TTC #Snapshot - from a moving Toronto Transit Commission vehicle - in this case the #DundasWest #Streetcar to #YongeStreet #Torontograd.... #VVVrrrooommm - actually, they make a kind of #electronic #hummm.... I find that the cheap #Industar61 is good for rapid shooting - mainly because it's light and focusses at infinity.... "This ends when you take off your mask." In #PhantomoftheOpera - it was only #thebeginning - but I somewhat agree with the sentiment, only I fear we will end before "this" will.... That is the feeling that I get after going downtown, and from walking all around my neighborhood, that it's all ending, and sooner rather than later.... There were #MarxistLeninists manning - if that's even the word for it - their little card table at the corner of Queen West and Jameson. Passing them, I queried. You're communist? Yes, one of them replied, proudly. But you ran worker slave-states, I said. Hahaha hahaha, said one of the commies. And you laugh? I said. I'm laughing AT YOU. Obviously. I didn't bother to retort the one about he who laughs last etc., or volunteer that he proved they made good donkeys too. What was the point? If genocide and mass murder couldn't convince him, how could I? Yes, ending.... And all the dead ideologies will be buried at last.... If only someone's left to pound a stake through their collective heart....

It's probably no accident that #CityofToronto #fascists like and including Jill Bada will construe mockery of their #sunshinelist #elitism - in other words mockery of #class - as a "possible" mockery of race. For one thing, #slander helps them to silence critics, by threatening them with a virtual lynching in some city-run kangaroo court. Moreover, people like and including Jill Bad, Reema Patel, and Grant Coffey don't possess a great deal of #insight. They're probably somewhat - blissfully or not - unaware that they even have a class. They just see themselves as do-gooding #socialchampions. As they simultaneously manipulate, bully, harass, and ultimately silence the people they're ostensibly doing good for. In this case elderly poor people in Toronto's crisis-prone corrupt and benighted Community Housing. #TCHC #Seniors #HousingUnit #Toronto #Torontograd #Dystopia #ClassWar - Not just #BTW - the other charges are #trumpedup too - I don't drop many #Fbombs and I've never #harassed anyone in my life - I always talk as I talk right here - if someone annoys me, I tell him or her to #gotohell - and then - usually - I'm the one to go away. Also, interpreting clauses in our lease, intended to prevent rudeness to neighbors and interference with tradesmen, as applicable to the roughandtumble of political argument on conflicted citywide committees - is #sheer #chicanery - Parkdale Community Legal Services should fight this sort of #fascist #totalitarian #bullshit.... and there, I just swore again.... so rude! better lockmeup.... I'm sure they'll try to.... they'll have to evict me first.... I'm sure they want to do that, too.... PS Perhaps not incidentally, all of my complaints, which the committee had stubbornly refused to listen to when I first made them, were subsequently confirmed when committee members themselves made them in their depositions to the city (after they'd been "dissolved").... Several committe members attempted to contact me before the depositions were made, to use my texts but by then I was too fed up with them to answer their emails - I'd also been threatened by Safety Unit goons - nothing I said is worse than what they later confirmed....

Instagram

How mockery of sunshine-list elitism is deliberately misconstrued as a "possible" racist slur in order to slander threaten and silence elderly critics. The individual is Reema Patel, author of a self-flattering novel, Such Big Dreams, in which she is a would-be champion of social justice. While working as a minder and call screener for corrupt Toronto Housing, how can this be? It can't. Reema is a hypocrite. She can go ahead and sue me, maybe even get me evicted. She tried before. I don't especially care. I'm tired of being bullied by phony social justice warriors. I'm sick and tired of their bullshit.

VIA HAND DELIVERED

March 31, 2021

Jon Rowland

Toronto, ON

Mr. Rowland:

Re: Derogatory and Inflammatory Comments and Images

As you know, you were invited to participate in the Senior Tenants Advisory Committee (the "STAC") in 2020. The STAC membership consists of Toronto Community Housing tenants, and is administered by Toronto Community Housing and City of Toronto staff members. The work of the STAC is vital to Toronto Community Housing to in order to obtain tenant insight into the implementation plan for "Tenants First" – a project aimed at improving our seniors housing – including the building where you live.

As you know, you were asked to leave the STAC after you repeatedly communicated with members of STAC inappropriately. Among other things, you:

- used profane and /or disrespectful language in your dealings with other members of the STAC; and
- inappropriately used the STAC as a platform to air your personal tenancy grievances.

It has come to my attention that in late 2020 and on January 17, 2021, January 25, 2021 and March 10, 2021, you:

- sent inflammatory and offensive communication to members of the STAC, and
- posted offensive materials on social media on your Blog "Parkdale Death Watch" and on Twitter under the handle @ParkdaleDeathW1.

Among other things, you posted images of Toronto Community Housing and/or City of Toronto staff that are highly offensive – including an image that is altered to look like the devil and an image with exaggerated features that appears to be a racist caricature.

Your actions in posting these altered images are unwelcome, unwarranted and offensive. They have harmed the people targeted and jeopardize our working relationship with the members and administrators of the STAC.

The Residential Tenancies Act clearly states that you cannot interfere with a lawful right, privilege or interest of your Landlord. Toronto Community Housing staff are entitled to complete their work without being harassed. Toronto Community Housing has a legitimate interest in maintaining a positive working relationship with other stakeholders who participate in the STAC.

In addition to this, when you executed your lease for your apartment at West Lodge, you acknowledged receipt of Toronto Community Housing's Tenant Guide. The Tenant Guide makes it clear that:

- Toronto Community Housing has a Human Rights, Harassment and Fair Access policy;
- Tenants are required to abide by Toronto Community Housing policies (including the Human Rights, Harassment and Fair Access Policy) and the law; and
- tenants are required to treat their neighbours with respect.

You can access the Tenant Guide and the current version of the Human Rights, Harassment and Fair Access Policy at the following internet addresses:

- https://www.torontohousing.ca/residents/tenantguide/Documents/TCH_TenantGuide_2014_WEB.pdf; and
- https://www.torontohousing.ca/about/Documents/human%20rights%20policy.pdf

Toronto Community Housing also has a Tenant Charter which clearly states that everyone working at, living in or visiting Toronto Community Housing shares the responsibility of maintaining a culture of respect, safety, equity and inclusiveness. You can access the Tenant Charter at the following internet address:

https://www.torontohousing.ca/residents/your-tenancy/tenant-charter/Documents/TenantCharter_May3_charteronly.pdf

Your conduct falls well below the standards expected of you.

Toronto Community Housing does not tolerate, ignore or condone any form of discrimination or harassment. Your behaviour is unacceptable and will not be tolerated.

I am directing you to:

- cease and desist any further communication or posting against Toronto Community Housing staff, tenants, and anyone who is now working with the or harassment;

- immediately remove the offending images from Twitter and your Blog – and anywhere else you may have posted them;

- immediately remove any derogatory or offensive statements from Twitter and your Blog – and anywhere else you may have posted them;

- use appropriate avenues to raise legitimate concerns about your tenancy with Toronto Community Housing like help@torontohousing.ca or 416-981-5500; and

- be respectful in your dealings with Toronto Community Housing staff, and other tenants.

Should you fail to take the remedial steps above, Toronto Community Housing may take legal action against you which may jeopardize your tenancy.

Govern yourself accordingly.

Yours truly,

Jill Bada
General Manager (I),
Seniors Housing Unit

To celebrate their "creation" of 83 "new" virtual "#nursinghomes" out of what were formerly simply designated #seniorsbuildings, #TCHC, #Toronto #Community #Housing, sent us all #fridgemagnets. I cut mine up into #littlepieces and threw it into #thetrash. They also sent us (of course) a #brochure with half a dozen blankspaces into which we were supposed to #insert #thenames of the various #sunshinelisted #wonks and officials filling all the redundant positions they'd created. No one will. The elder abuse, the sloppy policing, the bad housekeeping, the warehousing and waste continue as before, unabated. Hurrah, for their Integrated Service Model. Bully! It's just a load of #BULL. #Parkdale #AginginPlace #Disgrace #Elmar (A phrase I came across, or that came across me, in #NorthropFrye's diaries I'm reading right now, such discerning taste, pretty much sums it up, whether #Soviet or #Fascist is largely irrelevant since it all come down to roughly the same - "#managerial #despotisim".... #Word, Norrie!

I Saw in Louisiana A Live-Oak Growing BY #WALTWHITMAN I saw in Louisiana a live-oak growing, All alone stood it and the moss hung down from the branches, Without any companion it grew there uttering joyous leaves of dark green, And its look, rude, unbending, lusty, made me think of myself, But I wonder'd how it could utter joyous leaves standing alone there without its friend near, for I knew I could not, And I broke off a twig with a certain number of leaves upon it, and twined around it a little moss, And brought it away, and I have placed it in sight in my room, It is not needed to remind me as of my own dear friends, (For I believe lately I think of little else than of them,) Yet it remains to me a curious token, it makes me think of manly love; For all that, and though the live-oak glistens there in Louisiana solitary in a wide flat space, Uttering joyous leaves all its life without a friend a lover near, I know very well I could not. #SHELVED? - More #cultural #appropriation and #THEFT - thanks to Anthony Q (for #Quisling) Farrell and #BellMedia - so now we're #upthere rather #DOWNthere with #trash like and including #MaryMakesItEasy and #FarmingForLove - the real @tplparkdale practices #censorship - they wouldn't take my books of #Parkdale #streetphotography because "#CAMH CEO Catherine Zahn might not #likeit" - and one book contained the phrase "st_up_id f_g" - in the context of #corporate #bullies #tellingus #whattosay - and, in certain contexts, it's a perfectly #valid #expression - unlike the #swill #CTV produces - I'm totally disgusted by the Parkdale Branch apparently going along with this - but it's consistent with their lack of guts or principle - they've just gone one step further - beyond mere censorship - or into ultimate censorship - replacing themselves with a #Bell #mediaconstructed #FAKE.... #Toronto #CityofToronto - #Letstalk?!

For #anyones #watching - you #justconfirmedit - #Lansdowne #QueenWest #Parkdale #Toronto #Torontograd #Dystopia - #more #stupidones than you can #shakeyourwrist at - #CanonG9 #CCDsensor Interesting, sort of. Either a stupid bot or an even stupider person removed the first version of this post, because of the expression "st -p_d f_g" - which I'm sure any but the stupidest viewer will be able to fill in unaided. The expression is not anti-gay, just anti stupid or "lumpen" gays, who aren't queer, who are just boring middle-class people with none of the interesting attitude that necessarily characterized so many of their predecessors.... Moreover, most of the intelligent gays I know, all in fact, relish the phrase. Is their any point referring the banning of this to some stupid Instagram committee that possibly banned it in the first place. None whatsoever. The question is whether to bother with stupid Instagram at all, with such stupid people running it. Not to mention the viewers. That's YOU!

The #LightBulb #Police Are #Coming - The LightBULB Police Are Coming - #Green #Stasi - #ThomasEdison #Benefactor of #Mankind - and they want to #takeitback - something he would have done himself, for patent violation - how he created #Hollywood - that was a serious #accident - notice the notice - NOE - Notice of Entry of #TCHC - Toronto Community #Housing Corporation - they used to be timespecific - ie. morning, noon , or afternoon - now the contractor has a window of opportunity wider than the proverbial barn door - no doubt they're on the take too - in the past the notices were done with respecting tenants in mind, and the contractors were professional enough to do so - not any more - now every visit by a third party contractor or for that matter by Toronto Housing itself, is potentially a #HOMEINVASION.... So it goes, under the #ISM - Integrated Service Model - it was just a smokescreen for what looks increasingly like #humantrafficking in Toronto #Dystopia.... #QueenWest #Lansdowne #Parkdale Torontograd.... #Housing (#Warehousing) #Fascism - "#Managerial #Despotism ~ #NorthropFrye - Imagine! They hire an expensive team from #Greensaver to change a #lightbulb, and check to see if we need new fridges. We're elderly but most of us are still able to change a lightbulb and indeed would rather do it ourselves. We have a #superintendent on the #sunshinelist for making in excess of $100,000 annually who's "probably" competent to check our fridges. In time such waste will solve itself by bringing Toronto Housing down. #Parkdale #Toronto PS Can anyone justify how TCHC can afford to waste millions of dollars changing lightbulbs but can't afford to replace a leaky fridge? Can anyone even explain it? I think you'd have to be as wasteful and stupid as TCHC themselves....

The #Reemer's #Latest #Effusion - "Cities are an important site of political struggle" - really, Reema? - there's something wasn't on the #sunshinelist, besides your excess $100,000 income I mean - there's #money being a #callscreening #minder for the #CityofToronto - I could #parse this #porridge #dollop by dollop for a #kernel of your vaunted grit - but why bother.... The biased implication of your sappy, meandering article is that the housing crisis will only be solved by the non-profit sector... This is ironic, considering your own involvement, via the weighty sunshine-listed bureaucracy of the #CityofToronto - where you work as a (#halfassed) lawyer - with Toronto's benighted Community Housing Corporation, as a call-screener and virtual minder, most recently for the seniors' committee attempting to fix the fatally flawed Integrated Service Model. The "Model" was trashed by the Senior Tenants Advisory Committee, as a white-wash and a cash-grab, that did nothing to heed and less to address the longstanding concerns of seniors living or at least trying to live in Toronto Housing's seniors-designated buildings. The depositions made by committee members last year, some of these committee members including myself having been bullied by you in your screening" capacity - indicated no progress and indeed regression in areas from bureaucratic procedure to security. You are clearly wrong to suggest that the non-profit sector will save us from the street, your own boss being the best example of why. You being another. Either a hypocrite, or so immersed in your social-justice narcissism that you are, simply put, stupid. Sincerely Jon Rowland PS I am a tenant in what the #TCHC now calls their $Seniors Housing Unit. OPINION

Who has the right to live in a city?

REEMA PATEL

CONTRIBUTED TO THE GLOBE AND MAIL

PUBLISHED JUNE 3, 2022

According to reports, hundreds of huts were gutted in the Behrampada blaze. News media reported conflicting numbers, but at least one person died, 29 were injured and 2,000 were left homeless. Officials did not determine the cause of the fire but residents and housing-rights advocates alleged foul play, pointing the finger at private developers looking to snag a piece of prime real estate.

Each rainy monsoon morning that I travelled to work on the local trains, I passed the carnage left by the fire. Roofs were missing, walls were blackened. It was as though someone had torched the place from the sky. Families were forced to pitch tents under the nearby skywalk. For weeks, the air surrounding the station was heavy with woodsmoke, petrichor and grief.

made a city world-class. Gleaming skyscrapers piercing the clouds? Tree-lined boulevards? Perhaps it was the absence of things. Like the persistent trace element of sewage in the air. Or the unflattering sight of poor people who are priced out of a city that demands their labour but won't house them.

After my internship ended, I returned home to Toronto. Throughout law school and afterward, I thought a lot about Behrampada, but back home I was a world away.

What myths contribute to our ideas about who is entitled to occupy land, and who isn't?

Who has the right to a living space in a city, and on what terms?

I didn't have answers to these questions. So I carried on: graduating, getting called to the bar and spending the next 10 years exploring a healthy mix of careers in law, ombudsman investigations and policy development.

As the years went by, I worked closely on municipal housing-related files, from social houses in gentrifying neighbourhoods being bought and converted back into single-family homes.

FRED LUM/THE GLOBE AND MAIL

Mumbai had been on its world-class city trajectory since the early 2000s, after a report written by McKinsey & Company influenced the state government's plans to make the city more attractive to international business investment. In order to create space for new, affluent residents and their consumption-driven lifestyles, the government relied on forced eviction of people living in informal housing settlements, destroying livelihoods and communities. Between November, 2004, and February, 2005, they demolished 80,000 homes in 44 informal settlements without any rehabilitation plans. Since then, public policy has focused on using slums as a vehicle to facilitate the clearing of public land by awarding development rights as compensation to private landowners to build rehabilitation units.

While the origins of the housing crisis in Toronto are multifaceted, major policy challenges boil down to the fact that municipalities in Ontario are responsible for delivering and refugee crisis, climate change, and the financial and social effects of COVID-19, the housing crisis is unsolvable without federal leadership that holds provinces accountable and empowers municipalities, while also providing new revenue sources.

Cities are an important site of political struggle, and the state of housing in both Mumbai and Toronto casts light on the challenges that arise from profit-driven development. Without a collective social movement that both challenges the outsourcing of state responsibility to the private sector and demands intergovernmental co-operation and action, city-dwellers can expect to face a bleak future where an overreliance on the pursuit of profit further deepens inequality, and their social and economic needs remain unmet.

#TenantsFIRST? #Tenants #NEVER! Example of Communication to #Toronto #CommunityHousing's So-Called "#Senior Tenants Advisory Committee" for which I was fired from the committee, accused of harassment and racism, and threatened by "Fascist Jill" Bada and the rest of her GANG at City Hall - with EVICTION. Toronto Housing? No it's TORONTO HOMELESSNESS.... NOT just BY THE WAY. None of my suggestions criticisms and/or recommendations have been heeded, though many of them were later reiterated by the DOOMED COMMITTEE. Inflammatory language? I guess the wonks take any criticism that way. They're highly flammable, like most garbage. PS I did the poster. Some of the original committee members emailed me about it, to express their admiration. To characterize my relations with committee members as totally hostile, as suits Fascist Jill's divide-and-oppress strategy, is just another slander. As I mentioned elsewhere, more than one committee member attempted to contact me later, after they realized that they were getting the same treatment I got, presumably to use some of my material. Ultimately they did address most of my points - at least somewhat. And of course, they got nowhere, having been created by Fascist Jill Bada and the rest, merely to be a Rubber Stamp. PPS The worst phrases I ever used, and not in the context of formal meetings but of informal discussions, were GOT TO HELL, and THAT'S SHITTY. After all, I'm from Parkdale and they said they wanted my voice. But to slander me for this as OBSCENE and HARASSING - and moreover as a RACIST for one poster satirizing

to it and feel they have to. Bada, Coffey, Patel - they and all their ilk should never be allowed to work any more with any vulnerable population, least of all with seniors - indeed, they should be banned from further employment by the #CityofToronto.

"Aging in Place" or Warehousing? Fine-Tuning the New Model: A Seniors "GHETTO" - Another "Long-Term CRIME Home?!"

Global Concerns: Given the realities of what we euphemistically call "aging in place," with declining health and increasing frailty, seniors will not have the benefit of younger tenants to advocate on their behalf, and will be unable to fend for themselves, to deal effectively with the opaque and obtuse bureaucracy of a system in which just getting a 2nd set of keys is an arbitrary byzantine ordeal.

Without compensation for this factor, Toronto's new Seniors Housing Unit risks becoming a ghetto for old people - not "tenants first" but tenants never. Without detailed improvement to procedures and processes, on the real-life level of tenants' interaction with staff, especially the so called "Housing Stability Coordinator" and the Superintendent, "aging in place" will be just another euphemism for warehousing.

From perusing the "Summary of the Integrated Service Model," a great deal depends on this newly minted Housing Stability Coordinator. Merely divvying up the duties of the Tenant Services Coordinator, assigning some to a so-called Housing Stability Coordinator, and installing a Housing Stability Coordinator in every building won't by itself improve anything, least of all services to seniors - unless the processes also change and staff somehow become accountable to make them work. Without that it will be not "tenants first" but "tenants... one of these days" or "tenants... a cold day in hell."

The devil is in these details, which minder / consultants Grant Coffey and Reema Patel, and Tenants Advisory Committee Chair Anita Dresser, echoing them, seek to deflect and dismiss, as just a "gripe." This should not be allowed since it reduces the Senior Tenants Advisory Committee to a rubber stamp, and indicates that the Integrated Service Model will simply replicate previous mistakes and therefore fail.

Communications via posters etc. In the past these have been sloppily produced with erroneous and/or confusing information, unsigned. Greater care needs to go into such communications, and all of them should be signed, thereby making the signer responsible for their accuracy. Mail boxes were left damaged for months. A sign went up – sloppily xeroxed – telling elderly tenants to get their mail somewhere in Mississauga – at a posts office that didn't exist. When this was pointed out to Ms Phillips she said an error had been made. That much was obvious. There as no apology, and no one took responsibility for the typically stupid poster – including Ms Phillips.

Notice of Entry Forms. These have repeatedly been incorrectly prepared and probably therefore illegal. In many cases they have not been time specific, and have not been signed by the Superintendent or any other member of TCHC staff. This amounts to contractors issuing and signing their own Entry Forms – to enter whenever they wish. There have even been "blanket" NOEs, for the entire building, not delivered to any tenants but simply posted on the front door.

This is improper and – again – probably illegal. This indicates a general lack of oversight on the part of TCHC management. All NOEs should be signed by the Superintendent or his assistant and should be time specific – and should give the tenant at least 24 hours notice.

Rounds. Staff don't do regular rounds, to systematically check for problems and to trouble-shoot. The Superintendent (or the Assistant Superintendent) should do a complete round of his or her building at least once a week, probably more often. This should result in a weekly report on trouble-spots, repairs, renovations etc, a copy of which should go to the so-called Housing Stability Coordinator to see that progress is made addressing such areas.

Security. I think our security has improved slightly, but there is still room for important procedural improvement. When a tenant calls security and a special constable comes onto the property to address the issue, the constable should also make an effort to speak to the caller, if only to confirm his visit. Whenever a tenant calls security to report an issue, a report should be made by the operator and a copy given to the HSC and to the Superintendent. Except where urgent, these reports could be compiled and submitted on a weekly basis to identify areas where greater resources should be deployed.

Illegal Activity. At present when a tenant reports illegal activity the TSC might or might not respond but even if the TSC does respond it will likely only be to thank the tenant for the information. While respecting confidentiality, greater responsiveness is in order to assure the tenant that the TSC (now the HSC) has at least read the tenant's report and responded to it. Again, while respecting confidentiality, the TSC (HSC) should be able to indicate what steps have been taken, what the process is, and where the matter is in the process. At present none of this occurs; at most, the TSC will acknowledge that some sort of process is underway. This process needs to be faster and more effective than it presently is. When the process has to involve the police, this interaction should as much as possible be between the TSC (now the HSC) and the police, to avoid tenant vs. tenant interaction. All steps should be taken to avoid any matter of illegal activity becoming a tenant vs tenant matter. At most it should be a TCHC vs tenant matter, with the HSC and the Superintendent – perhaps especially the latter – acting as intermediaries.

More Pro-Active Enforcement of Terms of Lease. In the recent past the TSC has more or less "passed the buck" regarding illegal activity and simply referred the tenant to the police. This is not the best way to go. Indeed it leaves any tenant doing so open to intimidation, harassment, threats and reprisals. This would be highly undesirable for anyone, but potentially even more so for a senior. It should be noted that the lease prohibits not just any illegal activity, but any potentially disruptive "business" activity on the premises. Generally, in a seniors environment, any such activity involving a lot of traffic is disruptive and, in a post-pandemic world, potentially contagious too. At present the TSC seems reluctant to enforce the terms of the lease, which is regrettable considering that such enforcement is in fact an important service to seniors.

Better Intake. Many tenants do not appear to be aware of issues surrounding illegal activity, illegal smoking, unauthorized business activity, breeches of fire safety (including leaving fire and unit doors open allowing fire to spread, smoke to set off alarms, etc), excessive noise, illegal occupancy, etc. These things need to be indicated more emphatically during the intake process. It should be emphasized that while these things are generally not tolerated, this is especially the case in a seniors environment. Perhaps new tenants should be required to sign a specific additional form in reference to these issues.

Transfers. The transfer process needs to be more tailored to seniors, who are vulnerable to intimidation and situations of elder abuse. It should be easier for a senior to effect a transfer, without necessarily involving a statement by the police. The HSC – or perhaps the Tenant Services Administrator – should have the discretion to grant such transfers within the seniors buildings.

Call-Centre Interaction. The call-centre should have greater procedural flexibility to address and redress a developing crisis. If, for example, they cannot get a repairman to the problem within a brief period, they should be able to get another. The wait time for a call-centre operator should never be longer than 10 minutes. When wait times begin to get longer, the call-centre should be able to deploy more operators. The wait times during the pandemic, obviously an emergency situation, have been atrocious.

For example, as a resident one can call the Care Centre. They will usually refer the matter to some official, who will then refer one to a process. The processes often fail to achieve the positive results that - one assumes - they were intended to achieve. In other words, they are not as good as they should be at providing services to anyone, let alone to seniors who have special needs and vulnerabilities. One's apartment may be flooding, and hours after one has called the Care Centre, there is still no plumber in sight, but the Care Centre will do nothing more because they have followed the procedure. This attitude, which is like that of the doctor who considers the operation a success even when his patient dies, is endemic among TCHC staff. This is the culture of TCHC, and this has to improve if one is really going to expedite services to seniors, and not just processes. Passing the buck is harmful to the whole system, but is especially harmful to seniors who might be frail and in declining health, isolated and unable to advocate effectively for themselves. The attitude needs to be less "pass the buck," more "the buck stops here."

Identifying and Removing Trespassers. Repeat trespassers should be identified to all staff and banned from the property. All staff should be required, upon spotting a trespasser, to ask the trespasser to leave and/or to notify Security (or Police) to escort the trespasser off the property. In the past staff, including Superintendents, have done little or nothing to get even known trespassers off the property.

Follow-up and Oversight. This is generally woefully inadequate. Contractors appear to have free-reign, which allows them to cut corners, create delay, and make mistakes that don't immediately get corrected. Emergency repairs are not followed up, and should be. All such activity should be reported to the Superintendent, who should then follow-up with the tenants affected.

For example, May Robinson Apartments recently received, along with other buildings, new security cameras which, a year later, still have not been completely installed. The staff were not adequately informed regarding them, and while about a month ago one technician did a lot of the work entirely by himself, the project has stalled again and remains unfinished – this weeks after the problem was brought to the attention of the Call Centre. The inordinate delay – and waste – cannot be blamed on the pandemic. Delays occurred before the pandemic and after restrictions were lifted. Moreover, security cameras are essential - for security. There has been no oversight and consequently no accountability. Such deficiencies cannot be allowed to continue into the new seniors model if services are really to be improved.

Other instances of inadequate oversight include the pest control initiative a few years ago (no follow-up or oversight), the air-conditioner replacement program (little oversight, improper NOEs, etc) etc.

Diarization. Routine maintenance and upkeep, such as replacing the batteries in the emergency doors, does not get done because the Superintendent does not diarize such work – or do rounds. It is left up to tenants themselves to notify the Superintendent, after the door (for example) has visibly malfunctioned and trespassers have started to illegally enter the building. Problems should be addressed before they occur – prevented, in other words.

THIS IS NOT AN EXHAUSTIVE LIST!

Staff STILL do NOT do ROUNDS, so the GROUNDS are allowed to look like THIS....

Communications by Coffey and Patel for the STAC (Senior Tenants Advisory Committee) continue to be UNSIGNED , INCOMPLETE and INADEQUATE, more like CONDESCENDING PROPAGANDA than INFORMATION ....

Senior tenants are listening to you

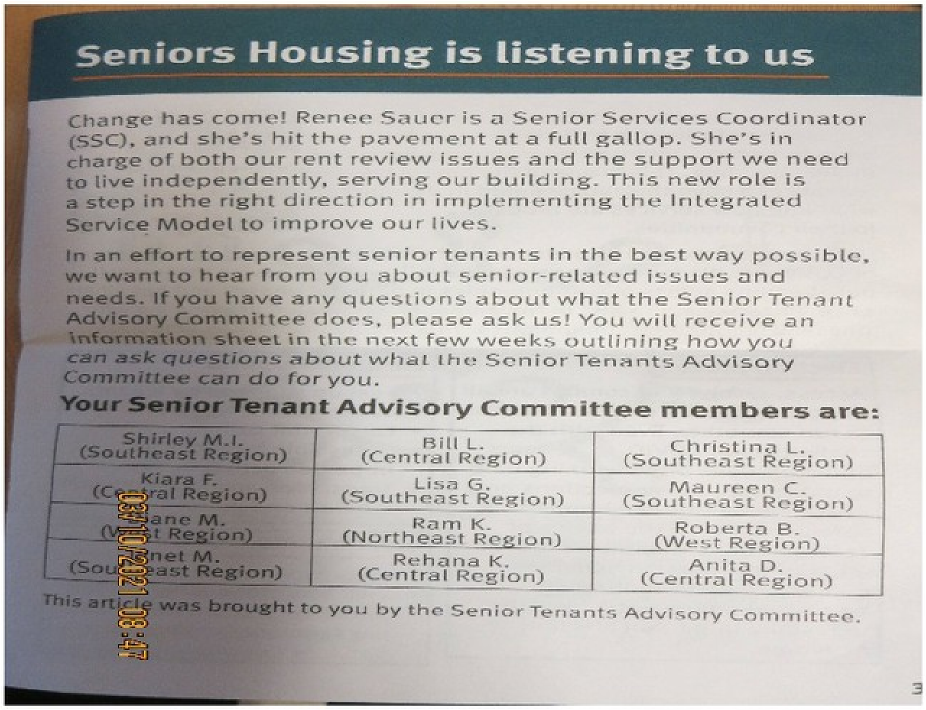

We are the Senior Tenant Advisory Committee. We are a group of senior tenants who live in Seniors Housing Unit buildings across Toronto. The City of Toronto has mandated that TCHC develop programming that allows senior tenants to age in place with dignity by providing multiple accessible supports, along with increased and enhanced staffing. The new programs, partnerships and policies that will be put in place in your building are all part of the Integrated Service Model (ISM).

The City has also mandated that TCHC create a Senior Tenant Advisory Committee (STAC) made up of senior tenants. Our role is to provide feedback and advice to the Seniors Housing Unit and to assist with the design and delivery of the ISM that will be integrated in every seniors building by 2022.

We have met with Seniors Housing and City staff twice since December, and have discussed:

- The role of the new Senior Services Coordinator (SSC)
- Consent and confidentiality issues
- Accountability of staff and services
- Clearer, less ambiguous communication with meaningful engagement

Seniors Housing is listening to us

Change has come! Renee Sauer is a Senior Services Coordinator (SSC), and she's hit the pavement at a full gallop. She's in charge of both our rent review issues and the support we need to live independently, serving our building. This new role is a step in the right direction in implementing the Integrated Service Model to improve our lives.

In an effort to represent senior tenants in the best way possible, we want to hear from you about senior-related issues and needs. If you have any questions about what the Senior Tenant Advisory Committee does, please ask us! You will receive an information sheet in the next few weeks outlining how you can ask questions about what the Senior Tenants Advisory Committee can do for you.

Your Senior Tenant Advisory Committee members are:

Shirley M.I. (Southeast Region)	Bill L. (Central Region)	Christina L. (Southeast Region)

This purports to have been written by the STAC committee, but who REALLY writes the (SOME) "Seniors Speak" flyer? Who is responsible for it? A curious statements asserts that this "bs" was "brought to you" by the committee - which could mean anything - or - most likely – NOTHING!

Some anonymous hack, then, writes about accountability. How ironic! That would start by signing articles. In fact everything in this flyer should be signed - and NOTHING is! Otherwise, it appears to come from faceless handlers. It could still come from handlers, and essentially confirm a corporate point of view, but at least we'd know who they were. We already have a pretty good idea. (Grant Coffey? Reema Patel? Is that you? I bet!)

(NO?) "Seniors Speak" is woefully weak on details, especially where it "reports," or rather fails to report, on the Integrated Service Model and the rubber-stamp Senior Tenants Advisory Committee. They've apparently met twice, and talked in general terms about accountability. Bully! Who would not be for accountability, but where is it? Nowhere in this so-called newsletter, unsigned and possibly generated by robots.

Some handler (or robot) triumphantly announces "change has come" sounding somewhat like a Stalinist party-hack announcing another 5-year plan. But the only "change" identified is the promotion of the great Renee Sauer to Senior Tenant Services Coordinator. Nobody even knows what her position is, except that Ms Sauer is enthusiast about it. The idea of her "hitting the ground running" - to do our over-complicated, obsolete and largely unnecessary Rent Reviews - is simply laughable. Let's hope she doesn't get hurt upon impact. Get those Rent Reviews, Tiger!

How Ms Sauer improves our lives is never explained, only that she does - and she's (evidently) WONDERFUL at it. This really is nothing but poorly written corporate "bs." It's sad to think that we pay some people (who understandingly wish to remain anonymous) for such hack-work, such swill. Too bad!

There are long-standing systemic problems in city-run seniors-designated buildings (illegal activity, policing, access, conflict of interest, lack of oversight, apartment take-overs, elder-abuse, and generally deplorable management - to name just a few), but there is no indication that this much vaunted (but over-complicated and terribly bloated) Integrated Service Model is ever going to address them or even could. And it's a pity that none of these get anywhere near the white-washed pages of this so-called (largely fake) Newsletter.

Well, maybe if people have to sign what they write in the so-called letter, they'll at least try to do better. Maybe....

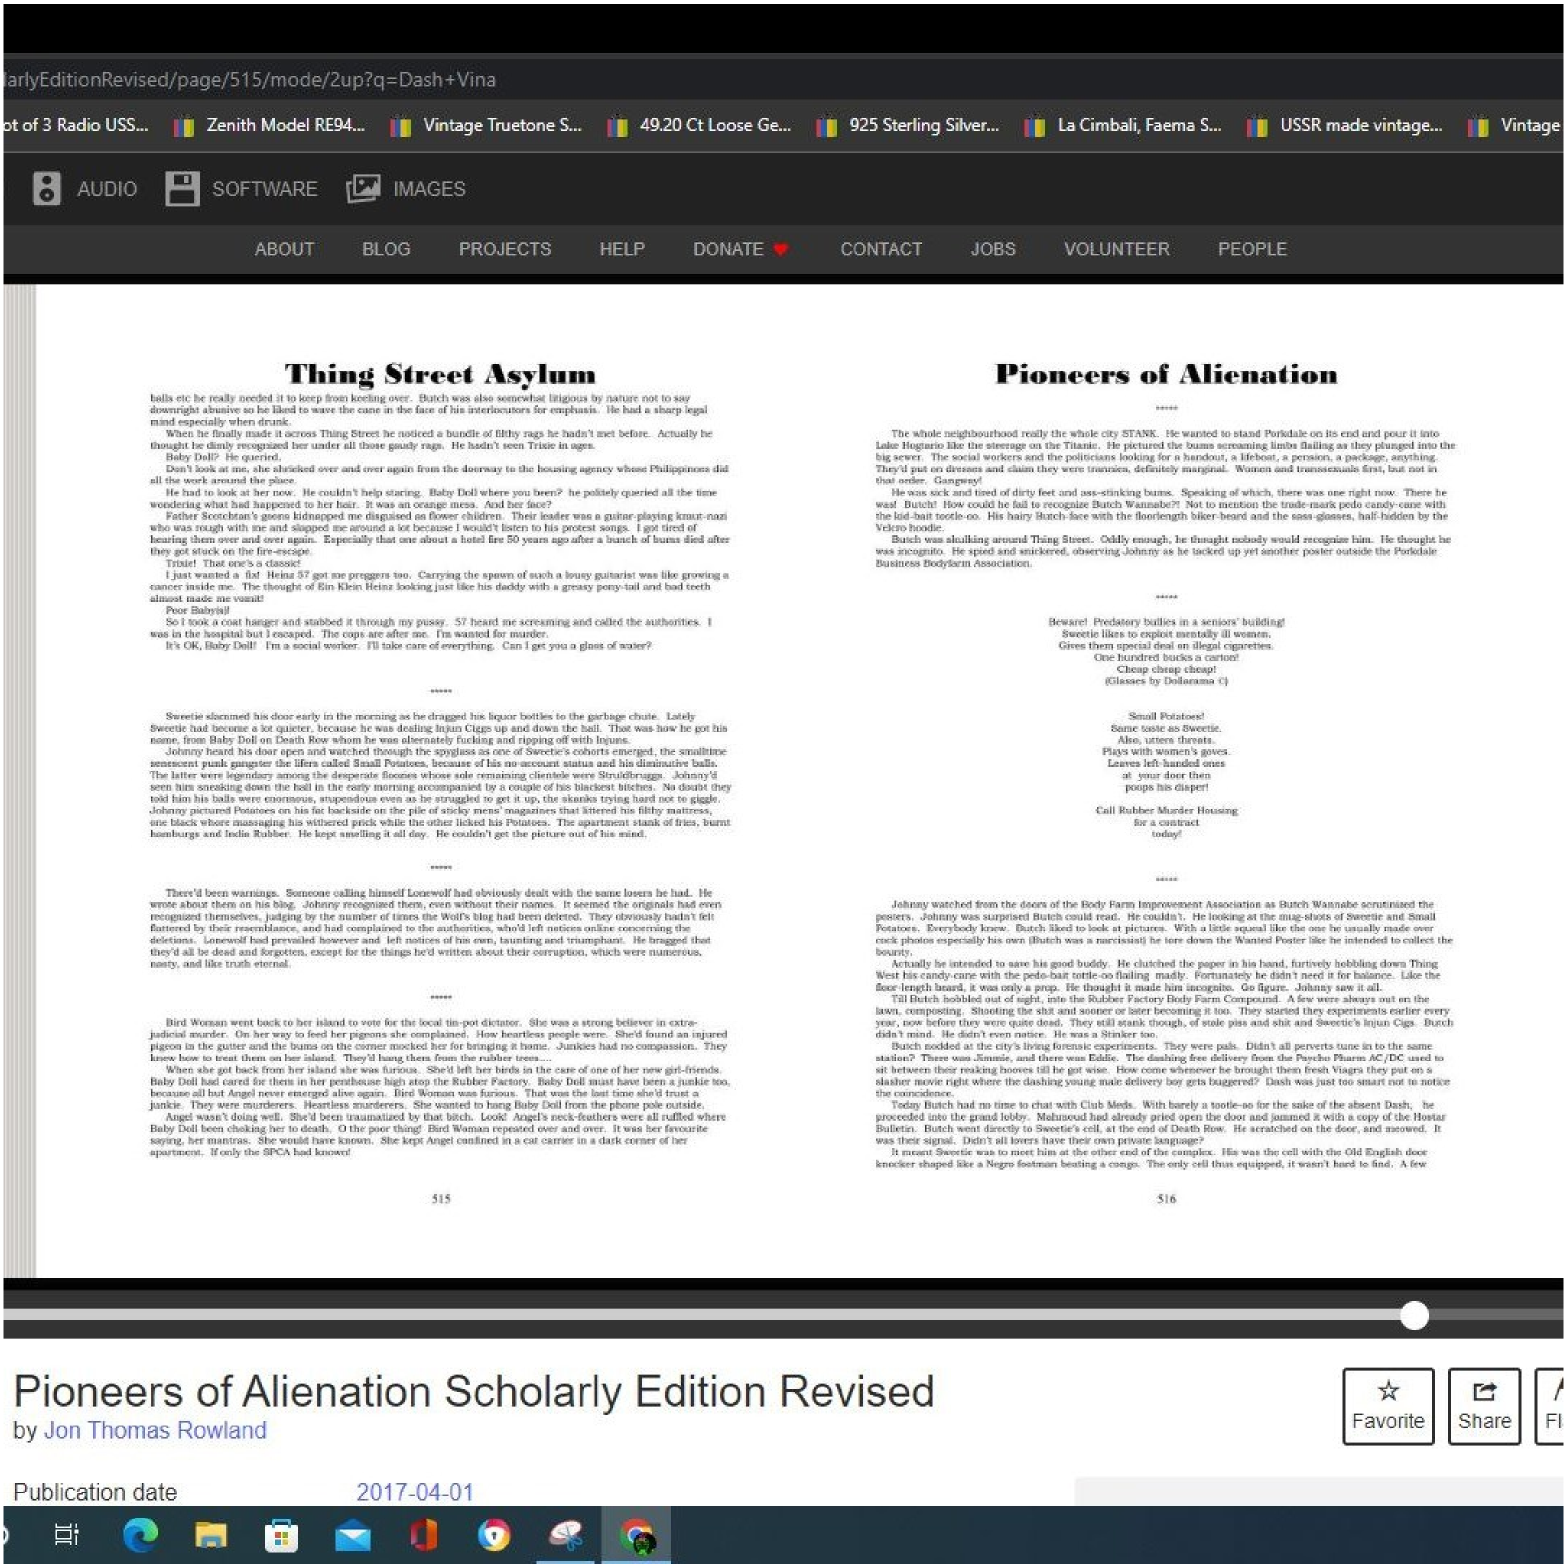

P.S. Unsigned pamphlets glorifying the party-line (ie. propaganda) really are a Stalinist or more generally a totalitarian tool. That Toronto Community Housing and its operatives (including but by no means limited to Grant Coffey and Reema Patel) continue to employ such tactics belies all their talk of inclusiveness and accountability.

It increasingly looks like the new Seniors Housing Units will be less like apartments buildings than seniors' asylums, where the most inmates could expect from management would be condescension, exploitation and manipulation. Instead of appealing to alleged "authorities" like and including this Christine Sheppard they're so fond of quoting (for bromides), TCHC would be well-advised to consult Erving Goffman's classic Asylums: Essays on the Social Situation of Mental Patients and Other Inmates for its apt description of "total institutions" - orphanages, poor homes and - of course - nursing homes.

No change has yet come – at least none for the better.

balls etc he really needed it to keep from keeling over. Butch was also somewhat litigious by nature not to say downright abusive so he liked to wave the cane in the face of his interlocutors for emphasis. He had a sharp legal mind especially when drunk.

When he finally made it across Thing Street he noticed a bundle of filthy rags he hadn't met before. Actually he thought he dimly recognized her under all those gaudy rags. He hadn't seen Trixie in ages.

Baby Doll? He queried.

Don't look at me, she shrieked over and over again from the doorway to the housing agency whose Philippinos did all the work around the place.

He had to look at her now. He couldn't help staring. Baby Doll where you been? he politely queried all the time wondering what had happened to her hair. It was an orange mess. And her face?

Father Scotchtan's goons kidnapped me disguised as flower children. Their leader was a guitar-playing kraut-nazi who was rough with me and slapped me around a lot because I wouldn't listen to his protest songs. I got tired of hearing them over and over again. Especially that one about a hotel fire 50 years ago after a bunch of bums died after they got stuck on the fire-escape.

Trixie! That one's a classic!

I just wanted a fix! Heinz 57 got me preggers too. Carrying the spawn of such a lousy guitarist was like growing a cancer inside me. The thought of Ein Klein Heinz looking just like his daddy with a greasy pony-tail and bad teeth almost made me vomit!

Poor Baby(s)!

So I took a coat hanger and stabbed it through my pussy. 57 heard me screaming and called the authorities. I was in the hospital but I escaped. The cops are after me. I'm wanted for murder.

It's OK, Baby Doll! I'm a social worker. I'll take care of everything. Can I get you a glass of water?

Sweetie slammed his door early in the morning as he dragged his liquor bottles to the garbage chute. Lately Sweetie had become a lot quieter, because he was dealing Injun Ciggs up and down the hall. That was how he got his name, from Baby Doll on Death Row whom he was alternately fucking and ripping off with Injuns.

Johnny heard his door open and watched through the spyglass as one of Sweetie's cohorts emerged, the smalltime senescent punk gangster the lifers called Small Potatoes, because of his no-account status and his diminutive balls. The latter were legendary among the desperate floozies whose sole remaining clientele were Struldbruggs. Johnny'd seen him sneaking down the hall in the early morning accompanied by a couple of his blackest bitches. No doubt they told him his balls were enormous, stupendous even as he struggled to get it up, the skanks trying hard not to giggle. Johnny pictured Potatoes on his fat backside on the pile of sticky mens' magazines that littered his filthy mattress, one black whore massaging his withered prick while the other licked his Potatoes. The apartment stank of fries, burnt hamburgs and India Rubber. He kept smelling it all day. He couldn't get the picture out of his mind.

There'd been warnings. Someone calling himself Lonewolf had obviously dealt with the same losers he had. He wrote about them on his blog. Johnny recognized them, even without their names. It seemed the originals had even recognized themselves, judging by the number of times the Wolf's blog had been deleted. They obviously hadn't felt flattered by their resemblance, and had complained to the authorities, who'd left notices online concerning the deletions. Lonewolf had prevailed however and left notices of his own, taunting and triumphant. He bragged that they'd all be dead and forgotten, except for the things he'd written about their corruption, which were numerous, nasty, and like truth eternal.

Bird Woman went back to her island to vote for the local tin-pot dictator. She was a strong believer in extra-judicial murder. On her way to feed her pigeons she complained. How heartless people were. She'd found an injured pigeon in the gutter and the bums on the corner mocked her for bringing it home. Junkies had no compassion. They knew how to treat them on her island. They'd hang them from the rubber trees....

When she got back from her island she was furious. She'd left her birds in the care of one of her new girl-friends. Baby Doll had cared for them in her penthouse high atop the Rubber Factory. Baby Doll must have been a junkie too, because all but Angel never emerged alive again. Bird Woman was furious. That was the last time she'd trust a junkie. They were murderers. Heartless murderers. She wanted to hang Baby Doll from the phone pole outside.

Angel wasn't doing well. She'd been traumatized by that bitch. Look! Angel's neck-feathers were all ruffled where Baby Doll been choking her to death. O the poor thing! Bird Woman repeated over and over. It was her favourite saying, her mantras. She would have known. She kept Angel confined in a cat carrier in a dark corner of her apartment. If only the SPCA had known!

The whole neighbourhood really the whole city STANK. He wanted to stand Porkdale on its end and pour it into Lake Hogtario like the steerage on the Titanic. He pictured the bums screaming limbs flailing as they plunged into the big sewer. The social workers and the politicians looking for a handout, a lifeboat, a pension, a package, anything. They'd put on dresses and claim they were trannies, definitely marginal. Women and transsexuals first, but not in that order. Gangway!

He was sick and tired of dirty feet and ass-stinking bums. Speaking of which, there was one right now. There he was! Butch! How could he fail to recognize Butch Wannabe?! Not to mention the trade-mark pedo candy-cane with the kid-bait tootle-oo. His hairy Butch-face with the floorlength biker-beard and the sass-glasses, half-hidden by the Velcro hoodie.

Butch was skulking around Thing Street. Oddly enough, he thought nobody would recognize him. He thought he was incognito. He spied and snickered, observing Johnny as he tacked up yet another poster outside the Porkdale Business Bodyfarm Association.

Johnny watched from the doors of the Body Farm Improvement Association as Butch Wannabe scrutinized the posters. Johnny was surprised Butch could read. He couldn't. He looking at the mug-shots of Sweetie and Small Potatoes. Everybody knew. Butch liked to look at pictures. With a little squeal like the one he usually made over cock photos especially his own (Butch was a narcissist) he tore down the Wanted Poster like he intended to collect the bounty.

Actually he intended to save his good buddy. He clutched the paper in his hand, furtively hobbling down Thing West his candy-cane with the pedo-bait tottle-oo flailing madly. Fortunately he didn't need it for balance. Like the floor-length beard, it was only a prop. He thought it made him incognito. Go figure. Johnny saw it all.

Till Butch hobbled out of sight, into the Rubber Factory Body Farm Compound. A few were always out on the lawn, composting. Shooting the shit and sooner or later becoming it too. They started they experiments earlier every year, now before they were quite dead. They still stank though, of stale piss and shit and Sweetie's Injun Cigs. Butch didn't mind. He didn't even notice. He was a Stinker too.

Butch nodded at the city's living forensic experiments. They were pals. Didn't all perverts tune in to the same station? There was Jimmie, and there was Eddie. The dashing free delivery from the Psycho Pharm AC/DC used to sit between their reaking hooves till he got wise. How come whenever he brought them fresh Viagra they put on a slasher movie right where the dashing young male delivery boy gets buggered? Dash was just too smart not to notice the coincidence.

Today Butch had no time to chat with Club Meds. With barely a tootle-oo for the sake of the absent Dash, he proceeded into the grand lobby. Mahmoud had already pried open the door and jammed it with a copy of the Mostar Bulletin. Butch went directly to Sweetie's cell, at the end of Death Row. He scratched on the door, and meowed. It was their signal. Didn't all lovers have their own private language?

It meant Sweetie was to meet him at the other end of the complex. His was the cell with the Old English door knocker shaped like a Negro footman beating a conga. The only cell thus equipped, it wasn't hard to find. A few moments later the footman drummed a Jazz tattoo like Buddy Rich on an off day. Sweetie had talent.

Sweetie had an enormous yellow hard-on for Johnny. Especially when he saw the poster. He started to swear. He foamed at the mouth. Johnny always at his door! He lied. He bent down to Butch's greasy smoke-stained door to illustrate. Like that! He lied. Johnny take my picture! He lied! And my little boy! Lies! We scured! Lies lies lies.

Johnny only took his picture surreptitiously through the spy-glass on his door. All the pictures were of Sweetie dealing his garbage in the hall, the common area. The one exception was of Sweetie on the tricycle he rode to make deliveries. A few photos showed the minor, the so-called little boy, a pre-diebetic fatty loitering with one of the dealers in the hall, the common area. The minor hadn't even known. All the pictures had been taken with the approval of the Commissars of Rubber Housing, and subsequently forwarded to the Police.

Sweetie had him as a world-class pornographer, up there with Andy Milligan. Not that he knew who that was, or didn't love porn at least as much as Butch. People said an old whore made a good nun. It was obviously true, albeit briefly in their case.

Sweetie abandoned his apartment to a gang of pimps, crack-whores and dealers. The Comissar of Client Services was notified but only sent him letters one after the other which of course Sweetie ignored as over the next three years he disrupted the building, exhausted his ciggy stink into the hall, set off the fire alarms, preyed upon mentally ill and retarded women, chased old women down the hall, dealt illegal cigarettes and drugs at exorbitant predatory rates, enabled trespassers and vagrants who acted out in the building, rode his tricycle up and down the hall running over Old Bugger and his pals delivering injuns door to door, placed nuisance calls to the police, illegally cohabited with a minor, lied and lied and lied, and of course violated every safety measure in his seniors' building.

Sweetie! What a great guy!

The emergency door was routinely defective because tampered with and staff never noticed because nobody ever did rounds. The Sheik and his associates routinely taped it open with the bright yellow tape they stole from crime scenes. Johnny saw it from his window, but staff never noticed.

With trespassers, fellow dealers and gang members Small Potatoes tottered down the staircase onto Death Row. It was midnight and The Plague was raging but even with half a mozzarella his problem wasn't senile dementia it was drugs and booze. Now he'd left his pot on the stove and just forgot about it setting off the fire alarm.

Some of the black gangsters who squatted in his cell were already talking to the firemen in the hall. The door was open and another gangster was fanning the air under the fire alarm. Don't worry about it! Forget about it! said Potatoes. Suddenly the alarm stopped.

Goddammit! With all the excitement I pooped my diaper, muttered Small Potatoes headed for the toilet.

What a great man! The stinker!

Needless to say Thing West stank like a corpse already. The Hood had been destroyed by the virus. It had been on life-support already, with all the over-priced unsustainable vegan hipster joints. The virus just pulled the plug. Now it was a big mercantile body farm. The question being how much it would take these deceased enterprises to go away. The obvious answer was not long.

Even the pubic library was closed, so the bums had nowhere to pinch one. That was all it was good for anyway. Their collection stank. They refused to stock anything that Trixie Zane, CEO of the local bin that filled all the boarding homes with their schizoid clients, wouldn't like. Johnny felt excluded. He just didn't feel comfortable in a library that refused to stock his books. He could crap in the street.

Everyone else did. Taking an empty streetcar to desolate empty downtown, Mannikins spotted one of the regulars with his filthy denims around his fruit boots, his spectacularly fat butt exposed with a suitably fat turd protruding from it like a cigar from the leering Bozo clown-face of W.C. Fields. There was a tent city behind him of similar fucks. Evidently nobody had a pot to piss in, or shit either. The streetcar paused to let some poor loser disembark, like he really had somewhere he wanted to go. It felt like a tour bus, halting so the marks could take in the local colour. The driver telling them through a megaphone that if they cared to look to their right, they'd see a real piece wiping himself. Must be tidy!

Johnny avoided Thing Street. Dungass was classier. True the veganistas had penetrated there too but there were still a few Portuguese butcher shops. They proudly displayed blood sausage in their windows. The vegans shrank when they passed them screaming inwardly. Then, after, Dungass, came El Dorado. Worthless World! The regulars wandered all day among the trash, finally lining up for half an hour to buy a couple of Pokemon cards they didn't even want. Just to buy something. To prove they existed. Nobody would say they were alive. That was going too far. The trash was more alive.

There was Phil I Stine, in tight-assed jeans, black t shirt, and mandatory Blundstones ©. Too bad about the rest. He'd grown grey, and had a washed out face. He managed the very-very gallery on Thing West, a front for Kiwanis Club Philistines. It was located in an old Cop Shop, naturally the finest edifice on the whole strip. Phil I Stine Phil got a free apartment from the Kiwanis Club, just for doing art the way someone with a regular metabolism takes a crap every morning, with virtually the same result. He was a loser.

He based his whole career on buying up a ton of toy robots, photographing them in storefront windows, and displaying the photographs in his own gallery. Now he was examing the obsolete gadgets handing from the wall in cellophane baggies. More robot body parts? Maybe it felt like a gallery. Making him feel right at home. Johnny was afraid to touch anything he'd handled. Phil I Stine was probably carrying....

Lafferty was always at Worthless World. He was a regular bottom-feeder. Which was an oxymoron, since there was nothing regular about the denizens of Worthless World, not even their digestion. They were what his ancestors used to put on iceburgs and shove out to sea with hungry polar bears. Bottom-feeding coelacanths that hadn't gone instinct because of some kind of evolutionary sick joke. They were worse than the garbage they collected, less than worthless. They were black poison holes in the monetary system.

Lafferty lived with his brother and one traumatized tenant in a gigantic mansion full of shit. He spent his whole life collecting and rearranging it in little piles on the floor and on shelves that even obscured his windows. He could hardly breathe in there. Daylight never penetrated.

He especially favoured playing cards. After years of hoarding it could safely be said he wasn't playing with a full deck. He never would be. It wasn't in the cards. The Joker! The Hanged Man! He would scour the baggies along the West Wall for fresh ones. He'd find some but not at the right price. He'd examine the deck like a croupier before seasoned gamblers, looking for a cheat. He'd count them. Twice! He'd put them back then retrieve them. Twice! Finally he'd spend $5, but it took an effort. After all he didn't drink or smoke. He was a health nut. Always dieting.

Lafferty was short so Johnny had trouble finding him in the aisles. If Lafferty hadn't shave in weeks, as was often the case, Johnny wouldn't be able to recognize him under that off-white Butch. Now because there was a plague on he wore a mask as well. Johnny figured he was hiding. If Lafferty spotted Johnny first, he'd just leave. Or more likely continue his rounds, and then leave. Lafferty had a system, a routine. He was nothing if not regular in his habits. The one thing regular about him. About some of his habits, anyway.

He would scour every single aisle, looking for the objects he desired. After playing cards, he sought toy puppets, Mexican Day of the Dead Memorabilia for his big little sister, anatomical models, camera lenses, German radios, bead-work belts, wampum.... If Johnny tagged along, Lafferty would get annoyed. He got in his way. Sometimes Johnny thought Lafferty lived only for garbage. He didn't value his friendship. He did, but somewhat less than garbage.

Thrifting was a way of life, the announcer said over the in-store loud-speaker. No! It was a way of death.

In the parking lot, loading his binder of coveted playing cards into his bicycle carrier, Lafferty waxed poetic. He was already 70, but he was in great shape. He was off to the gym right now. Johnny told him to be careful, or he'd become a Struldbrugg. He thought he'd go for 100, he said and spat a big gucy glob onto the pavement. Deep, Johnny thought.

Thing Street Asylum

Sweetie tossing boxes in to the garbage closet. Boxes and boxes of Junior's cereal. All artificially flavored sugary wheat confections. That and no exercise except when Sweetie used him for cover when he went out at night to buy drugs on Thing Street. No wonder the kid was fat and sick. No doubt Sweetie'd told her the kid wasn't around out of concern for his safety. Bird Woman believed him. She'd believe anything if it was nasty enough. Bitch!

The air-conditioner and the so-called jazz station playing the same best-offs over and over and his tablet tuned to Sean Hannity raving about the mob and the media and the crime wave in Chicago and New York City and the virus science was going to kill with hydroxychloroquine. Soothing cacophony. Now Sean was peddling a sleep remedy derived from cannabis. Good relief! Immediately assuring everybody. It won't get you high! After all it was a right wing station. Suddenly the jazz station was playing a sappy version of Chaplin's Smile. After all it was a jazz station. Smile wasn't jazz. It was sappy like Chaplin. Could you imagine a scat version? He preferred the air-conditioner. White noise was soothing.

It was a day for old people. He heard a Struldbrugg's cane tap-tapping against the tiles somewhere down Death Row. It had to be a Struldbrugg. No human beings made such noise. He was obviously enjoying himself. Itself? He'd vary the rhythm just enough to disappoint his expectation. The Tease! Then he'd resume tap-tapping. He was going from door to door looking for someone. He heard him outside the Bird Woman's. He must have met her in the hall on her way to the pigeons because she definitely wouldn't have answered the door. Johnny heard her yacking away saying it was probably that guy. At first he thought she meant himself. Figured she'd blab about him because he hadn't offered her any empathy when she'd bitched about her mail. She'd complained about the way the mailman circled her address on her envelopes because he was defacing her private property. He'd refused to side with her that time so now she'd turn him in if given the opportunity. Maybe the opportunity had presented itself. However when the man knocked on his own door he turned around immediately to face Sweetie's door. Sweetie was probably the guy he was looking for. Not to buy his lousy Injuns probably to complain about him. Maybe for slamming his door shaking the building every time he sauntered off down Death Row to swindle Griselda. Which was often. Johnny and Bird Woman were just corroboration. Of course Johnny still didn't answer. He watched as the intruder gave up and proceeded down the hall to the next door and Sweetie poked his bald head out his door and peered after him wondering why he hadn't got a knock. Johnny would give him a knock all right.

He went out through the parking lot. The main entrance on the circular driveway of the Irish remittance man's Big House wasn't safe. Bums from Thing Street congregated there and sold drugs. Then there were the old gossips who scrutinized everyone who passed and made rude remarks. Club Meds. The parking lot wasn't great either but it was away from Thing Street. Fewer bums and no Welcome Wagon. It was better lit and there was usually a cop car there with a cop in it or at least a special constable. Entering through the parking lot today however he had to pass through a gang of motorized senile delinquents waiting for their elevator. A fat Slavic woman in Capri pants blocked his way on her scooter. He'd seen her before complaining about Sweetie. He said excuse me but with a circular motion of her pinky she indicated that she wanted him to go around. That passed him off. After all she was the one on the scooter. So he abruptly squeezed by her while her social worker looked on.

Dash was socializing with the members of Club Meds on the patch of parched grass beside the Irish imposter's circular drive. They watched as an ebony personnel manager in a black sports utility with tinted windows peeled rubber drive around then sped off to Thing Street. The driveway was a favorite spot for that and for waiting to make drug deals. The Struldbruggs didn't deal much because they were so exceedingly cheap and mean it was impossible to come to turns with them let alone make honour their agreements. The few personnel managers who dealt with them usually got badly burnt.

Club Meds was the Rubber Factory's answer to Welcome Wagon. The members were hostile and rude to pedestrians. They didn't hesitate to comment on everyone's appearance by insulting it. If they saw somebody had just been shopping they eyed his bags greedily and wanted to know what was in them. Because they wanted what was in them. Whatever it was they wanted it. They could have charged toll. They felt like it. Most of them were already motorized just like the cops only subtler and meaner. They sat all day on their chariots watching for suitable targets for hit and run.

Nobody knew what most of them did in real life. Probably nothing. Their ring leader was a retired schoolteacher the worst sort of person. He must have recognized something in common with Johnny. Like they were brothers in awefulness. He had a big hard for him and antagonize him every opportunity. He called him Smiley. He said he was gaining weight. After Johnny cut his hair he wanted to know if he had cancer. He looked like he was getting radiation treatments.

Edwin was the second in command of Club Meds. He used to be a superintendent in a real apartment building not a Rubber Factory compound. He was almost as bad as the failed schoolteacher. He hated Murder Housing. He said they'd never had a real superintendent. One who did rounds. He'd done them every day. It was a fact that in the Rubber Factory one might see management in one's part of the compound for months at a time. Yet if he went to the office to complain about a sickening smell or a broken door the superintendent would always protest that he'd just been there a quarter hour ago and everything was fine. It was generally a good idea to take a picture or otherwise document the problem and bring it along. Or risk being dismissed as just another dementia case.

Pioneers of Alienation

Dash sat barefoot on the grass at the feet of Club Meds. He was wearing short shorts. His calves shone in the sun like ivory. Johnny passed by. Usually Dash totally ignored him but for some reason today he acknowledged him by asking him why he always wore black. Same reason you never wear socks, Johnny said. It cuts down laundry. Johnny beat it before Teacher could comment on his coifure but Teacher was interested in higher things.

Like girls, Dash?

Oh yes! enthused Dash. Some of my best friends are girls.

Nice girls, Dash?

Real nice!

Not like those skanks right there! Teacher indicated Baby Doll and Lachrymose Laurie who right at that very moment were ascending the Irish reprobate's circular driveway. They noticed Club Meds. Hey hey! The gangs all here. Edwin, Teacher, Kamikaze Dotard, and Dash especially.

Those guys are talking about us, said Baby.

Those guys? Laurie guffawed. They ain't ever giving us a hard.

Hard what? As usual Baby did not comprehend.

Look, Laurie said taking the easy way out.

Look at what? Baby liked to watch at least if there was anything worth looking at.

Fuck, said Laurie. They must be gay or something.

Maybe they're married, said suggested Baby.

What difference would that make? A very good question for which Baby had no ready answer. Club Meds was discussing that very topic which was curious and synchronous too.

You're a nice guy Dash. It'd be a shame if you went and got married....

He doesn't come around like he used to. Maybe he's married already....

Everyone of us was married at one time or another, said the former superman. Everyone of us regrets it too!

We figured out how to avoid marriage, said Kamikaze Dotard high atop the saddle-throne of his chariot, with a nudge nudge wink wink like he was letting Dash in on a deep dark secret.

Buggery!

Not like it used to be. The internet was why nobody got good and interesting junk any more. The prices for what they did get were too high. Clothing used to be a deal but one coud get cheaper jeans new from Walmart and T-shirts in Chinatown for a lot less. The atmosphere was crummy without any upside. The stores has all the negatives of Parkdale the meanness and the stress without any compensation like a good deal or some fun. The staff almost all seemed like very nice people but they were obviously harried caught between the old and the new Parkdale like everyone else.

Gutta-percha was the first internet. The cables it shielded under the sea were the network of globalism. It came by ship from Java through Singapore to London then went out again by ship from Ireland to Newfoundland. It was located beside train tracks the way the internet was later. It required globalism and it created it too until it and both exhausted in World War II. It was very big business. Babbitt traded it based on the data it provided via ticker tape and cable then relaxed putting a golf ball filled with it. Like his root canal.

Young blacks swarmed the grounds on scooters every other Monday morning cutting the grass for old whites. They whipped up all kinds of garbage remnants of drug kits and old rubbers while Superman drove the floor waxer up and down Death Row. Johnny trod softly to the Lobby to get his check stubs from Stealth and Despair. He heard Bird Woman's cutlery tapping her china like a bell tolling. They were condemned people enjoying their Last Supper if one could put it that way. One just did. How was Angel anyway?

Trashy canlit turned up in Free Libraries outside gentrified houses on NDP Street....
Pegg Allwood's latest perpetration....

Warning! The holdings of the Porkdale Branch of the Hogland Public Library included many controversial books but none if Dr Zane don't like it.

As for Johnny's expose of her latest fascist brain scams, the brain-dead zombies she'd trepanned aimlessly wandering one end of Thing West to the other, Dr Zane don't like it. They usually in fact went west! young man! into the setting sun and PORK and never came back. It was a one-way bad-trip.

Dr Zane definitely disliked his unflattering depiction of her as the bullshitting mouthpiece of MentalHealth Fascism. However, whether they moved her to action or moved her to tears, the following books left her changed forever. They are as relevant today as when they were first shat out the rectum of Pegg Allwood.

Surviving My Bush, Foxy-Wild Forever, and Wifey.

Johnny had offered Miranda the Librarian his expensive self-published crap free! Weeks later when they still hadn't appeared in the loco history section besides Phil I Stines images of pasteurized diversity he opened an investigation.

Miranda met him at the take-out counter beside odorous stacks of Allwood's latest. She threw his books in his face. Bookmarked in fifty different places where Scamaitch CEO Trixie Zane don't like it. So many bookmarks made a fringe.

My name is Lynn. I'm a writer. I ran away. From Mississauga!
Does anyone know you're here?
My friends don't even know such places exist. I didn't know till recently, she sighed
Do you wish to be transformed?
O! That would be lovely!
Go with Scotchtan, Child!

*****

Lynn slowly opened her heavy-lidded eyes and looked around. She appeared to be in a ski-lodge decorated with 60s macramé and spirit catchers over an especially rough section of Thing Street West. Then she remembered.
Father Scotchtan.... Coffee....
It was true. There really was something in the water. The Rubber Factory....
She'd missed the communal supper....
The reason I slept through everything was because (sob) I never intended to wake up at all. I tried to kill myself....
But why should a girl like you?
I could be anything. A thief a murderer.... a hipster!
Hipsters! An army of machines incapable of pain fear or compassion. And practically indestructible....
There's gotta be a human element somewhere.
Don't count on it! They behave like automatons. So far they've made no effort to break out of the city.

You've been vile to me ever since I told you I was a vegan.
You are a fool and a narcissistic poser, said Trixie. She liked that, being no mean poser herself.
How dare you impugn my beliefs!
You have no beliefs, hypocrite! Just an empty will to power bred of self-love and conceit. Get a dog, bitch. Frankie lives!
Frank! Frank! Where is he? What have you done with him?
He's right here, she assured her. Tapping an elephant-sized hypo!

I didn't think I had that much to drink!

Lynn painfully rose to her Fluvog-clad feet to look out the window.
Those things out there are bad enough in broad daylight. It's gonna be dark soon....
Do you have to do that? They'd think you were in a cage the way you circle around. She hadn't realized she'd been pacing. She stopped.
Something's gone wrong I know it. If anything should happen to Frank I'd never forgive myself....

*****

She was happy to lead their new writing group in ever greater flights of praise for Scotchtan and Zane, those wonderful change agents transforming lives, so long as she got to see Frank several times a day. She did so happily in her conviction that pretty soon she'd be joining him forever. And it was a happy circumstance that the hitherto laureate of serial killers and prize fighters should become an apologist for the mental hygiene of the future.

Trixie tasteded her cerebellum. Another heavy cannabis user. Her green hair made hers really stand out among all the other heads. Outstanding!
Can Litters were such potheads ha ha ha!

Dash Vina was the Free Delivery at the so-called Community Drugstore. Unfortunately for Dash the neighborhood was Porkdale. That meant the Rubber Factory. That meant PORK Drop-Inn and Father Scotchtan and his factotum Heinz with the bad teeth and the 60s pony tail and the Braineater Clinic and Trixie Zane and Butch and Sweetie and Small Potatoes etc....

It was not a pretty Drug Store. The proprietor employed a rotating crew from a stable at Pharmacy School but the cashiers were tough no-nonsense broads. The tattoos on their muscular forearms said Mother and She-Wolf.

Shoplifters preferred the Pillbox to the fancy new Drug Mart down Thing Street. When they stole Sleepeze © from the Drug Mart the mean little nazi of a security guard saw them do it on the TV set in his office. He waited for them at the front door which he'd already locked electronically. Then escorted them into his office to record their names and addresses. He called the cops only as an afterthought a formality. He wanted the thieves' names and addresses for the extortion racket he was running. The cops would give them a warning but the Drug Mart would blackmail them.

After getting dunned by the Drug Mart the shoplifters would stick to Dash's Pillbox where things were more direct. They'd get caught by the cashiers who'd tell them to return the Sleepeze © they just stole and get the Hell out and never come back. No extortion, no bs. No inoperative scam that was just wasting everyone's time. Of course the Pillbox was slated for destruction to be replaced by yet another ugly condo like the Tim Horton's next door.

For now Dash sat behind the counter luxuriating in his young manhood. There was a lull in deliveries. It was a slow late summer Friday afternoon on Thing West in Porkdale. His shoulders slumped under the wife-beater he wore and he dozed a little. He wore sneakers with holes in them over his big toes. He never wore socks. That saved on laundry and besides socks looked ridiculous with short-shorts. He had corpse feet. He was twenty-four and getting busty with what the French call embonpoint or bitch tits. His weekend had already begun. He was stoned.

Dash luxuriated in his young manhood. Indeed he looked somewhat stoned and post-coital

There was a lull in deliveries. It was a typically slow late summer Friday afternoon in Porkdale. Dash relaxed behind the counter. His weekend had already begun. His shoulders slumped under the wife-beater he wore and he even dozed a little. He was twenty-four and beginning to put on weight. He was getting busty with the beginnings of what the French call embonpoint bitch tits.

Scotchtan noticed the dirty sneakers visible under the counter. There was a hole over each big toe. Looked like he didn't trim his nails or wear socks either. Or wash a lot....

Looks like your weekend has already begun, son.

Yeah.... Indeed Dash looked stoned post-coital and sated like he'd just done vigorously pleasuring himself and now felt at once fulfilled and depleted somewhat foolish and very smug. Which annoyed Scotchtan immensely since he hated to be left out of anything pleasurable.

Yes sir! corrected Scotchtan. In the Old Country they teach mannerisms.
Yeah.... That's why he left.
Here, have the pharmacist fill this prescription. Bring the drugs....

His Asian boss had inherited the Pillbox from his father. Johnny remembered the stocky old man in heavy black-framed glasses and white coat behind the counter. He'd dealt him once when a so-called mental health team had delivered a dosette to Hell House without the client's clozapine. The mistake would probably have been made by the team, who should have seen that the meds were added at the hospital. Johnny had noticed the omission simply by the weight. It felt too light. He called the Pillbox and the old man drove over with the meds himself. He was an old school white-coater.

The old man reminded Johnny of the white-coated individual who stepped out from behind his bubbling fake lab apparatus to narrate the introduction of a sci-fi horror movie. The white coat meant he was a scientist. The glasses meant he did a lot of serious reading so he must be very learned. He was one big rhetorical fallacy.

So's your old man, Johnny thought. He was dressed up to narrate the sci-fi horror show of Hell House. Of course the meds he introduced were good. He was a scientist a polymath. Seriously. Johnny wondered what would have happened if he hadn't noticed the missing meds or if the old man hadn't bothered to replace them. Nothing in some cases. In other cases the affected client would have become a mad monster.

He'd had dealings with Junior too. His landlord's brother had a habit of eating Tylenol 1s by the handful for the codeine. It took a lot of Tylenol to get a codeine high. Unfortunately such quantities were toxic. Johnny visited all the loco drugstores to ask them not to sell Tylenol to his landlord's brother. He even gave them mugshots of the brother playing an air piano like a character in Caligari. Junior was the only pharmacist who gave him a hard time. Maybe he was being conscientious or maybe he would miss the Tylenol sales. Junior gave him a hard time till Johnny told him about his dealing with his old man. His father....

Once Johnny had asked junior to witness his rent review at Murder Housing. He read every page first before signing even though Johnny explained it was merely a formality. He was very punctilious. Now with the same painstaking attention to detail he handed Dash the Friday meds to deliver.

Dash pressed his ear to the door. Old Bugger was watching a movie. He was deaf so he'd he'd turned the volume up loud. Dash could hear the soundtrack. He recognized it. "You think it's funny hu? You little schemer." Great dialogue. That was hairy-chested Dad in real life an-out-of-work porn star. If that was life. Maybe this way, Dash thought closing his eyes to visualize the scene. He'd just been toking too. "I know how to drive these things. Lighten up will you. Nobody's going to complain out here." That was the camp ground bitch wanting to drive the speed boat. The blond jock in the wife-beater didn't want to let her. "Come on! Please?" She made him. "Just for a minute." That was all it took. To decapitate hairy-chested Daddy on his way to the dock.

Old Bugger opened the door just in time for Dash to see Daddy's decapitated body float to the surface of Sleepaway Bay. The Dad he never had. Old Bugger turned down the volume just a little. Your meds, said Dash. Old Bugger liked to watch slasher movies on Viagra ©. It was his only recreation. Looking at all that fresh young chicken while waiting for Dash.... Almost got him hard.... "No such thing as being too young. Just too old." He invited Dash to come in sit down put his feet up etc but Dash declined. He was on to him and besides he had more Viagra © deliveries. Seemed half the Rubber Factory tuned into the Friday Night Slasher Theatre for the same reason. For Dash it wasn't reliving the 80s it was being there. He wasn't sad he'd missed them.

Dash paused outside Sweetie's unit and listened. Of course it was the same Slasher Movie Channel only a little further on at the start of the next kill. "See anything you like? Maybe I can help you decide. You sure are a sweet-looking little cupcake aint yuh! I think I got something you're gonna like real good...." Dash knew what was coming. He closed his eyes again. He liked watching movies in the dark. Rikki interrupted Fatso just as the latter was undoing his pants to show her the goods. He watched as Fatso explained to the Director that he'd frightened the little girl. The kitchen staff looked guilty. They knew what had happened. Chef Fatso was boiling a huge pot of water to cook corn on the cob. Dash saw him climb up on a stool to add a dash of salt. "Boiling yet? Thatta girl! What the fuck do you think you're doing? Help me down or you're gonna kill me! Come on kid! Help me down and I'll make you a nice ice-cream sundae, OK?" Dash saw the little hand of the otherwise invisible person pull the step-ladder out from under the cursing chef causing him to fall pulling the boiling cauldron on top of himself. Dash had to knock hard to make himself heard over the scream on Sweetie's TV set. At last Sweetie turned it down ever so little and opened the door a crack. "Your meds!" "Ah my little bonbons! You want come in? Get high? Me and Baby Doll?" Again Dash declined the invitation this one a threesome. He had deliveries.

He arrived outside Butch's just in time for his favorite kill. He heard the screams as the hairy-chested stud jogged into his cabin and grabbed a girlie mag to read while he pinched one on the toilet. Dash closed his eyes and saw the broom handle jam the toilet stall shut and the hairy calves of the squatting jock. "Who is that? O playing games are we?" He saw the stud's legs as he rose to fend off the nest of angry hornets. "Hey get that thing out of here! Come on! Get it out! Help me somebody!"

Dash resolved he'd quit his job as soon as he'd saved enough money for a few months rent over the Pillbox. Dash appreciated that he and his customers shared similar tastes. The trouble was that they shared them from different perspectives. For Dash they were tastes still to be savored and enjoyed. For his customers they were tastes they'd already enjoyed or never would because they were over. Unfortunately his customers had no such insight. They thought they were still players.

You've earned your reward.

My new face?

Exactly! Tonight I'm going to lead you out of this darkness. We'll go among people. You'll be able to pick the face that pleases you. Then it will be yours.

After I've grafted on your new face life will become fresh and exciting.

O boyoboy!

And maybe we'll find you a new brain too....

However it was a changed world after the Plague struck. The Plague wasn't exactly raging. It had moved outdoors onto the sidewalks. It was café society. Large tracts of the Thing Street had been roped off to accommodate vegans who would normally have stayed indoors. There weren't many of them. Most people preferred to stay home and order out.

Indeed many of them mail-ordered their specially prepared vegan meals from the Amazing Man long before the Plague was born.

There weren't many vegans on Thing Street. They passed carnivores. Real dinosaurs. There was one who looked like he'd been muff diving and some of it stuck to his face most of which was covered by a greasy hoodie which was a mercy. He had a ridiculous looking cane with a cheap child's tricycle horn duck-taped to the handle. That had to be Butch. Dash barely acknowledged him. He hated meeting clients after work. They'd want to tell him about the Viagra © they great things it did for them and vice versa. Made him sick his skin crawl. Kind of stuff nobody put on his cv. Not fit for polite society or impolite either.

Not your type, Dash? Scotchtan was enjoying this.

Speaking of impolite society he noticed a real crazy looking scank trundling her walker into the Pillbox. She had her hair done up in a dirty pigtail and she was still in her pajamas athough it was getting dark. Dash recognized Baby Doll immediately and avoided her like the Plague even though there was one already on. She spotted him and started calling him Billy! Billy! for some inscrutable reason. Maybe another of her pimps was called Billy.

I won't even ask, said Scotchtan.

An elderly Asian in purple track-pants and a leisure sweater sauntered slowly out of the Vietnamese barbershop where he'd obviously just had his hair cut very short. Baby Doll nearly ran into her walker. He ogled her lasciviously. His brushcut made him hot. Sweetie! she called. He made a circular gesture with his smoking ciggy like he was sky-writing. [He'd see her around (cheque day). Dash noticed that he wore brown socks in plastic sandals. To Dash, who'd never worn socks once in his adult life, that was disgusting. He could keep his face not that he wanted it anyway it was so sour looking under all that fake bonhomie.

Then they passed someone who gave Dash pause. He was a tall meat-eater. He had black hair and heavy back-framed glasses from the 50s. He wore military fatigues open to the third button over a sparse black pelt. Dash noted the size thirteen feet in shower shoes and the muscular calvesat the end of lean lightly furred legs. He was wearing Capri pants.

He'd seen him before at the Godwill and at the No Frillies. He looked for army surplus items in big sizes. Dash started calling him Mr Big. He would look at sizes too big for himself just to stand close to Mr Big. He tried to engage him in conversation but it wasn't easy. He tried asking him if he came from the the Land of Giants. Were there many back home like him? That was outrageously tacky. Mr Big smiled and asked him how he was. He had a nice baritone voice.

Dash endeavoured another come-on. Must be hard finding anything big enough.

Yeah, said Mr Big. Too small! He was holding a pair of size 11 runners. For my kid brother.

Dash asked him if he was a soldier or a cop. The army fatigues and the short haircut made him think so.

No, said Mr Big. My dealer thought so too. It used to make trouble for me when I tried to buy pot.

Then Dash realized that even Mr Big was a typical loco a degenerate pothead junkie just like everyone else only big.

It's because I see you here during the day, Dash explained. I figured you were doing shift work. Like a cop.

I work in the service industry, said Mr Big. I'm a chef.

Dash imagined him in a Chef Boyardee © turban. He'd be positively Assyrian! That explained why he was always around. Another victim of the Plague.

Dash snapped out of his reverie and turned to Father Scotchtan.

That one?

That one!

*****

Lynn was talking to Father Scotchtan about the trouble she was having with Dash. Father Scotchtan assured her. There was no reason why she and Dash couldn't adopt.

Adopt?! But what about kids of our own?

Father Scotchtan insisted. There's no reason you and Dash can't adopt half a dozen.... juvenile delinquents.... at PORK!!!

Lynn why don't you have Dash come in and see me?

Dash Honey I've been to see Father Scotchtan.
Yeah? About what???
To find out if I can get pregnant.
And?
I can Dash!
Well hooray! So what's the problem?
I'm not getting it!
Oh....
Where you come in so to speak.
Dash Father Scotchtan wants you to pay him a visit at PORK.

No problem. I'll drop in some noon hour for the free lunch.

Dash brought a little friend into the shelter. He was wearing a mask. There were holes in the sides for air. Dash wanted to take him directly into the basement but Lynn had been getting her free lunch in a Styrofoam tray when she spotted him. Yo, she said. She thought Dash was hot. His sockless orphan look. Who's this?

She blocked his way to the cellar and pulled off the muzzle. But Dash, she said. I already have a son of a bitch of my own!

What do you mean?

Frankie! A real dog!

It was supposed to be a surprise, Dash explained. To celebrate the publication of your sonnet sequence to Max the Butcher.

He doesn't seem very friendly. The mutt was snarling, snapping his jaws and lunging at her.

He was cute and friendly in the store, Dash explained.

What's the mutt's name?

Frank Jr!

Frank Jr we're going for a ride. You go back upstairs. I'll take care of Frank Jr all right.

That night Father Scotchtan served his clients frank'n beans.

*****

Lynn stared at Dash.

What is that thing on the back of your neck?

There's nothing on the back of my neck. What is that thing on the back of your neck?

There's nothing on the back of my neck.

They were about to have a lovers' quarrel when it came to them in a flash. There was something on the back of both their necks.

Do you mind if I take a look?

Not if you don't....

The thing was bucktoothed. It attached itself to the central nervous system of hipster posers. When its fangs withdrew it injected their brains with acid. Twenty to twenty-four hours later the trip was over for good.

They were parasites. All of them. That meant they needed something to live on. On their own most parasites would die. Why didn't they settle on animals that's the rub. They wanted more than just life. They tried animals through ignorance. They didn't understand earthly forms. They didn't know which animal including man was best suited for this environment. Oorangutangs? Coelacanths?

So they experimented trial and error. That showed they could think. These things took over a man's mind he became a robot a machine taking orders. Except it didn't show on the outside. A victim acted normally. They hadn't moved into Porkdale in force yet. Once the locos found out where they nested, they'd get the jump on them.

Braineaters!

Sweetie got himself the sweetest brush-cut over at the Tibetan barber-shop where he picked up his ciggies.

You got a girlfriend or something, boss?

Sweetie liked it when other crooks called him boss. Like he was a wise guy. Don Sweetie! Gotta white girl! Sweetie growled. Swine to swine. Tough guy!

Heinz 57 was at Murder Housing hammering up posters for macramé workshops at the Open University.

Pioneers of Alienation

Heinz heard them going at it on Death Row. Baby Doll's giggles alternated with screams as Small Potatoes alternated with Sweetie. They were having a go at her. Both of them. It was an orgy of frigging and cigging.

Heinz crept closer.

Baby! Menthol or Plain?

I like plain, Sweetie.

I'm a Menthol Man myself, said Small Potatoes.

Menthol was code for blow job. Sweetie liked it plain. He wasn't very imaginative. Baby Doll wasn't imaginative at all.

Heinz liked to watch people smoke but not with Baby Doll.

He just stand there. What is he? Gay or something?

Maybe he married ha ha, Sweetie suggested. That never slowed him down.

Such a nice guy! Shame it has to happen to him! Two strokes and Small Potatoes was in the celestial truck garden.

Get away from me you rousy retard. He transformed his Is whenever he got excited. As he was now.

Boom! Boom! Out go the lights!

Rights? I got rights right her! Cheap cheap!

That wasn't what he meant.

Upon bludgeoning Sweetie and Small Potatoes to death Heinz boarded the Thing Car but unfortunately with all the fun and excitement he forgot to deposit his fare or to wipe the brains off the hammer he was still carrying. It was just his luck that when the driver radioed for help PCs Kim and James were right behind them in their shiny batmobile. They boarded the car and spotting the hammer immediately shot Heinz dead.

Father Scotchtan found a moniker for his hotel. The Candy Factory! In honour of Sweetie of course. However Heinz Fifty-Seven and Small Potatoes were equally martyrs of social work and pioneers of social change so there would be suites named after them.

The Mongrel Room! The Banger!

He that felt that he was drifting. He used to work for a theme, but the theme didn't work for him any more. The city had changed because of The Plague, and was continuing to change. He just didn't know exactly what the change was or how big it was, so he didn't know what he was photographing any more only that it wasn't the same. Invasion of the Body Snatchers, via coronavirus....

All Johnny's hot spots were closed with Xeroxed posters on the door announcing that they were all in it together whatever that meant. The few that were open had replaced the posters with ones announcing the fact, like it was now the biggest deal. The Portuguese butcher had the longest line-up. He gave out free surgical masks to all his customers. Johnny used to buy five pounds of hamburger and have him bag it in one pound portions so he could freeze it. After the pandemic struck and people started hoarding hamburger and toilet paper, the prize went up from two to three dollars a pound. Johnny considered it profiteering and took his hamburger business to the No Frillies and FreshCop. He paid more but at least it was the same price as before the disaster. He was stupid but he had principles.

He couldn't stand Thing Street any more. He'd always hated it but he tolerated it as long as he made money off it. Especially on Check Day when all the loonies flocked to his Thing Store. Now even the Vegans couldn't make money, and they were the best cons. They'd annexed the whole strip, plastering it with storefronts like theatre marquis, instead of the names of grind house movies slogans like and including it's not your milk and animals don't need us. Just what you'd expect from a ringleader who claimed his cat taught him how to be a Vegan. Their faux Versailles drawing rooms with the fake marble mantlepieces were empty. Johnny liked them better as dollar stores. They'd be dollar stores again. The lucky ones....

He didn't even venture into the Thing Street dollar stores. Not after that time with Baby Doll. Early in the morning the guard with the snow-white beard hadn't come on duty yet. She got kicked out of some crack house early in the morning and wandered into the first joint that was open looking for trouble. She was still stoned from whatever she had last night. Baby Doll wanted a red tinfoil party hat and two chocolate bars for breakfast but she didn't have enough money to pay for them. She was dunning begging it from the other customers in line. She'd cough and sniffle and get very close to them like she was trying to infect them with the Plague so they'd give her some money just to get

You don't really need an #espressomachine to make #greatcoffee however. The #Bialetti #MokaPot does that and you can often find them used in #thriftstores for just a few dollars. They almost never wear out, just replace the rubber ring from time to time - many hardware stores carry them, especially in Italian neighborhoods. Make sure it's #Bialetti, however. They invented it in the 30s and sometimes the knockoffs don't work.

landlady and I had dinner here, the cheapest items on the menu (that was cheap enough already), and we'd sit and reminisce about old tenants, Vern who died and nobody found till the stench - like bad turnips - became unbearable, Peter whose B.O. was almost as bad, whom one day a mystery man came looking for, claiming he was the World's Greatest Sanskrit Scholar - who would have guessed? - Obi, the white collar criminal, whom you heard claiming to be the long-lost Prince of Abyssinia, wanting to sell YOU - yes YOU! - his entire huge fortune, that time you were stupid enough to answer an unidentified call.... gone, all gone - even the place where we remembered them, gone - #Dufferin #KingWest #Parkdale #Toronto #Jupiter12

#Djalma's #strangler #tattoo in #EugeneSue's #TheWanderingJew

Instagram

With regard to the hugely popular nineteenth century French novels of Eugène Sue, The Mysteries of Paris and The Wandering Jew, both published in serialized form, tattoos are significant in the epic-length narratives. In The Mysteries of Paris, serialized between 1842 and 1843 (Sue, 1824–1843/2013), the tragic character Songbird is incarcerated in the Saint-Lazare prison, where she encounters the formidable She-Wolf, the toughest inmate. In addition to her agile, muscular physique, the most striking aspect of her body is the tattoo on her forearm of a blue dagger plunged halfway into a red heart, with the words 'Death to cowards!' written underneath the design. The effect of the tattoo on Songbird is emotive and intimidating, as she exclaims, 'It's sinister, and it frightens me' (2015, p. 639). While in The Wandering Jew, published in 1844 (Sue, 1844/2016), the hero, Prince Djalma, is secretly tattooed with the symbol of the Strangler cult on the inside of his arm while he sleeps. The operation is a delicate one, and the symbol barely visible, but on recognition by authorities, the tattoo leads to his imprisonment as he is falsely accused of belonging to the murderous and clandestine order due to his wearing their mark. Hence, within the pages of Sue's work, the tattoo is closely associated with the rebellious and the other.

CHAPTER XVIII. THE TATTOOING

The heavens, which had been till now of transparent blue, became gradually of a greenish tint, and the sun was veiled in red, lurid vapor. This strange light gave to every object a weird appearance, of which one might form an idea, by looking at a landscape through a piece of copper colored glass. In those climates, this phenomenon, when united with an increase of burning heat, always announces the approach of a storm.

From time to time there was a passing odor of sulphur; then the leaves, slightly shaken by electric currents, would tremble upon their stalks; till again all would return to the former motionless silence. The weight of the burning atmosphere, saturated with sharp perfumes, became almost intolerable. Large drops of sweat stood in pearls on the forehead of Djalma, still plunged in enervating sleep—for it no longer resembled rest, but a painful stupor.

The Strangler glided like a reptile along the sides of the ajoupa, and, crawling on his belly, arrived at the sleeping-mat of Djalma, beside which he squatted himself, so as to occupy as little space as possible. Then began a fearful scene, by reason of the mystery and silence which surrounded it.

Djalma's life was at the mercy of the Strangler. The latter, resting upon his hands and knees, with his neck stretched forward, his eye fixed and dilated, continued motionless as a wild beast about to spring. Only a slight nervous trembling of the jaws agitated that mask of bronze.

But soon his hideous features revealed a violent struggle that was passing within him—a struggle between the thirst, the craving for the enjoyment of murder, which the recent assassination of the slave had made still more active, and the orders he had received not to attempt the life of Djalma, though the design, which brought him to the ajoupa, might perhaps be as fatal to the young Indian as death itself. Twice did the Strangler, with look of flame, resting only on his left hand, seize with his right the rope's end; and twice his hand fell—the instinct of murder yielding to a powerful will, of which the Malay acknowledged the irresistible empire.

In him, the homicidal craving must have amounted to madness, for, in these hesitations, he lost much precious time: at any moment, Djalma, whose vigor, skill, and courage were known and feared, might awake from his sleep, and, though unarmed, he would prove a terrible adversary. At length the Thug made up his mind; with a suppressed sigh of regret, he set about accomplishing his task.

This task would have appeared impossible to any one else. The reader may judge.

Djalma, with his face turned towards the left, leaned his head upon his curved arm. It was first necessary, without waking him, to oblige him to turn his face towards the right (that is, towards the door), so that, in case of his being half-roused, his first glance might not fall upon the Strangler. The latter, to accomplish his projects, would have to remain many minutes in the cabin.

The heavens became darker; the heat arrived at its last degree of intensity; everything combined to increase the torpor of the sleeper, and so favor the Strangler's designs. Kneeling down close to Djalma, he began, with the tips of his supple, well-oiled fingers, to stroke the brow, temples, and eyelids of the young Indian, but with such extreme lightness, that the contact of the two skins was hardly sensible. When this kind of magnetic incantation had lasted for some seconds, the sweat, which bathed the forehead of Djalma, became more abundant: he heaved a smothered sigh, and the muscles of his face gave several twitches, for the strokings, although too light to rouse him, yet caused in him a feeling of indefinable uneasiness.

Watching him with his restless and burning eye, the Strangler continued his maneuvers with so much patience, that Djalma, still sleeping, but no longer able to bear this vague, annoying sensation, raised his right hand mechanically to his face, as if he would have brushed away an importunate insect. But he had not strength to do it; almost immediately after, his hand, inert and heavy, fell back upon his chest. The Strangler saw, by this symptom, that he was attaining his object, and continued to stroke, with the same address, the eyelids, brow, and temples.

Whereupon Djalma, more and more oppressed by heavy sleep, and having neither strength nor will to raise his hand to his face, mechanically turned round his head, which fell languidly upon his right shoulder, seeking by this change of attitude, to escape from the disagreeable sensation which pursued him. The first point gained, the Strangler could act more freely.

To render as profound as possible the sleep he had half interrupted, he now strove to imitate the vampire, and, feigning the action of a fan, he rapidly moved his extended hands about the burning face of the young Indian. Alive to a feeling of such sudden and delicious coolness, in the height of suffocating heat, the countenance of Djalma brightened, his bosom heaved, his half-opened lips drank in the grateful air, and he fell into a sleep only the more invincible, because it had been at first disturbed, and was now yielded to under the influence of a pleasing sensation.

A sudden flash of lightning illumined the shady dome that sheltered the ajoupa: fearing that the first clap of thunder might rouse the young Indian, the Strangler hastened to complete his Task. Djalma lay on his back, with his head resting on his right shoulder, and his left arm extended; the Thug, crouching at his left side, ceased by degrees the process of fanning; then, with incredible dexterity, he succeeded in rolling up, above the elbow, the long wide sleeve of white muslin that covered the left arm of the sleeper.

He next drew from the pocket of his drawers a copper box, from which he took a very fine, sharp-pointed needle, and a piece of a black-looking root. He pricked this root several times with the needle, and on each occasion there issued from it a white, glutinous liquid.

When the Strangler thought the needle sufficiently impregnated with this juice, he bent down, and began to blow gently over the inner surface of Djalma's arm, so as to cause a fresh sensation of coolness; then, with the point of his needle, he traced almost imperceptibly on the skin of the sleeping youth some mysterious and symbolical signs. All this was performed so cleverly and the point of the needle was so fine and keen, that Djalma did not feel the action of the acid upon the skin.

The signs, which the Strangler had traced, soon appeared on the surface, at first in characters of a pale rose-color, as fine as a hair; but such was the slowly corrosive power of the juice, that, as it worked and spread beneath the skin, they would become in a few hours of a violet red, and as apparent as they were now almost invisible.

The Strangler, having so perfectly succeeded in his project, threw a last look of ferocious longing on the slumbering Indian, and creeping away from the mat, regained the opening by which he had entered the cabin; next, closely uniting the edges of the incision, so as to obviate all suspicion, he disappeared just as the thunder began to rumble hoarsely in the distance.(4)

(4) We read in the letters of the late Victor Jacquemont upon India, with regard to the incredible dexterity of these men: "They crawl on the ground, ditches, in the furrows of fields, imitate a hundred different voices, and dissipate the effect of any accidental noise by raising the yelp of the jackal or note of some bird—then are silent, and another imitates the call of the same animal in the distance. They can molest a sleeper by all sorts of noises and slight touches, and make his body and limbs take any position which suits their purpose." Count Edward de Warren, in his excellent work on English India, which we shall have again occasion to quote, expresses himself in the same manner as to the inconceivable address of the Indians: "They have the art," says he, "to rob you, without interrupting your sleep, of the very sheet in which you are enveloped. This is not 'a traveller's tale.' but a fact. The movements of the bheel are those of the serpent. If you sleep in your tent, with a servant lying across each entrance, the bheel will come and crouch on the outside, in some shady corner, where he can hear the breathing of those within. As soon as the European sleeps, he feels sure of success, for the Asiatic will not long resist the attraction of repose. At the proper moment, he makes a vertical incision in the cloth of the tent, on the spot where he happens to be, and just large enough to admit him. He glides through like a phantom, without making the least grain of sand creak beneath his tread. He is perfectly naked, and all his body is rubbed over with oil; a two-edged knife is suspended from his neck. He will squat down close to your couch, and, with incredible coolness and dexterity, will gather up the sheet in very little folds, so as to occupy the least surface possible; then, passing to the other side, he will lightly tickle the sleeper, whom he seems to magnetize, till the latter shrinks back involuntarily, and ends by turning round, and leaving the sheet folded behind him. Should he awake, and strive to seize the robber, he catches at a slippery form, which slides through his hands like an eel; should he even succeed in seizing him, it would be fatal—the dagger strikes him to the heart, he falls bathed in his blood, and the assassin disappears."—E. S.

Maybe they're wonks too.... Folks on the sunshine list of "big earners" aren't likely to litigate against other members of their own class - on the sunshine list too - and no

What do #crazypeople like? Ask #CAMH CEO Catherine Zahn.... What's #citrusshampoo, anyway?! Good to know we're #humanbeings, though.... in #Parkdale #Toronto

Instagram

“Let’s face it, how good does that feel to have some nice citrus shampoo from time to time?” says Zahn. “It’s a wonderful luxury that we all enjoy. One of the things I was told when we were building our facilities is that one of the architects asked somebody, ‘What do people with mental illness like?’ And the answer was, ‘The same things you like — what are you talking about? These are human beings who like the same comforts and luxuries as you do.’ They’re functioning on a level where they’re trying to get by; what can we do to make life better [for them]?”

#Howmuch is #thatstud #inthewindow - too expensive at any price - #momentomori #tshirt - like at seventy I need a reminder - how many times have I stumbled in the street lately - too many - they're #neurological events - or non-events - too old for this stupid #shithole - and I witnessed a disgusting crime at #Brock and #QueenWest in doomed #Parkdale - an #ahole in his #bigass-mobile jumped the light, slammed into another car, and ran over a pedestrian walking on the sidewalk beside (what used to be) the fabric store, sending the man hurtling through the air like a rag doll, screaming NO NO.... Us locals were traumatized. The pedestrian was badly hurt, though he was still alive on the sidewalk - somebody saw his foot move and a cop directed traffic. It took the ambulance a quarter of an hour to arrive. #Aholes treat Parkdale like we're less than the dirt under their whitewalls. This isn't the first time, or the last. I hoped the driver got charged with manslaughter. He won't be. A brief news report stated that the pedestrian's injuries though serious were not life-threatening.... I was on Brock heading to the shop on the corner. If I'd come the other way around I'd have been in the "line of fire." The shopkeeper said the cops didn't enforce the speed limit at the intersection. There were many "accidents" - they aren't accidents.

The #notorious #QueensHotel #WestQueenWest - soon to be #condos, of course - local housing activists got the residents some money after they were (illegally) kicked out by the developer - and various outfits like the so-called "#landtrust" make #tokenefforts to supply housing be purchasing #roominghouses etc - but it's a proverbial drop in the bucket compared to what we need - and, of course, unsustainable - I lived for nearly a decade in a rooming house with the landlady on the ground floor - she was the superintendent and the security guard and the custodial staff and the operations manager and the community services coordinator and the tenant services administrator - the managerial bloat of Toronto Community Housing - and she did it all for just the measly rent we paid her (MOST of the time) - now at #TCHC event the superintendent - amiable sort - is on the #sunshine list for earing in excess of $100,000 annually - and people in #Toronto believe #publichousing is NOT #unsustainable - trouble is, it's #FAILING - maybe FAILED ALREADY - and the #CityofToronto is virtually #BANKRUPT.... what shall we do? where shall we live? are the #STREETSOFTORONTO big enough?! #Parkdale #Torontograd #Dystopia

TESTES, UTERUS AND FALLOPIAN TUBES IN HERNIAL SAC

TESTES USUALLY ATROPHIC, CHARACTERISTIC OF CRYPTORCHIDISM; SPERMATOGENESIS OCCASIONALLY PRESENT

SOME VARIATIONS IN MALE PSEUDOHERMAPHRODITISM

Disorders of Sex Differentiation

but spermatogenesis has not been reported. The testes are subject to malignant change, and it is usually considered advisable to remove them after they have brought about full feminization.

All the findings in this syndrome are compatible with an error in the peripheral responses to androgen. Incubation studies, carried out on testes removed from these patients, have revealed the production of estrogens, and there has been no apparent defect in the ability to synthesize testosterone. The testes are the ultimate source of estrogen in these women, since castration leads to a fall in the excretion of estrogens, as well as to the appearance of menopausal symptoms. The urinary 17-ketosteroids are slightly elevated, whereas the excretion of estrogenic substances is in the low-normal range for adult females. It is notable that some of these women are singularly devoid of sexual hair and acne, and, usually, the administration of testosterone has failed to produce these effects.

In some families the defect seems to be less complete, and the external genitalia exhibit some degree of masculinization at birth. In these girls the hormonal pattern, at adolescence, is likewise mixed, with inadequate breast development and some hirsutism. Instances have been reported in which the complete and the less complete forms have occurred within the same sibship.

MALE PSEUDOHERMAPHRODITISM DUE TO CONGENITAL STEROID HORMONE DYSGENESIS. Prader has described a group of male infants with severe adrenal insufficiency, enormous accumulations of lipid in the cells of the adrenal cortex and testes, and female or hermaphroditic external genitalia with male genital ducts (adrenal lipid hyperplasia).

Bongiovanni has studied similarly affected infants, and has ascribed his findings to a deficiency of C-3-β-ol-dehydrogenase in the patients' adrenal glands and testes. No synthetic step beyond cholesterol occurs, with consequent lack of adrenal and gonadal hormones (see page 6). This primitive defect severely limits the adrenal production of 17-hydroxycorticoids and androgens, thus leading to hyperplasia because of ACTH excess. Similarly, failure to synthesize testicular androgen fully explains the anomalous external genitalia.

The normalcy of the male genital ducts, in this syndrome and that of feminizing testes, substantiates Jost's hypothesis that the duct-organizing substance is nonsteroidal in character. This evidence is particularly convincing in those cases of adrenal lipid hyperplasia, in which the normal synthesis of all biologically important steroid hormones fails.

Male Pseudohermaphroditism with Retention of Müllerian Ducts (Plate 13). In this illustration are represented the findings in a rare type of male pseudohermaphroditism, in which a normal-appearing virile male is found to have retention of Müllerian elements. Such individuals are considered, at birth, to be normal males. They grow normally throughout childhood and, at adolescence, virilize adequately.

In the few recorded patients with this syndrome (the frequency of which is unknown), the testicular architecture has been normal, rarely including full spermatogenesis. Some of these men have been known to be fertile and to have sired normal children.

Beyond the presumption that the fetal testis somehow failed to secrete an adequate amount of duct-organizing substance, the etiology of this condition is unknown. Studies with modern chromosomal counting techniques have not yet been reported.

Male Pseudohermaphroditism with Rudimentary Testes. Although it is uncommon to encounter normal-appearing, well-virilized males with internal Müllerian structures, female internal duct structures are often found in males with hypospadias and more severe forms of hermaphroditic external genitalia. In such individuals, rudimentary testes are found either in the broad ligament or somewhere in the path of migration toward the scrotum. Development is frequently asymmetric. This type of male pseudohermaphroditism is more properly considered a form of gonadal dysgenesis (see page 130).

Mmm... Not sure this is politically correct, Doc!

THE ARTIST

Many readers of the Ciba Collection have expressed a desire to know more about Dr. Netter. In response to these requests this summary of Dr. Netter's career has been prepared.

Frank Henry Netter, born in 1906 in Brooklyn, New York, received his M.D. degree from New York University in 1931. To help pay his way through medical school and internship at Bellevue, he worked as a commercial artist and as an illustrator of medical books and articles for his professors and other physicians, perfecting his natural talent by studying at the National Academy of Design and attending courses at the Art Students' League.

In 1933 Dr. Netter entered the private practice of surgery in New York City. But it was the depth of the depression, and the recently married physician continued to accept art assignments to supplement his income. Soon he was spending more and more time at the drawing board and finally, realizing that his career lay in medical illustration, he decided to give up practicing and become a full-time artist.

Soon, Dr. Netter was receiving requests to develop many unusual projects. One of the most arduous of these was building the "transparent woman" for the San Francisco Golden Gate Exposition. This 7-foot-high transparent figure depicted the menstrual process, the development and birth of a baby, and the physical and sexual development of a woman, while a synchronized voice told the story of the female endocrine

... the pictures showed a medical student sitting up the night before the osteology examination, studying away to the point of exhaustion; an emergency ward; an ambulance call; a class reunion; and a night call made by a country doctor.

During World War II, Dr. Netter was an officer in the Army, stationed first at the Army Institute of Pathology, later at the Surgeon General's Office, in charge of graphic training aids for the Medical Department. Numerous manuals were produced under his direction, among them first aid for combat troops, roentgenology for technicians, sanitation in the field, and survival in the tropics.

After the war, Dr. Netter began work on several major projects for CIBA Pharmaceutical Company, culminating in The Ciba Collection of Medical Illustrations. To date, five volumes have been published and work is in progress on the sixth, dealing with the urinary tract.

Dr. Netter goes about planning and executing his illustrations in a very exacting way. First comes the study, unquestionably the most important and most difficult part of the entire undertaking. No drawing is ever started until Dr. Netter has acquired a complete understanding of the subject matter, either through reading or by consultation with leading authorities in the field. Often he visits hospitals to observe clinical cases, pathologic or surgical specimens, or operative procedures. Sometimes an original dissection is necessary.

When all his questions have been answered and the problem is thoroughly understood, Dr. Netter makes a pencil sketch on a tissue or tracing pad. Always, the subject must be visualized from the standpoint of the physician; is it to be viewed from above or below, from the side, the rear, or the front? What area is to be covered, the entire body or just certain segments? What plane provides the clearest understanding? In some pictures two, three, or four planes of dissection may be necessary.

When the sketch is at last satisfactory, Dr. Netter transfers it to a piece of illustration board for the finished drawing. This is done by blocking the back of the picture with a soft pencil, taping the tissue down on the board with Scotch tape, then going over the lines with a hard pencil. Over the years, our physician-artist has used many media to finish his illustrations, but now he works almost exclusively in transparent water colors mixed with white paint.

In spite of the tremendously productive life Dr. Netter has led, he has been able to enjoy his family, first in a handsome country home in East Norwich, Long Island, and, after the five children had grown up, in a penthouse overlooking the East River in Manhattan.
